BRYAN.

Ernest McGaffey, private secretary of Carter Harrison, Jr., when Mayor of Chicago, has this to say about Mr. Bryan. It was published in the St. Louis Mirror in its issue of August 15, 1907: "I turn with unfeigned pleasure to the consideration of Mr. Bryan's strong points. He is probably the ablest man morally, that the Democratic party has honored with the nomination for years. There is no need to elaborate on this point. He has a fine presence, a capacity for hardship, and recuperative powers that make him an ideal campaigner. He is an orator who is unquestionably popular with the masses, including Chautauqua audiences. He is a man whose impulses are good, even though they are colored with an intense personal ambition. He has a gift of personal magnetism in a considerable degree, though this gift appeals more to the susceptibilities than to the cool judgment of men. Granting all this, the question which will have to be met at the next Democratic National Convention will be: 'Shall the Democratic party go down to defeat for the third time, just to please Mr. Bryan, or shall the place on 'the firing line' be given to an abler man?'"

The management of the Rock Island railroad is piqued. It was only able to earn a surplus of $1,000,000 last year, or $8,000,000 less than it earned the previous year, and so no dividend will be paid.

Miss Mary Fullerton, St. Louis' wealthiest heiress, appears in an interview in which she says she can't endure women; they are such liars. She said she can't depend upon a word they say. If Mrs. Fullerton were just she would judge all women by her dressmaker.

When Adolph Raad of Brooklyn was buried the other day, half a loaf of rye bread was buried with him. It is customary among Germans to make a wish before cutting a fresh loaf of bread. Four years ago Mrs. Raad made a wish and then dropped dead. Half the loaf was buried in her coffin and the other half saved to bury in her husband's.

Divorce is growing more and more expensive. Anna Gould escaped with enough to warrant a second matrimonial venture, but the wife of the Earl of Yarmouth, formerly Miss Alice Cornelia Thaw, has to pay her divorced husband an income of $50,000 a year from the day of the wedding and promise to leave him $200,000 if she dies before he does.

Ina came in from the country on her fifth birthday to visit her cousin May. At night they were put to bed early. An hour passed, when heart-breaking sobs were heard from the children's bedroom. "What is the matter, children?" asked May's mother, entering the dark room. From under the bedclothes Ina sobbed out: "May won't give me any of her peanuts." "But May has no peanuts," replied her aunt. "I know that," sobbed Ina, "but she said if she did have peanuts she wouldn't give me any."—November Dellinator.

Graft in warship repairs is the latest. There are some men who could graft ice in the infernal regions.

Bishop Tuttle of St. Louis declares that more brains are needed in the home. It is not so much more brains that are needed as better application of the brains already provided.

"My child, who made your body?" asked the Sunday-school superintendent. And Willie promptly responded: "Please, sir, I did, but mother put in the stitches."—November Dellinator.

John N. Garfield, of Washington, D. C., son of the Secretary of the Interior, Kenneth Montezule, of San Francisco, Fred Andrews, New York, and Henry Foxnes, Pittsburg, have been suspended by the Taft school at Watertown for hazing.

Miss Eugenia Warren of Greenwich, Conn., was left $20,000 on provision that she would never marry. You know about New England thrift; she promptly accepted the conditions. Had she been a western girl, a man would have looked as big as the moon.

John L. Sullivan, the former pugilistic champion, in spurning an invitation to take a drink in which 19 drops of whiskey had been poured, said: "I've been on the wagon five years and I'll remain there 50 more should I live to be 100." The occasion was Sullivan's fiftieth birthday, which he celebrated at Hot Springs, Ark., last week.

Here is a new motto to be hung on New York walls: "When you take the other woman out to dine, leave the kid in his trundle bed." Conrad Danielson took an actress to dinner, and his 9-year-old son went along. The boy told his mother next day, and her jaws snapped, and she didn't say a word. But she took her son to the matinee and he pointed out an actress on the stage. Mrs. Danielson walked behind the scenes and onto the stage and there, in the presence of a big crowd, made pudding of the other woman's marcelles.

Based on an idea that came to him in a dream, Rocco M. Vintello of New York has invented a heavier-than-air flying machine that is a radical departure from the principle of all the aeroplanes in experimentation. Vintello's machine "breathes," as he calls it. Its motive power is air forced through steel tubing by two large pneumatic pumps. Folding wings are used to soar through the air after ascending. The machine was given a partially successful trial last May, and another trial will be made in a few weeks. Vintello has already spent $1,000 of his savings as foreman in a factory on his invention.

Mrs. Anna Jones of Nanticoke, Pa., is a woman who never bothers her neighbors. She wanted to go to the theater the other night, and do you suppose she asked the neighbors to care for her children? Not she; she left them in the street in front of the theater, where she sat inside for two hours and a half and enjoyed the show. It was cold. The children were only 5 and 6 years of age, and the police arrested the mother. She didn't get any thanks for consideration of her neighbors.

The press is essential to our civilization and plays an unofficial but vital role in the affairs of government.—William Howard Taft.
