KLAMATH FALLS, SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 20, 1908

A USE FOR BREWERIES

Some of the breweries of the state are seriously considering using the ir plants, after July 1st, for manufacturing denatured alcohol. The Grants Pass brewery is the first of these institutions which it is reported is to be converted into a denatured alcohol plant. Klamath Falls has a brewery which is advertised for sale at sixty cents on the dollar, and it might be a good investment for some one, who desires to engage in a good paying legitimate business.

Since the "De-natured Act" was passed by Congress, alcohol has leaped into fame, not merely as the humble servant of the pocket lamp, nor as the demon rum, but as a substitute for all the various forms of cheap hydrocarbon fuels, and as a new farm product, a new means of turning the farmer's grain, fruit, potatoes, etc., into that greatest of all powers, money.

The common form of alcohol known as "denatured spirits" consists of alcohol to which one-tenth of its volume of wood alcohol, or other denaturizing agents has been added, for the purpose of rendering the mixture undrinkable. Being sold tax free, it may be applied to a variety of uses, which from its greater cost, duty-paid spirit is commercially inapplicable.

As an illuminent the untaxed alcohol is bound to introduce some interesting as well as novel conditions. The general estimate of the value of alcohol for lighting gives it about double the power of kerosene, a gallon of alcohol as two gallons of the oil. Gasoline motors of automobiles are being adapted to alcohol fuel, with the result that a cheap power is obtained without the objecionable odor.

The use of denatured alcohol as a fuel has not yet been fully developed. Although alcohol has only about half of the heating power of gasoline, yet it has many valuable properties which may enable it to compete successfully in spite of its lower fuel value. In the first place it is very much safer. Although alcohol has far less heating capacity than gasoline, the best experts believe that it will develope a much higher percentage of efficiency in motors than gasoline.

Distilleries have already been established in Washington and other western states and the new industry is spreading. It is predicted that the time is not far distant when the farmer will be able to haul his surplus potatoes beets or grain to his local distillery, and either return with the money in his pocket, or with fuel for farm engines. machinery and perchance his automobile.
