Because Rev. E. H. Brooks, the scholarly pastor of the small but fashionable Figueroa Street Baptist Church, at Los Angeles, Cal., teaches the doctrines of modern Christianity, lives in a good house, wears well-cut apparel and drives a lively stepping horse, he faces a heresy trial next Thursday evening that threatens to array the old and new schools of theology against each other. 3

It alone is well worth the price of admission, but Mr. Houston gives several others in addition, besides the illustrated songs. 3
