Y. M. C. A. COMING IN EARLY AUGUST

Plans have been completed for the Y. M. C. A. excursion from Portland. According to the arrangements a party of about forty will leave the metropolis on August 7, coming to this city via Dorris. They will be entertained one day in this city and vicinity and the next day will take the boat on the Upper lake to the end of navigation, from where they will walk to Crater Lake, where they will spend the night. The following day they will start for Medford, where they will take the train back to Portland.

The excursionists coming to Klamath on this trip will be a crowd of Portland's best young men and while in this city they should be royally entertained by the local people. They come to Klamath Falls at the invitation of the Chamber of Commerce and a number of private citizens who are acquainted with many of the members of the Portland Y. M. C. A.

TOURISTS VISITING CRATER LAKE PARK

L. H. Stephenson, who is taking views in this section for the Seattle exposition, has just returned from a trip to Wood river valley and to Crater lake. He says that there is still considerable snow between the station of the superintendant and the rim of the lake. It is impossible to get to the lake with a team, but one can make the trip on horseback or on foot. The snow in many places is from ten to twenty feet deep, but the drifts are solid so that it is not dangerous to cross them with horses.

He took a number of views of the lake and thinks he got some very good pictures. The atmosphere was hazy most of the time that he was at the lake, making it impossible to take clear pictures from any distance. Mr. Stephenson was very much pleased with his trip and thinks well of the great wonder as well as the entire north end of the county.

Robbers Still at Large

The two robbers who held up the Yreka-Fort Jones stage a few days since on the mountain road about ten miles from Yreka are still at large and the posse scouring the hills have found no trace of them. It is not known exactly how much loot the highwaymen got but the sum was not large.

Jewelers Close Early

We the undersigned jewelers of Klamath Falls hereby agree to close our places of business each evening at 7 o'clock, except on Saturday.

He Was a Judge.

One of the consuls to Persia during a visit home said at a dinner in Chicago:

"Lady Drummond Wolfe once got permission to visit the late shah's harem. She took a friend with her who was about to be married. The two Englishwomen wandered over the palace, and presently the shah encountered them.

"Come here," he said to Miss Blank in his crude French.

"You are about to be married?" he said.

"Yes, your highness."

"It's late!"—Boston Post.

Not in His Line.

"They tell me," said the new reporter, who was doing an interview, "that you have succeeded in forging your way to the front."

Judicial Ignorance.

"Did the clock stop when you dashed it down cellar?" asked the police judge of the man who was charged with being disorderly.

"Of course it stopped. Did you suppose it went through to China?"

BRIEF MENTION

Merrill. Pro. city is reasonable.

Clay Taylor went to Ashland this morning.

Did you see those 10c straw hats at the Deal?

Deputy Sheriff R. E. Gutteridge had the misfortune to step on an open knife, causing a severe cut in the bottom of his foot.

For general house cleaning and chimney sweeping sweeping call on Webb & Mongold. Phone 395.

Winters has a complete line of Edison phonographs and all of the latest records.

The home of J. L. Bateman in East Klamath Falls is in quarantine for scarlet fever, his oldest boy being down with the disease.

The Deal has the cheapest camping outfit in town.

For the best rig in town call at the Mammoth Stables. H. W. Straw, Proprietor.

Mrs. J. L. Bateman is still suffering from an attack of inflammatory rheumatism and as soon as her condition improves she will go to the Coast with the hope that the change in climate will improve her condition.

Call and hear the July list of Edison records at Muller's, cor. 6th and Main.

We can supply you with any kind of furniture and house furnishings. Virgil & Son, at the bridge on Main street.

At the session of the county court this morning it was decided to allow the Summer music school the use of the assembly room of the high school on the opening evening. The court considered the advisability of renting the building to the school, but upon investigation found that it had no authority to do so.

Merrill. The town without a boom.

Every singer and everyone who has a fair voice, and those who are interested in music ought to attend the Summer Music School.

G. W. White, president of the First National Bank, returned last night from an extended visit at Portland.

Just in at Winters—A large shipment of records for the Edison phonographs.

The Klamath Falls baseball team will arrive home tomorrow. Tonight they will be at Bonanza. The boys should be tendered a rousing reception upon their arrival in this city.

The first load of freight to be delivered by the McIntire Company at Leeter's landing will arrive in the city tonight. All freight is now brought to the landing where it is transferred to the barges and sorted so that it can be delivered to the consignees as soon as it reaches this city. There being no depot at Dorris all freight is loaded from the cars on to the wagons, making it impossible to sort it at that place.

In the Drinking Days.

A once well known individual who had lived every day of his life and gained from it a great experience left the following advice—and little else—to his sons: "Drink slow; do not mix your liquor; never sit with your backs to the fire." It was an excellent precept for the era in which it was given—the times when the dining room door was kept locked that there might be no striking the charet and when the only chance at the circuit mess of escaping intoxication was to drop under the table "like the rest," as Lord Cockburn tells us he did, and be quiet—nay, even when our judges resented that discredit should be brought on drinking by misconduct. Everybody drank, and much too much, in those days, but especially the upper classes. A well known politician discharged his coachman for overturning him in his carriage. "I had certainly drunk too much, sir," urged the poor man, "but I was not very drunk, and gentlemen you know, sometimes get drunk." "I don't say you were very drunk for a gentleman," returned his master, "but you were exceedingly drunk for a coachman!"—London Illustrated News

Cage For a Queen Bee.

When a queen bee becomes unproductive through old age, it is necessary for the bee keeper to supply the colony with a new queen. This he does in the following manner: The old queen is removed from the hive and the bees are left alone for about twelve hours or longer, during which time they find out that they are queenless. The new queen is then put into a cage made of wood and wire cloth, with an opening through one end. This opening is filled tight with a mixture of honey and sugar. The cage thus prepared is laid upon the top of the frames in the hive. The bees soon discover the new queen in the cage and set to work upon the honey and sugar. In the live bees recognize friends and strangers by their sense of smell, and a strange queen entering a hive would be very quickly killed by the bees. By the time the queen is liberated from the cage she has acquired the scent of the hive and is therefore no longer a stranger.—London Globe

Eccentric Editions of Books.

Mr. George Somes Layard in a book entitled "Suppressed Plates, Wood Engravings, Etc.," writes of the ridiculous people who value such books as the first issue of the first edition of Dickens' "American Notes" just because there is a mistake in the pagination, or a first edition of Diderot's "L'histoire" because the prototype of "Mr. Catesby" is divulged by misprinting the name "Capel," or "Poems by Robert Burns," first Edinburgh edition, because the Duke of Roxborough appears as "the Duke of Roxborough," or Barker's "Breeches" Bible of 1594 because on the title page of the New Testament the figures are transposed to 1495, or the first edition in French of Washington Irving's "Sketch-Book" because the translator, mistaking the author's name, has declared the book to "traduit de l'Anglais de M. Irwin Washington," and in the dedication has labeled Sir Walter Scott "baronnet."

Cornish Humor.

The magistrate at the Liskeard police court might well have excused the laughter which greeted the remark of a police witness only a short time ago who said with all seriousness: "He was drunk, your honor, and couldn't stand. I told him to go away, and as he wouldn't I locked him up."

The laugh in another court was against the solicitor who severely asked, "Were you present when you heard this?"

Mixed metaphors are not a peculiar nor indeed a common failing of the Cornishman, but a certain eloquent town councillor quite recently got entangled when in the course of a protracted debate on the momentous subject of the local dust bins he declared indignantly, "It is time we put our foot down with a loud voice."—English Illustrated Magazine.

NEEDED THE BRUSH.

The Finishing Touch to Eli Whitney's Cotton Gin.

Eli Whitney, who so long reared his soul over his first and mightiest invention, the cotton gin, was aided in his success by the quick wit and insight of a woman. In "Old Fats and Legends of the New England Border" Miss Katherine M. Abbott gives the story, as told by a granddaughter of General Nathaniel Greene, of the consummate of Whitney's experiment at the beautiful and hospitable Dungeness, on Cumberland island, equipped with live oaks and olive trees.

Miss Greene had become interested in Mr. Whitney's enterprise and invited him to spend the winter at Dungeness, "where an abundance of cotton and quiet were assured."

One morning he descended heading into the drawing room from his workshop in the fifth story and exclaiming, "The victory is mine!" in deep sympathy guests and hostess went with him to see the model in motion by which Whitney was to change the industrial history of the world.

For a few moments the minister saws revolved without hindrance, and the separation of the seed from the cotton wool was successfully accomplished, but after a little the saw clogged with lint, the wheel stopped, and poor Whitney was in despair.

"Here's what you need!" exclaimed Mrs. Greene. She seized a clothes brush and held it firmly to the teeth of the saws.

"Madam," said Whitney, overcome with emotion and speaking with the exaggeration of gratitude, "you have perfected my invention!"

One Gave.

"He gave his wife a toy terrier, didn't he?"

"Yes, and she gave him an English bulldog."

"So each of them has a dog now?"

"No—he has one."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.
