A Cure of Leprosy

After characterizing Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy as a woman who spread infamous stories of cures by Christian Science healing which has never been accomplished, at the state house before the committee on public health, yesterday morning, and challenging Alfred Farlow, the church's publicity agent, to produce the name of a leper he had claimed had been healed by Christian treatment. Attorney F. W. Peabody, of the opposition, was nonplussed at the afternoon session, when following a second dare, much to his discomfort, Mr. Farlow arose and named the cured party as Dr. G. W. Barrett, a physician of St. Louis, Mo.

Closely following the producing of the name, W. A. Morse, representing the Christian Scientists, rose to his feet, and addressing Mr. Peabody, asked him if he would now withdraw his bills, as he had agreed to do if the name was produced.

"Good God man!" was all Peabody could say.

Following the hearing Mr. Farlow telegraphed to St. Louis and received a prompt response. Both telegrams follow:

George W. Barrett, 5260A South Grand Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.—Do you still claim that you have been healed of leprosy by Christian Science? Give date of healing. Wire immediately.

Alfred Farlow.

St. Louis, Mo., March 3rd, 1908—Alfred Farlow, Berkeley Building, Boston: [illegible] W. Barrett.

Sensation followed sensation all through the day and hundreds of the Christian Science followers packed room 249 and applauded the defenders of the science healing.

The whole affair centered on three bills dealing with Christian Science, namely, House Bill 910, which provides that Christian Scientists need not be registered or examined, providing they receive no pay for their services as healers; House Bill 1065, requiring parents and guardians to furnish medical attendance to sick children in their care, and House Bill 1066, on certifying causes of death by physicians not regular attendants previously.

Representing the Christian Science Church were former Governor John L. Bates, Samuel B. Elder and William A. Morse, while Dr. E. E. Harvey, secretary of the State Board of Registration of Medicine, together with Frank W. Thayer and Attorney Peabody, the petitioners of the bills, were the opposing party.

At the opening of the morning session Frederick W. Peabody said he appeared in favor of the bill requiring medical attendance for children. He offered to give some of his time to Mr. Farlow if he would authenticate some of the stories about cures of leprosy which he has told of over his own name.

"If Mrs. Eddy or her secretary, Alfred Farlow, or any other believer in the Christian Science faith will show me one specific instance of an organic disease cured by their treatment I will withdrew my bill and join them tomorrow," thundered Mr. Peabody, and undaunted he continued on bitterly arraigning Christian Science methods.

It was near the end of the afternoon session, following a masterful plea of Ex-Governor John L. Bates in behalf of the healers, that Mr. Peabody took up his rebuttal and once more he hurled a challenge at Mr. Farlow to produce the name of the cured leper.

"We can tell it!" interrupted Mr. Bates, and at his request Mr. Farlow rose and read the name of Dr. George W. Barrett, of St. Louis, Mo.—Boston Journal.
