Attractive Social Features.

The social side of life in the capital in the winter is of course one of its most attractive features, and to enjoy this alone thousands annually come within its hospitable gates. It must not be supposed, however, that the full enjoyment of this phase of our life is limited to the higher official circles nor to the very wealthy, for there are many smaller circles within the great round of festivities which mark the season from beginning to end in which all may participate, and perhaps this is one of the many reasons why the visitor has had such a "good time" when he returns home to tell about it.

Double Eagles Changed.

Changes have been made in the new Saint Gaudens double eagle, the coinage of which has been resumed. The coins are somewhat modified from the first lot of 8,000 coined, which are now commanding a premium. These modifications principally consist of the elimination of the much discussed sharp edge, which made the gold pieces hard to stack; the substitution of figures for the Roman numerals; and a slight lowering of the relief work.

Because of the large demand for the Saint Gaudens goldpiece the sub-treasurer has already placed an order with the mint for a supply. It is probable that a limit will be placed on the number of the coins to be allotted to banks and individuals.

An Ancient Lumberman.

"I tell you that Maine and New Brunswick have taught the rest of the world all that is known about the conduct of lumbering operations. I ought to know what I am talking about. I have been a lumberman for sixty-seven years. I learned what I know about it from people in Maine and New Brunswick."

This was Senator Isaac Stephenson's comment about the country he came from as he indulged in some eastern reminiscences the other day at the capitol. He is now nearing the eightieth milestone and is one of the oldest men in the senate, but is as straight as any pine ever cut from his lumber domain. He likes being back again in Washington, where he once served six years as a representative in the house from Wisconsin, and is getting acquainted with many people from New England, where he used to live.

CARL SCHOFIELD.

"He's one of your milk and water fellows, that chap Streeter."

"You surprise me! He seems such a rugged character."

"Understand me. I mean that when he takes a property to finance he milks it first and then waters it."—Puck.

No Money Advanced.

"For 3 cents I'd knock your block off!" said the angry man.

"Well, you don't expect me to furnish your working capital, do you?" responded the other and calmer one.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Unusual.

"We took the baby to the photographer's a week or two ago and such a queer accident happened."

"What was it?"

"We got a picture of him."—Chicago Tribune.

Wisdom of the Bear.

Young Lady—Will the young man I am engaged to make a good husband?

Following Instructions.

"Mr. Whittlesy," said the city editor to the new reporter, "there's to be a meeting of the trustees at the public library building this evening at 8 o'clock. You may go and cover it. Make a story of about 400 words out of it."

The new reporter went away on his assignment, and the chief of the local department turned again to his desk, made an entry in the assignment book that lay before him and dismissed the matter from his mind. About 11 o'clock, however, he suddenly called out:

"Where's Whittlesy?"

"Here, sir," answered that young man, coming forward.

"I sent you to a board meeting at the public library. Where's your story?"

"It isn't quite finished yet. You told me to make 400 words of it, and I've got only a little over 300 so far."

"What did they do?"

"They met, called the roll and adjourned until next Tuesday evening."—Youth's Companion.

Sand Pit Aboard Ship.

A sand pit has been provided on one of the Canadian transatlantic liners for the amusement of the children of emigrants on board. In rough weather, says Popular Mechanics, the children have the pleasure of being tumbled about in the sand, where formerly they were compelled to stay quiet for fear of being bumped against the hard steel decks and partitions of the ship.

Dr. D. P. Luckey, state veterinarian of Missouri, says that before long the leaves and stems of alfalfa will be ground into meal and bread made from it. Meal from the seed of the grass would, he says, be too rich for the stomach.

Holland has set engineers to work to pump the water out of the famous Zuyder Zee and turn it into 1,400 acres of dry land. When this work is accomplished there will rise where 4,000 fishermen now sink their nets farms and homes for 50,000 Dutchmen.

An enterprising south London firm sent out a number of dogs fitted with "boards" on their backs advertising their wares. The canine "sandwichmen" had the boards strapped on their backs, and they marched along the gutters in single file, like the orthodox boardmen.

Two Indian girls, not yet fourteen years old, were sold to the highest bidder in the open market at Alport Bay recently. Two hundred pounds cash was paid for the girl who was first sold. The second who was put up to barter was sold for fifty pounds in dirty blankets.

Mr. Singer of sewing machine fame recently paid $20,000 for a pair of opera glasses. The lenses are, of course, the best obtainable, but it was the fact that the "glasses" were of solid gold, surrounded by a lyre incrustated with diamonds and sapphires, that accounted for the price.

Donald McLean of Warsaw, Canada, a baggage player, says he was surrounded by wolves on returning to his camp after hunting, and seeing that his rifle would be useless against so many animals, he played his baggage several hours, walking around a tree, and the wolves gradually left him.

James F. Barker, head of the Cleveland Manual Training school, declares that boys make better cooks than girls. Mr. Barker says that the male cook has a better temper. He is not so liable to throw pans about and break dishes, and it is a known fact, he alleges, that men are more scientific.

Paris has a shop for the sale of the hair of famous people. Every lock is guaranteed genuine, and no less than $20 is requested for a mere snippet from the head of the great Napoleon. The hair of certain popes rules steady at about $10 a lock, but it is possible to secure a wisp from the hair of the czar or the kaiser for as little as a dollar.

French juries are getting tired of passing on resolutions in favor of capital punishment being maintained and then seeing the president commute the death sentence with clockwork regularity. They have now carried the war into the enemy's camp. A Paris jury has passed a resolution asking that steps be taken to curtail the president's power to pardon so that the jury's severity may not be neutralized by the chief of state.

King Edward's interest in the welfare of the men employed on his estate has again been shown by his action in having the Bull Inn at Sherrinbourne, which stands on the Sandringham estate, converted into a club for the laboring men of the parish. The rooms are well stocked with games and various amusements. Captain Frank Beck, the king's agent, has been elected president of the club. This is the second club the king has provided for his employees at Sandringham.
