Mrs. Hartman, in talking of social duties, at Omaha, Neb., said: "I believe that if more women would take a deep and intelligent interest in their husband's business there would be less domestic unhappiness and few divorces in so-called high society."

The size of the audience each night at the Opera House speaks well for the popularity of the motion pictures and illustrated songs. Last night the attendance was unusually large, many standing. The pictures were exceptionally good. The same program will be repeated tonight, and it is a show well worthy of the patronage of the public.
