FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1908.

No Shirker. The Ute brave had been informed that he must go to work. "Tell the great father at Washington," he responded, "I'm a keep ready. Like work."

"What kind of work?" asked the agent, much encouraged. "Chase um buffalo," responded the warrior, drawing his government blanket around him.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Italian Rules of the Road. In Italy every town of a few thousand inhabitants has its own rules of the road, and it behooves the automobilist to find out whether in the particular communities through which he is to pass he is to turn out to the left or to the right. If he does not do this, says the Travel Magazine, he must not blame the inhabitants for following in this respect their own time honored custom.

The Fable and the Truth. "You need not be so critical," said the person accused. "You say I have a vinegary disposition, but every one knows you have one too."

"I acknowledge it," returns the accused, "but mine is a genuine pure cider vinegar disposition, while yours is the commercial compound of sulphuric acid and water."—Kansas City Independent.

Mule and Mornie. That mule in itself is or can be immortal in absurd, notwithstanding the assertions of Tolstol and other writers. The total art is, of course, one that plays upon the emotions and one that therefore may in certain individual cases excite the nervous system to a high pitch of intensity, but it is too indolent in character ever to depict or even to suggest immortality.—Musical News.

Whistler, the Egg and the Amateur. A young artist had brought that erratic genius, Whistler, to view his maiden effort. The two stood before the canvas for some moments in silence. Finally the young man asked timidly, "Don't you think this painting of mine is a—er—a tolerable picture, sir?"

Mr. Whistler's eyes twinkled. "What is your opinion of a tolerable egg?" he asked.—Harper's.

Finland's Practical Patriotism. Patriotism takes a practical form in Finland. The people are sober, thrifty, hardworking and in deeply earnest over all that concerns their country. From earliest years the children are taught to be patriotic; it is one with their growth, included with their lessons, learned in the home circle until the boys and girls of Finland become in their manly sturdy citizens with their country's weal at heart.—Exchange.

Mr. Billings-Bay, Maria, what have you got that old photograph of me out on the mantel for? Heavens and earth, that don't look anything at all like me now. Mr. Billings—I know it, Henry, but I ran across it up in the attic yesterday and thought I'd like to have it around where I could see once in awhile, what you used to look like when you studied.—Exchange.

Disputed. Small Boy—Say, mister, dere's a sign in yore window readin' "Boy Wanted." Wet kind uv a boy does youse mean? Merchant—A nice quiet boy that doesn't use naughty words, smoke cigarettes, whistle around the office, play tricks or get into mischief. Small Boy—Gwan! Youse don't want no boy; youse wants a girl. See?—Chicago News.

The Fool at the Station. A man stepped up to the counter in the ticket office of the Colorado Midland railway the other afternoon and said: "What time can a man go to Glenwood?" "At 7:30 o'clock tonight," replied the ticket seller. "Thanks," said the man. At this point a woman, who had been standing back a short distance waiting her turn to ask some questions, stepped up. "Can a woman go at that time, too?" she asked seriously.—Denver Post.

Rebels For Funerals. A French friend of mine who has been staying in Glasgow for a short time is amazed, not to say shocked, at the indifference of the crowd during the passing of a funeral. They do things differently in France. Even in the crowded streets of Paris every one lifts his hat or cap at the sight of a funeral; in many cases the gentleman stands bareheaded all the way he has died just slowly. My French friend assured me that in some parts of his country one would run the risk of almost being assaulted if the obsequies were neglected.—Glasgow News.

PUBLICITY THE PRICE OF SUCCESS

There is a right way to do things. There is a large amount of profitable business to be secured by the right kind of advertising without increasing the fixed expenses.

The advertiser, in the preparation of copy, must consider what will appeal to the interest from the reader's or the customer's point of view. It will not do simply to put down what seems to the advertiser to be interesting, without putting it to the test of whether it will be so to the public as well. It must contain information that the public would either like to get at, or which they could be interested in by a suggestion in the shape of a good striking headline. What the public are after principally is the goods at right prices, so that good descriptions should be included in nearly every ad.

Prices are invariably of interest to the customer, and, whether the method is reliable or not, form one of the principal means of judging of the desirability of the goods.

MILLS ADDITION LOTS are Advancing in Value

When blocks in Mills Addition were offered at bargain prices a number of shrewd investors bought; since that time values have increased materially.

These Lots are Bargain Buys at present prices, and there is every reason to anticipate an advance in prices. Remember these lots are FIFTY feet in width and ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY FEET deep—more than double the area of most town lots offered to investors.
