W. L. Jackson came in Wednesday for a short vacation from his work at the Ore Grande mines on Carbury creek. Mr. Jackson says work is being rushed at that mine and that they will be piping in a short time. Mr. Jackson will return to the mine by Saturday's Applegate stage.

Mr. and Mrs. E. DeRobaum, superintendent and matron respectively of the County Hospital, accompanied by their daughter, Ida, left Saturday for Evans Creek for a visit of a couple of days at their son's, John DeRobaum. Mr. DeRobaum took two teams with him and will bring a lot of fence posts for use on his place.

Calling cards, the latest in style and printed so neatly as to resemble copperplate work at the Sentinel office.

J. Nunan, one of the best known merchants of Southern Oregon, has slipped away from the cares of his extensive business, and last Monday he left for Cinnabar Springs, where he will spend six weeks in taking a rest and in recuperating his strength for another year's work in his store in Jacksonville. Mr. Nunan was taken to the Springs by Bird Saltmarsh of Applegate, who took him by team to the end of the road on Little Applegate and from there they made the remaining 25 miles over the mountain trail on horseback.

Miss Hoover is making a closing out sale of her millinery goods. She has a fine stock of ribbons, feathers, velvets, buckles, laces, mulls, chiffons, etc., and hats trimmed and untrimmed that she is selling out at cost.

B. H. Harris and T. C. Norris returned Saturday from a trip to Big Butte creek where they had been to look after some farm property that Mr. Harris some time since purchased of F. M. Tungate through Mr. Norris' real estate agency. Mr. Harris, who is a recent arrival from Reed City, Michigan, is occupying with his wife and three children a house on Sixth and D streets belonging to the Karewski estate, and will not move to his farm until in the fall, as Mr. Tungate has the use for this season at close of which he will move to another piece of land that he lately bought on Butte creek.

Jesse Huggins has sold his ranch of 70 acres on Jackson creek to John Haught, who recently moved to this place from Medford. Mr. Huggins had 10 acres cleared and a comfortable home on his place, but he became tired of living alone out in the country and will hereafter reside in Jacksonville. Mr. Huggins is a Southern Oregon pioneer veteran of the Civil War, he serving during the latter in the First Oregon Infantry, being stationed most of the time at Fort Klamath. Mr. Haught will at once take possession and will move his family to his farm on Saturday of this week.

Miller at the Postoffice hardware store carries all kinds of miners tools and supplies and his supplies and prices are right.

Arthur Baxter, one of the proprietors of the No Percentage Drug Company, the largest retail drug store in San Francisco, arrived in Jacksonville Wednesday for his annual outing in Southern Oregon. Mr. Baxter was formerly a traveling man for a wholesale drug house and made Southern Oregon on his circuit gaining here many friends who are glad to greet him. While in Jacksonville he is the guest of Henry Orth, Next Tuesday Mr. Baxter, Harry Luy and Robert Armstrong will go to Cinnabar Springs where they will spend a month enjoying the many pleasures at that mountain resort.

Lost, a brooch pin with enameled setting in Jacksonville on the Fourth. Finder leave at the Sstninel office and receive reward.

Dr. J. F. Reddy, who holds the bond on the copper claims belonging to the Blue Ledge Copper Company, and which he has turned over to Patsy Clark, and Greene Adams, manager of the Blue Ledge Copper Company left last Thursday for Crescent City. As to the object of their visit that is not made public but it is certainly not for an outing by the sad sea waves, and it is probable that more serious business is the incentive that takes them to the Coast. As Mr. Hamilton, Cooper and McVeigh, the other owners with Mr. Adams in the Blue Ledge, reside at Crescent City and Smith River it is probable that a deal is on the tapis whereby Patrick Clark will become the owner of the famous Blue Ledge. Mr. Clark is at present in San Francisco vicinity and the next steamer from Crescent City may bring him good news.

Three buggies and two wagons for sale. Wagons almost new, buggies in firstclass repair. At Geo. N. Lewis, livery stable, Jacksonville.

Jay Wade, the cigar manufacturer from Saginaw, Michigan, who recently located with his family in Jacksonville is so well pleased with the town and the business outlook of the place that he has decided to open a cigar factory here. For the present he has rented a room adjoining Hicckel's Jewelry shop and he is now fitting it up for his use. Wednesday he had a shipment of tobacco arrive from the East and so soon as his bonds have been approved and his license issued by the United States revenue departement he will begin work, which he expects will be the first of next week. Mr. Wade is a cigar maker of several years experience and a young man who impresses one as having the industry and business ability to make his venture a success. He conducted a small factory in the East and built up a nice trade, but the larger business possibilities of the West attracted him to Oregon. Mr. Wade proposes to make a cigar that will meet with the approval of smokers and be a salable article with the trade. He does not ask patronage for his factory on philanthropic grounds, but he does expect that those handling cigars in Jacksonville will give his cigars a trial, the selling being left to the merits of the cigars, and on that score he has no fears for he intends to make an article equal to the best on the market. So soon as he gets his factory well established Mr. Wade will employ a traveling man and have his goods introduced to the trade of Southern Oregon and other points.
