

CAMPAIGN NOW ON

Accounts of Immense Political Gatherings and Barbacues in the East Calls Attention to the Fact That It Is Very Quiet Here For a Presidential Year.

BIG RALLY AT ATLANTA, ILLINOIS

The little interest that is being manifested in the presidential campaign here in Oregon is in marked contrast to the strenuous time that is now on in the Eastern states, where the great parties are contending for the vote of the doubtful states. A recent copy of the Atlanta, Illinois, Argus, given to the Sentinel by C. W. Conklin, who was a former resident of Atlanta, tells of preparations for a Republican rally that was to be held in that place on October 21. Speaking was to be carried on during both forenoon and afternoon by leading orators and Republican candidates of the state and the business houses were to close during the hours of the exercises. Four bands and three glee clubs were to stir the patriotism of the crowd, which was expected to number 20,000 and a silk flag was to be given to the largest visiting delegation. While Atlanta has a population of but 1800, yet the public spirited citizens of that place prepared a barbecue dinner for the multitude attending the rally. Twelve beeves, 100 bushels of sweet and Irish potatoes, 20,000 or more buns, cheese, pickles, etc. were to be served by an army of waiters to the great host as it marched past the great kitchen in double column, the food being served on wooden plates of which 20,000 were bought for the occasion. This is where the voter is made glad with speech, music and eatables and drinkables.

Leader of Women's Papers.

The November number of "The Twentieth Century Home" is a superbly illustrated magazine and its contents, for interest and variety, are on a par with the artistic side of this new and popular periodical. Some prominent features are "Some Fancy-Dress Balls in London," "Electricity as an Aid to Housekeeping," "Women Who Toil," and "The Homes of George Elliot." This is not taking into account the fiction, which includes a charmingly illustrated story by Florence Wilkinson entitled "The Gipsy Queen," as well as stories by Howard Markle Hoke, Tom Masson and Harriott Prescott Spofford. "The Twentieth Century Home" is primarily a magazine for women with large interests in life, who endeavor to make something of themselves, and therefore it gives considerable attention to means of commercial activity within and outside the home. This month we note at least four articles of this nature, "Why Women Fail in Business," by Elizabeth M. Gilmer; "Is Work Inimical to Beauty?" by Mrs. Wilson Woodrow; "Artistic Bookbinding for Women," and "A Woman's Farm." The desire of every woman for personal details is gratified by sketches of Mr. and Mrs. William Faversham in their Surrey home, and Julia Cooley, the extraordinary child-poet, now only eleven years of age, but already occupying a place on library shelves. Richard Le Gallienne has written a very sympathetic and appreciative account of her personality and work, while Elia W. Peattie does the same for Rose Cecil O'Neill, the popular illustrator. The useful and home-helping departments are up to their usual high standard.

Coos Bay Country Prosperous.

W. M. Colvig returned Monday from Coos county where he and Hon. George Colvig, of Grants Pass, had been to address Republican rallies in Marshfield, North Bend and other towns in that county. Mr. Colvig reports the Coos Bay section very prosperous and that not a man is idle who will work and that wages are good. When at North Bend Mr. Colvig was at the home of his daughter and son-in-law Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Gale. Mrs. Gale is well pleased with her new home and the Doctor has this soon secured a practice that fully occupies his time and which is quite profitable. North Bend, Mr. Colvig states, is making a rapid and substantial growth as is also Marshfield three miles up the bay and he thinks the time is not distant when the two towns will grow together and be a city of 10,000 or more people. There is much railroad talk and the Coos Bay towns expect, in the near future, to have railroad connection with the Southern Pacific at Drain or at Roseburg.
