LAND OF SPORTS AND SCENERY

Klamath County's Lakes and Streams Are Alive With Trout and Water Fowl While the Mountains Abound With Deer, Bear and Other Big Game

The Klamath region is destined to become the mecca of the Pacific Coast lover of outdoor sports and will be visited annually by thousands of tourists. Its chain of lakes, mountain streams and rivers are matchless among waters of the United States for trout fishing and unsurpassed for water fowl that occupy the marshes as hatching grounds. Waters most straight-away course of forty miles, with a variety of wealth of color in the bordering shoreland and picturesque islands. To the photographer, amateur or professional, appreciative of the beautiful in nature, the region offers boundless opportunity.

Crater Lake, with its National Park reservation, is reached best via of the lakes and rivers abound with the best species of trout and other game fish. In the forests of the mountains are found many species of wild game and fowl.

The basin is environed by snow-capped peaks of the Cascade Range, and to the southwest, at a distance of about seventy miles, Mount Shasta

Klamath Falls, and is numbered among the seven wonders of the world. This body of water is some twenty square miles in extent and lies in the crater of an extinct volcano with walls 2000 feet high surrounding it. Sounding snow the water of this lake to be over 2000 feet in depth. The mountain in which the northernmost peak of the Sierras, rears its white crest to an altitude of 14,449 feet. Mount McLaughlin (Mount Pitt) is the highest of the eminences to the north and west, being about 8,000 feet. There is no more attractive steamboat trip on the entire Pacific Coast than that on Upper Klamath Lake with an al-

park, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado and of Yosemite are repeated in several parts of the globe, but there is no other Crater lake.

Scenic Crater Lake.

(Oregon Journal)
"The rim of Crater lake is 7,035 feet above the sea level. The surface of the water is about 6,000 feet above sea level. The greatest depth of the lake, as sounded by the government, is 1,396 feet. In extent it is six miles long and about four miles wide. The shore line is something more than 25 miles long. The heat of the water at a depth below the surface is 39 degrees, the same as that of sea water at an equal depth. The lake water is of every variety of blue, from the darkest to the lightest and most beautiful tints, except along the edges, where it is green. The reflection of the high mountains surrounding the lake is simply beyond description. Every twig, every blade of grass, the pebbles on the shore, the leaves, the trees, are reflected in the clear water. The tints of the hills are brought out perfectly in the water, just as they are but more intensely.

"The water of the lake is approached by a trail about 2,500 feet in length, exceedingly steep and quite thrilling to the pedestrian, particularly when he looks down at the water far below, dancing and glistening like a great mirror, with waves of light playing over it.

"Patches of snow are to be seen for miles on all sides. When we were there there were no mosquitoes or horseflies. It frequently snows at Crater lake in August, but so far there has been no snow this month, and only one thunderstorm.

"Crater lake is the greatest natural wonder on the face of the earth. There is nothing like it in the world. The wonders of Yellowstone National park, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado and of Yosemite are repeated in several parts of the globe, but there is no other Crater lake.

"The government is spending only $2,000 a year now looking after the forest reservation and the national park as well as the lake, but as soon as the people of the coast realize the value of the lake as a scenic attraction and as a natural wonder, means and ways will be found to build good roads both from Klamath Falls and from Medford, respectively, the extreme southern and northern points in Oregon of approaching and leaving the lake by the railroad, and it will be visited by thousands of people annually, resulting in advertising Oregon as she has never been advertised before, and inspiring the visitors with the immensities, wonders and resources of this state.

Miss the Easy Road.

Two young exponents of the strenuous life on Broadway were sitting in a hotel lobby the other evening discussing their plans for making some "big money" in the future. One of them confessed that his salary was "only $45 a week," and he was having a hard time of it in keeping the wolf from the door. Sitting near them was an old gentleman who overheard their conversation and was evidently interested.

"You fellows are making the mistake of your lives," the old gentleman said at last. "You are chasing the will of the wisp while you have the means of wealth within your grasp. Why, I'm considered pretty well off financially, as you both know, and I never received a salary of $45 a week in my life. But I saved money when I was your age, and I found opportunities for investment that soon put me out of the salary class and made me a business man on my own account. The trouble with young fellows nowadays is that they can't see the opportunities that are given them. They have their eyes glued to the get-rich-quick idea so tightly that they pass by the only sure route to wealth."—New York Globe.
