FRIDAY, JANUARY 27, 1905.

The Oregon delegation at Washington has recommended the reappointment of Postmaster C. J. Howard, at Cottage Grove. Mr. Howard, who, by the way was a former partner of the writer's in the publication of the "Bohemia Nugget", of that place, is a good fellow and makes a good official.

That $10,000 libel case against the Roseburg Plaindealer was tried the first of the week, and the jury, after deliberating a few hours, returned a verdict for the defendant. The people generally, in this country, favor free speech and free press. The plaintiff gets to pay the costs of the trial in this case and gets the benefit of the experience.

The selection of Hon. W. I. Vawter as chairman of the Ways and Means committee of the house by Speaker Millis is one that will meet the approval of the people of Oregon says the Medford Mail. This is the most important committee of legislative bodies and its chairmanship is considered an honor only second to that of the speakership itself. Mr. Vawter, by training and experience and natural ability, is fully capable of discharging the important duties of the chairmanship of this committee, and his appointment is a fitting recognition of his ability and public services.

One of the best country weeklies in the state of Oregon is the Hood River Glacier a seven-column quarto, all home print. It is the only paper in a hustling town of 1500, located on the south bank of the mighty Columbia, in the heart of one of the best fruit sections in the world. The writer visited Hood River during the strawberry season this last summer and was much impressed with the little city and the rich region which surrounds it. He was also favorably impressed with the Glacier and its possibilities with the development of that section and the growth of the little city. We see by the last issue of that interesting paper that their increased business has made necessary the installation of a $1,500 Simplex typesetting machine.

TO PUNISH WIFE-BEATERS.

There is considerable interest just at the present time, all over the country, over the problem of how to punish the wife-beater in a manner that will put a stop to the crime and at the same time do no injury to the innocent family of the offending brute. The trouble with fines and imprisonment has been that they proved a worse punishment for the family than for the offender, besides they failed to put a stop to the crime. It has been recommended by President Roosevelt in a recent message, also by Governor

Chamberlain in his recent message, that the whipping post be provided for this class of offenders, and in view of these recommendations a bill has been introduced into the state legislature providing for this mode of punishment. That the bill will pass and become a law is almost a certainty. As to the merits of the measure there is a difference of opinion. The whipping post has become obsolete but it was very effective when it was in vogue. It is to be regretted that extreme measures have to be often resorted to to cure the ills of society but this seems to be a law that is really needed at the present time. The Astorian, commenting on the proposed law says: "Any man that will strike a woman is a brute. There is no punishment on the statute books of Oregon for this class of criminals. Complaints have been made by wives against their husbands for assault and battery, and in many cases when the case has come on for trial, these same wives appeal to the judge not to prosecute their husbands, and the cases are dropped, only to be repeated again. Women suffer the tortures of the damned on account of their children. It is not only for the protection of these women, but of society that such a law becomes a necessity. The law is very stringent. It provides that when a man beats his wife he shall be arrested and shall receive 40 lashes on his bare back, or be imprisoned in the penitentiary. One dose of this kind of legal medicine will probably be sufficient for the most brutal husband, and if it will break up the practice of wife-beating the sooner it is enacted into a law the better for the state. Some men claim that a wife should be treated the same as a dog. That they must be whipped occasionally so as to know their places. It is this class of reprobates who the law is intended to reach, and if it is carried out in its full measure it will be efficacious and give the wives of these men some rights that their husbands are bound to respect. If a man cannot live happily with his wife; she whom he has sworn to honor and love, who has shared his sorrows and ministered to his wants, the mother of his children for whom she has denied herself pleasures and even the necessities of life, without cruelly beating her, then he should leave her, provide for her support, or suffer the extreme penalty of the law—the whipping post."

Of Waverly, Texas, writes: "Of a morning, when first arising, I often find a troublesome collection of phlegm which produces a cough and is very hard to dislodge; but a small quantity of Ballard's Horehound Syrup will at once dislodge it, and the trouble is over. I know of no medicine that is equal to it, and it is so pleasant to take. I can most cordially recommend it to all persons needing a medicine for throat or lung trouble." Sold by City Drug Store.
