URNS A NEW LEAF.

It is usually injudicious to reveal the secrets of the journalistic prison house to an unsympathetic and more or less uncomprehending public, but a cry from the heart that has been uttered by Verne S. Pease, who faces the world as "editor-mgr.," whatever that may be, of the Boscobel (Wis.) Dial-Enterprise, is an exception of the general rule. He has spoken, and spoken well, for himself and the rest of us, and even though it be a sort of betrayal of happening commonly hidden behind more than seven veils we're going to do what we can to emphasize the "editor-mgr.'s" revolt against the expectation that he edit his paper with his heart instead of his head.

Three times within the past month it seems, and Mr. Pease says, he has suppressed good news at the request of friends for whom the publication of the same would have been inconvenient or unpleasant. And each time he mournfully remarks, "a contemporary that circulates in this section, perhaps less obliging than ourselves, perhaps edited by an editor, has printed the news, and we have been humiliated with an apparent scoop." Such "sucker business," as Mr. Pease with more vigor than elegance puts it, is to stop right now for the Dial-Enterprise, because—

It is a question of pleasing one person by disappointing several thousand, and we claim that the majority has the right to be served. When the printing of a news item does no harm to any human on earth or in the hereafter and the holding of it pleases only one person, it is the duty of the editor to serve the public. Anyway, we shall print wholesome news when it is fresh hereafter and hope none of our friends will get skittish about it.

In all probability Mr. Pease will be considerably less hard and cold than in the justifiable irritation of those three scoops he now thinks he is going to be, for it's only common sense as well as common decency to grant a reasonable favor occasionally to those who have a right to ask it, and the claims of "one person" sometimes are higher than those of "several thousand," even in the case of good, legitimate news. On general principles, however, his determination is an extremely wise one, and his so obviously sincere expression of it will excite a thrill of grateful, sympathetic and perhaps emulous admiration in many a newspaper office.—New York Times.

ARMCHAIR SCHEME.

Another advertising fakir was interviewing our business men the fore part of the week. This time it is the armchair fellow, who, for the modest (?) sum of $10 a year, will put your advertisement on one arm of one chair which will remain in one place for one year, and you will have to make only one contract covering two years and pay in advance $20 to secure this desirable advertisement.

Think of it—an advertisement on an arm of a common chair, whereon none but chair warmers would ever think of looking at it! As men of thought, who have means to purchase with, never seek a chair unless with a newspaper or other good reading in their hands, and that newspaper published, if a weekly, fifty-two times a year and reaching as many thousand copies, any merchant can reach all of his patrons—not the lonely chair warmer—and keep his name and business before them, going, as it does, through the mails direct to their homes for the same money, and for a little more can tell a different story every week.—Cle Elum (Wash.) Echo.

Standard Oil is silent on the charges made at Columbus by W. R. Hearst that Senator Foraker has been in the pay of John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil for the purpose of killing legislation inimical to the interests of the big corporation. At 26 Broadway it is declared that Mr. Archbold is away on his yacht and that the office has not been able to get in touch with him to ascertain whether or not the letters and receipts received by Mr. Hearst are authentic.

WHY IS IT THAT—

Fighting on the street is a breach of the peace, fighting on the floor of congress a breach of etiquette, and fighting in a prize ring a demonstration of "the manly art of self-defense?"

Eating fattening foods affects only the fleshy?

Canned fruit the housewife has been denying to the family, in order that she might be fortified against unexpected company, is always spoiled when the company arrives?

Our change is always correct when we count it and found to be short only after those occasions when we put it in our pockets without looking at it?

Inheritances are always so much smaller after the money is counted than they were before?

There is always a blockade on the street car line on the mornings when one is late in arising?

Marriage and divorce stories seem to be crowding the news in herds. The following story comes from Topeka: It concerns Prof. F. H. Blackmar, of the University of Kansas. Professor Blackmar would prevent the troubles which usually cause divorces. He would remove men's masks before marriage. He advocates strict mental and physical examinations of those contemplating matrimony and would bar persons afflicted with pulmonary and mental diseases from wedlock. He would also exercise much care in granting licenses to persons who might not be temperamentally suited to one another. He says the time is coming when a course preparatory to matrimony will be taught in the schools of the land and that education must sooner or later be invoked to assist marriageable young men and women in comprehending many important matters relative to matrimony. His plan though commendable, is likely to be mighty unpopular for most people are very unwilling to know themselves as they are, and a great deal more unwilling that others should know the truth about them.

For the first time in the history of the Russian capital, an order has been issued for the cleaning and disinfection of the slums of the city. The municipal council, in extra session, this week ordered the work in an effort to check the ravages of cholera.
