FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1908.

Thomas L. Lewis, of Bridgeport, O., was elected president of the United Mine Workers of America at the closing session of the annual convention.

The farmer and the backwoodsman have grown popular of late. His health, his wife's health, and the welfare of every member of his household are matters of especial interest to the many candidates.

Public opinion has been prompt and efficient in the correction of commercial evils when stated specifically. This is one of the conclusions reached by Herbert Knox Smith, Commissioner of Corporations, as expressed in the annual report of the operations of the Bureau of Corporations.

The submission of 19 measures under the initiative and referendum will cost the state of Oregon approximately $15,000, or one-fourth as much as a legislative session. This does not include the cost of printing and circulating the original petitions, which expense was borne by those citizens who were particularly interested in the measures. The total expense cannot be accurately stated at this time, but the chief items can be roughly estimated.

This is the time of the year when many of the progressive cities begin to make arrangements to hold market days each week to draw the country trade into the city. This would be a good move for the business men of Klamath Falls. Special attractions could be arranged for the entertainment of visitors and a reduction sale by the merchants on one day of each week would induce the farmers to come in. The amount of goods sold would warrant the merchants in selling on a very small margin on those days.

The Schuebel case is drawing to a close. The program is all arranged and, if Mr. Schuebel gracefully carries out the part assigned him and asks that his nomination be withdrawn, the fight in the delegation will terminate and steps will be taken to select another man for the office still held by C. W. Bristol. Mr. Schuebel appears to be reluctant about relinquishing the office for which he was nominated, for not only was his heart set on becoming District Attorney, but, because of the assurances given him by Senator Bourne, he was cocksure of being confirmed.

Jasper County has been noted for the high grade of eloquence produced by the public men of that part of Mississippi. An appeal, to the "mighty men of Jasper" made by one of that country's great men when a candidate to the voters who elected him, is as follows: "Mighty men of Jasper, if I can be instrumental in the hands of my people in adding a few jewels to those that now shine in imperishable luster on the queenly brow of our proud commonwealth, whose associated radiance, like the lambent beauty of the star, is to guide the footsteps of her children along the paths of peace and prosperity, security and happiness, I shall then have accomplished the ambition of my life."
