SAYS SWITZERLAND CAN TEACH OREGON.

(Telegram)

"Switzerland is prospering under its system of popular government, and its people are the happiest in Europe," said Alexis Mariet, a pioneer watchmaker of Portland, who has returned from a visit to his native land, after 40 years of absence. He passed seven weeks in Neuchatel, and took pains to look into political and other conditions.

"Switzerland is the home of the referendum," he says, "and the Swiss people as a whole take great interest in public questions. The republic is in the midst of European nations, but takes no part in their turmoils and is not molested either by France, Germany, Austria or Italy, by which it is surrounded. At the popular election which took place when I was there every male over 20 years of age participated, and the manufacture and sale of absinthe was overwhelmingly prohibited. The absinthe question is now on in France, and I look for that republic to do away with it in the near future also.

"In Switzerland there are no very poor people, no beggars, nor are there any very rich people. In my town of Neuchatel, the business of watch-making has been carried on for generations, and everybody is employed. I saw no drunkenness at all during my stay there, although the use of alcoholic beverages is not prohibited by law. When a man wants a drink he goes and buys it, and does not ask anybody to go and drink with him, as would be the case in the United States. Treating is not the fashion, and men drink no more than they consider good for them.

"The railroads of the country are owned by the government, and rates are about one-third of what they are here. The government also does the insuring of buildings, and compels all property owners to carry policies. The rates are much lower than here, and the fires less frequent, because the houses are built of stone and are not inflammable. I think we could learn a good deal from the little old republic here if we desired to make improvement in the rules and regulations by which the American people are governed.

"On my way back to Oregon I saw a crowd of cowboys board the train at the end, and each member of the gang had a bottle of whisky, with which he proceeded to treat the others. In a little while they were all roaring drunk, and made life a misery to all the passengers in the car. If those fellows had been in Switzerland they would have been thrown into jail instantly, and would have done time on a rockpile, without ceremony.

"But I am glad to be back home in my adopted state, all the same, and here I shall be content to live and die, notwithstanding the fact that I think matters could be improved somewhat. I have made my last journey to my native land."

THEY LOVED LINCOLN.

There was a wild-rose slip of a girl in a slatted blue sunbonnet with whom he walked the lanes of his homespun days, says Mabel Porter Daggett, in the October Delinquent. There was a clever cultured woman, whose brilliant intellect lighted his ascending way in the Illinois Legislature. And there was the belle of the gay social set at Springfield, who fluttered across his pathway as it led to Washington. One he loved, and one he tried to, and one he married. These were the women that he courted. They loved Lincoln. To them the greatest American was far nearer than a lofty figure on a high pedestal. They heard his heart beat.

These were the women that loved Lincoln. One of them lies near the banks of the Sangamon, where he loved her. To the last there was with him the long, long sorrow of her loss that cast its shadow across his heart in youth. As late as 1863 he pushed aside state papers in the executive mansion at Washington to talk of her late in the night to a friend who had come from back home. One rests peacefully in a little cemetery at Pleasant Ridge, Illinois. The mother of five children, her tombstone reads, "Mary Owens Vineyard." One lies at his side in the great mausoleum in Springfield, where the state keeps her bier and his heaped with fresh, fragrant flowers. When an assassin's bullet took his life, the American people mourned a great President.

She mourned a great husband. "He was the kindest man in the world," she sobbed.

GANDERBONE'S FORECAST FOR OCTOBER.

(Copyright 1908, by C. H. Rieth.)
 The armored football player will cavort in padded pants and butt to beat a billy goat while frenzied thousands dance. He'll cut the foe with glass hand in his Paderewski mop, and when they pile on sacks he'll do a war dance on the top. The college men will all get up and yell like Kingdom Come, the college girls will swallow six or seven gobs of gum, the autumn sun will be obscured by colors, horns and hats, the catapulting end will leave the other fellow's slats, the giant centers will collide like two excursion trains, the guards will paw the earth and scramble one another's brains; and while the ambulance drives up, with great vociferation the howling mob will give three cheers for higher education.

The flower for October is the hop. This signifies that the fates are all against prohibition in one month of the year, anyway.

Fine Suits for Autumn and Winter Wear

THE NEW SUITS ARE HERE AND WE BELIEVE THAT WHEN YOU SEE THEM YOU WILL AGREE WITH US IN SAYING THAT THEY ARE THE ACME OF PERFECTION IN TAILORING. THE NEW PATTERNS AND COLORINGS ARE AMONGST THE MOST HANDSOME AND ATTRACTIVE WE HAVE BROUGHT TO THIS CITY, AND THE STYLES ARE FINER AND BETTER THAN USUAL.

While the fabrics are largely in the nature of novelties, they are far removed from the freakish fads which some people have been trying to force on the public. We draw a distinct line between freak clothing and desirable novelties.

FRIEND MADE CLOTHES MAKE FRIENDS: We've never heard of a man who didn't feel better satisfied with these garments than any he could obtain elsewhere. Did you ever stop to consider that a nice shoulder in a sack coat couldn't make the vest and trousers good. Some people go to buy a suit—try on the coat, and pay their good money—they've been educated to buy that way. We put the vest and trousers on and fit you from heel to collar. If it isn't right in the store it won't be any better when you get it home. It must be right or you can't have it from us.

Fine Suits, $15.00 to $45.00
