GREETING.

With this issue the Sentinel begins business in Jacksonville under a new management. Mr. Charles Meserve, who for the past year and a half has been the editor of the paper has severed his connection with it and is leaving Jacksonville permanently. During his proprietorship of the Sentinel Mr. Meserve has been a hard worker and we regret that he is leaving. It will be the policy of the Sentinel, while it continues under the present management, to be fair and courteous to everyone and to strive to do whatever is honorable for the upbuilding of Jacksonville and vicinity. We all appreciate, however, that a newspaper cannot be a success in any community without the co-operation of the citizens and the business men. We sincerely hope that we are beginning with the good will of all, as we are with malice towards none. We shall at all times try to merit the public confidence and support of the good people of Jacksonville and vicinity and whatever success we attain will be due largely to their co-operation with us. The columns of the paper will at all times be open for whatever tends to the advancement of this community and with the good will and support of the people of Jacksonville the Sentinel ought to be able to materially assist in the upbuilding of the business interests of the town.

LEE W. HENRY,
Editor and Manager.

A county boundary war is on the tapis to be fought out in the next session of the legislature, with Lane and Douglas counties as the contestants. The territory involved is the Bohemia mining district most of which is in Douglas county and as Lane county and the citizens of Cottage Grove have built the only road connecting this district with the outside world that county now wants to annex the district and get the benefit of the taxable property that it now contains, basing their claim on the fact that Douglas county has done nothing to create this wealth, and consequently is not entitled to it. The Cottage Grove commercial club is at the head of this annexation scheme and plan to secure a petition from the Bohemia people to present to the legislature in support of the proposed change in the county boundary. The Roseburg Plaindealer takes Douglas county and Roseburg to task for not bestirring themselves to save this territory by building a road to connect the district with the county seat, alleging that there is a good route and no greater distance from Roseburg to the mines than from Cottage Grove, which latter town has largely been built up by the trade had from the Bohemia district. The Plaindealer in its arrangement of the citizens of Douglas county for their complacent indifference to the loss of their territory remind them of the fact that Lane county at the legislature two years ago secured a large strip from the north-west part of Douglas county and encouraged by their success now want to take a larger section from the north-east part of the county.

The Oregon homestead exemption law which was passed by the legislature at the session of 1893, which exempts the family home from attachment and sale for any debt except that secured by a mortgage on the property itself has been decided by Judge M. C. George, of Portland, in a case tried before him in the circuit court for Multnomah county not to apply to mechanic's liens and that the property can be sold under execution for debts incurred for material and labor in placing improvements upon the land. After reviewing numerous decisions of courts in other states on this point Judge George said: "The theory of the mechanic's lien law is that, if an owner allows a contractor to build or repair a house on the owner's ground, to be and become a part of the realty, the owner cannot hold the material thereof or labor thereon for the owner's benefit to the realty, unless the material man or laborer is paid for the benefit rendered. This is equity; and the homestead law ought not to be permitted, in equity, to overturn this principal, and thus permit the homestead land to be benefitted, something for nothing, unless the homestead law clearly means it."

The hotel accommodations of Astoria having been for several years past inadequate to the needs of that growing city, and after futile efforts to get some outside capitalist to come and build them a hotel, the business men, through their chamber of commerce, have taken hold of the matter and have organized a company with a capital stock of $125,000 and will undertake the building of a hotel themselves. A thorough canvass of the city is being made for subscriptions to the stock and the committee having the work in hand are having such success that they feel confident that they will be able to place the the entire amount of the stock with residents of their city. It is planned to have work begun on the hotel at an early date and to have it completed early next summer in time for the tourist travel that will be created by the Lewis & Clark fair. Astoria is taking the practical, certain way to secure a hotel, for towns that wait for an outsider to come and build them a hotel usually have about as unlimited a wait as does an individual who sits down complacently and waits for others to help him.

The Sentinel this week is largely the production of the former management owing to the fact that the change in the management did not take place until Saturday afternoon after a large part of the paper was already printed.
