PLANS LARGE HOTEL

Jacobs Advertising for Bids on Structure

LOCATED CORNER 6TH AND MAIN

Building Will Be Three Stories in Height, Modern in Every Respect and Will Be One of the Best in the Southern Part of the State

The erection of a large hotel building owned by L. Jacobs & Co. will mean much to this city. Mr. Jacobs is now advertising in the Portland Oregonian for bids on the building and should a factory one be received it will mean to this city is to have one of the best in the southern part of the state. According to the plans the building is to be built on the corner of Main and Third streets and is to have four fronts on Main street, one to be used for a hotel office and the other three for apartment stores to occupy the corner on the ground floor. The building will be three stories in height and the upper stories will be built for hotel rooms as will also the lower part of the building with the exception of the one to be used for the store.

drawing of the plans for the hotel. If the plans are carried out the building will be a credit to the coming metropolis of Southern Oregon.

New Land Office System

The antiquated methods of keeping records relating to public lands, many of which have been in vogue since the general land office was first organized nearly 100 years ago, are to be superseded by the most approved modern business system. When the changes go into effect the district land offices and the general land office in Washington will be able to identify any application or entry more readily than under the old system. All persons tendering money to the receivers at the land office will in the future be given a receipt for such moneys. Each district land office is to be furnished with modern office supplies.

Shrine for Ashland

Word has been received in Ashland that the petition asking for the consent of Alkader Temple for the establishment of a temple of the order at Ashland, to be known as Hillah, has been granted.

A committee of Portland Shriners will confer with officers of the new temple as to the jurisdiction of the latter, which may include all Southern Oregon south of Eugene and portions of South-eastern Oregon.

Just when the new Shrine will be instituted cannot be told but it will be in the fall perhaps. Anyway it will be quite an occasion and will call for a pilgrimage of the Shriners from Portland to Ashland.

M. L. Burns returned to Dorris this morning after spending a few days in the city attending to business matters.

First Place in Ball Tournament Won By Locals

Once more Klamath is a winner. The base ball team sent to Lakeview succeeded in taking first money in the long drawn tournament and the boys, with colors flying and $900 in their pockets, are now on their way to Klamath Falls, having left Lakeview this noon. Yesterday's game in which the local team beat Silver Lake concluded the tournament in so far as first money was concerned. Klamath Falls team lost but one game during the entire tournament. The boys were easy winners in all other games. It is not known who is the winner of second money, but it will likely be Cedarville for in a game this morning they defeated Silver Lake by the score of 6 to 3.

Travels Over County and Thinks Conditions Better

John Ellis has returned from a trip through the farming district of the Klamath basin, and in speaking of the crop conditions he said:

"Crops might look better and they might look worse. I think we are as well and probably better off than most parts of the Pacific Northwest. The warm weather and the water have caused an astonishing growth and the indications are that the second cutting of alfalfa will be very good. Some of the grain fields do not look well, but others are better than one might expect."

"Farmers are beginning haying in most parts of the county and while the yield will not be extra heavy, the price of hay and also grain will be good this fall so that conditions should improve as the season advances. The price of stock is advancing and I look for a decided improvement in conditions in the next few months."

Mr. Ellis has been going over the country looking up investments and lands for parties from the East whom he expects here later in the season.

Chamber of Commerce Considering More Boosting

Despite the fact that the warm weather is upon us and things are a little quiet the air is still impregnated with the boosting spirit and the directors of the Chamber of Commerce are now considering the advisability of a contract for one year for an advertisement for the Klamath country in the Sunset magazine.

J. B. Scofield, the representative of the magazine, met with the directors yesterday evening to present his proposition and another meeting was arranged for.

"We must wake up and let the world know what we have in the Klamath country," said one of the directors in speaking of the matter of more publicity. "An advertisement in that magazine would help some," he continued, "for at the present time this section is not being advertised in a single large publication and we must get the country before the people if we expect to develop."

Through the Chamber of Commerce this section has received much valuable publicity, the kind that reaches the people who are looking for investments and for homes. In its efforts to boost the organization should have the support of every business man of Klamath Falls and also of every property holder in the Klamath basin.

Veins Opening Up

The development work which was recently resumed at Ashland coal mine property four miles east of Ashland, under the direction of C. A. Simons, is showing up well, and Mr. Simons predicts that when another two hundred feet is reached in the extension of the present shaft, the coal vein will have increased to seven feet in width, as it is now rapidly widening.

A wagon load of coal was in the Fourth of July parade Saturday, but by some oversight there was no label on it, and few realized that such fine looking coal could be a home production.—Ashland Tidings.

Preceded Jackrabbits

L. C. Sisemore and two sons, the third generation of the Sisemores in Oregon, were in Laidlaw Thursday with John Sisemore of Bend. L. C., who lives at Fort Klamath, had not been on this townsite for 15 years, and this fact brought forth reminiscences of pioneer days. M. C. Auberry was the first white man in here, and it is told he came in ahead of the jackrabbits. After pioneer Auberry had planted a few junipers, in came John Sisemore.—Chronicle.

Need the Money

If the city sprinkler is to be kept in operation it is up to the business men of the city to pay for the service. Mayor Stills has shown the proper spirit in starting the wagon and in starting a paper to raise funds for its maintenance. It will cost a trifle more than $100 per month to keep the streets in good condition and popular subscription together with poll tax that will be collected should keep the wagon going throughout the entire Summer.

Expects to Strike "Oil"

Speaking of the oil situation in Crook County, the Journal published at Prineville says: Ben Helfrich was in town recently from Lamonta and states much interest is being taken by the people in his section over the bright prospects of oil being struck by the Marias, Oil Company in their drilling operations on the west slope of Grizzly Mountain. The drill has sunk to a depth of over 80 feet water having been struck, which is strongly impregnated with oil seepage. This is supposed to be certain indication of the presence of oil. When this water is set aside in a pail a skum of oil quickly rises to the surface, and thus encouraged the drilling is rapidly proceeding.

Dr. R. R. Hamilton went to Portland this morning on professional business.

Wrangling Over Reports of Credentials Committee Causes Fate Session—Permanent Organization Not Effected Until This Morning

Dike Nearly Completed

The Adams dredge has gone over the dike for the experimental farm once and is now engaged in going over it a second time. It will be but a few weeks until the reclamation of the farm will be completed and the dredge will then be transferred to the barge now being built on the Upper lake and taken to the Weed ranch in Wood river valley to dig the drainage canal. However, before starting on this canal considerable dredging will be done on Wood river so as to make the stream navigable for the Mazama.

Horses for Cavalry

J. Frank Adams arrived in the city last night from his ranch near Merrill. In speaking of the market for horses he said that there is practically no demand in California and that some of the largest horse dealers of that state were pasturing their stock with the intention of holding it until conditions improved. Mr. Adams has purchased about forty head of horses in this county for a California buyer who is buying stock for the cavalry. The horses were started for the railroad today and will be sent to various Coast points.

Improving the Roads

County Road Commissioner E. S. Phillips in his report to the County Court showed that the steam grader recently purchased by the county is a success in every way. He has been building road at just half the expense that was incurred by the old scraper method and is doing better work. For the past few weeks he has been working the grader on the Bonanza road a few miles from town and on instruction from the court he will continue to work on that road.

R. C. Cowley came in from Langell Valley today with a load of hogs for Meiss & Armand.

Denver, Colo., July 9.—Much of the time yesterday afternoon at the Democratic National Convention was spent in wrangling over the majority and minority reports of the credentials committee and it was not until late in the evening that the report was finally decided upon.

The permanent organization was effected this morning and Senator Clayton, a prominent Southern statesman, was made the permanent chairman of the convention. He made a stirring speech, pointing out to the party the many duties that confronted it and touched briefly upon many of the issues that will form planks in the party platform.

Upon rollcall of the National committeemen from the various states it was found that the Pennsylvania fight had not been settled by the election of Col. James M. Guffy, of the Bryan opposition, for when Pennsylvania responded to the rollcall the place filled by Guffy was declared vacant and will remain so until another committeeman is chosen.

Following the roll call of the National committeemen, the convention adjourned until 7 o'clock this evening, when the committee on resolutions and platform will report.

One noticeable feature of the sessions of the convention has been the fact that whenever the name Bryan is mentioned a demonstration follows showing that he still remains the idolized leader of the Democracy. His forces are in control of the convention and his nomination is apparently a matter of form.

On the Water Wagon

The water wagon is now the slogan for Grants Pass people and J. R. Wells, the sprinkling wagon man, came out this morning with his wagon decorated on both sides with tin cups. Some of the thirsty tried to patronize the public fountain at the railroad but the water is very warm, there being no ice in the cooling tank.

Just in at Winters—A large shipment of records for the Edison phonographs.
