OUR FUTURE

The saloon question has been settled in Klamath County. The people have shown by their votes that they want the saloons to go, and this decision should be allowed to be made permanent. The sooner we make up our minds to accept the decision of the majority and realize that the liquor business is a thing of the past, the better it will be for our town and county.

There is nothing to be accomplished by those of us who were opposed to prohibition continuing the fight or venting our disappointment in words of criticism. The only thing for everyone, who intends to continue to identify themselves with the future of Klamath County, to do is to say they like it and get in and make it a success. The future of the county is of greater importance than the proving of a personal belief.

If the county does not continue to forge ahead, the people themselves will be responsible and not prohibition. Everyone should make up their minds that the liquor business is dead, and should unite in an effort to keep it dead. The curse of the dry town is the blind pig or the illegal liquor traffic. This must not occur here. Let everyone, who has the good of the country at heart, consider himself a personal agent in stamping out this too common evil of "dry towns." It can be done if the people act with the same decision which they did at election.

Those who are the most greatly damaged by the result of the election are the saloonmen, who have lived here since the town was a village and have invested all they have in their business and city property, and now find themselves almost financially ruined. Their business is gone and their property depreciated in value. This is to be regretted but it is one of those things that cannot be helped. We sincerely believe conditions will adjust themselves so that these men will not suffer the serious loss, which was at first anticipated.

There is no truth in the assertion that a dry town or country will retard our development. An agricultural country such as ours, must depend almost entirely for its growth upon the settlement of the farming districts. With a family on every forty acres, we will find there will be sufficient business houses in the towns to supply this trade. It does not make any difference to the man of family looking for a home, whether there are saloons or not. If it does, it would probably be in favor of the dry town. It is true that prohibition may discourage the speculator, but it is homebuilders that Klamath county needs most, not speculators.

THE KLAMATH COUNTRY

Business houses will not refuse to locate here if there is trade to be supplied. It is just as profitable for a factory to operate in a dry town as any other. With the completion of the railroad, lumbermen and sawmill men will be just as willing to operate here as before, and we wish to repeat that the future prosperity of Klamath County depends entirely on the action of the people. If the minority nurse their disappointment, they can kill this country for a time, but if they convince themselves that this is the best country in the United States and decide to remain here and help convince others, the coming years will see an era of prosperity which was never before dreamed of.

Our advice to those who cannot reconcile themselves to the conditions of a dry town, is to go somewhere else. We say this with all due consideration for the rights and privileges of these individuals, for we are convinced that it is not only for the best interests of this country but for their own personal good.

Again we would impress upon our readers that this question has been settled for once and all and let it never be agitated again. The people of this county have shown that they want prohibition, and the Herald favors the wishes of the majority, and as long as the paper is under the present management it will oppose any future agitation of this subject.
