OLIVER J. ECKHARDT, WITH "ECKHARDT'S IDEALS," IN OPERA HOUSE, WEEK OF OCTOBER 12th-17th.

Commencing next Monday, October 12th, if you miss Eckhardt's Ideals in their opening performance, "The Village Schoolmaster," you will miss the funniest comedy ever written.
 Mr. Eckhardt, in the leading role as the schoolmaster, Nolan O'Connell, Mass. Virginia, Diamond, as Helen Gray in the leading female role. Mr. Oliver Eckhardt, as Tom Tompkins, the comedy part.
 The vaudeville between acts will be worth the price of admission, by no means of the splendid play, which never fails to receive the highest praise wherever it has been presented.
 During the week one of the plays of national reputation to be presented is Oliver J. Eckhardt's production of "A Man's Broken Promise." The presentation of this play is awaited with great deal of interest. The comedy comes with the glitter and color of the New York, Boston, Chicago and St. Louis engagements.

 Those who witness the play will find in it scenes that are likely to be remembered for many days. The complete scenic production is carried.
 Oliver J. Eckhardt has given the play a thorough, adequate production and the company is described as being one of much strength and cleverness; it being almost identical to the one seen in the metropolitan engagements of this attraction. No woman should miss this play as it teaches a beautiful moral lesson.

The play deals with the effects of Jane Oakland to induce Simon Burt to fight the bitter wrong he has dealt her, and give herself and her innocent child the name and protection of which he has basely defrauded them.
 Mr. Burt has left them to starve in a garret room in the heartless city, while he returns to his country home meaning to wed the daughter of a wealthy neighbor, Ruth Rivers, for whom he has a wild infatuation. Jim Lyons, a former companion of the smooth-tongued scoundrel, but who has repudiated him and his evil ways tries to force Burt into doing his duty, but is struck down and is locked with Jane in a small shed which Simon then fires, leaving the two to perish in the flames. Turnips, a cynical, quick witted little character who Mr. Burt has taken from the poorhouse gives the alarm and they are saved through the heroism of Clifford Sanford, Ruth's sweetheart.
 Simon then abducts his child intending to put her out of the way forever, once more his plans miscarry, and he at last meets his just deserts, being shot by his mother in order to save him from perishing in the electric chair at the hands of justice.

New York men, with an eye to the almighty dollar, have organized a bureau through which they hope to sell prepared sermons to busy pastors in all parts of the country. The service is to be furnished for 25 cents a week or $19 annually. This is the first time we have ever heard of a monetary value being placed on pulpit discourses; it explains much that has heretofore been attributed to other causes.
