

SOON REACH WATER SOUTHERN PACIFIC BUILDING WAREHOUSE AT HOLLAND

Steel Gang Began Today Laying Rails Across the Marsh— Freight Will Be Shipped to Calor Until Change Is Made to Holland Which is Scheduled for Jan. 1

F. M. Thompson, the Southern Pacific Agent at Calor, is in the city today straightening out some freight shipments with the merchants. Mr. Thompson states that the freight business has not yet been changed from Calor and probably will not be until the road reaches the water at Holland, which will be within three weeks. The company is now building a big warehouse on the channel for the storage of freight when the change is made.

The steel gang began laying track this morning across the swamp and it is expected that the rails will all be laid to the channel in about five days. Work trains will then be run over the line to settle the embankment across the swamp so that the track can be ballasted before beginning passenger and freight service. The change to Holland, which will make all rail and water connection with Klamath Falls, is scheduled to take place January 1.

Draft Irrigation Code for Adoption By Legislature

PORTLAND, Dec. 2.—Most important in its possible effect upon the future legislation which will come before the next session of the legislature for enactment will be the irrigation code now in course of drafting. J. C. Bryant, representative-elect from Multnomah county, has the bill under consideration and is working in line with the ideas of State Engineer John H. Lewis, the exposition of the Oregon State engineer, and the plans of the Oregon commission for the conservation of the natural resources of the state.

Representative Bryant has been spending much time and thought in the consideration and study of the water needs of the state. He has collected a large amount of information and material from other states where irrigation codes have been enacted, and out of this mass of data will construct his bill.

Jackson's Bill the Model.

The new measure will be modeled along the general plan of the board of trade bill introduced at the last session of the legislature by Representative Perkins of Jackson county and defeated by a narrow margin after a bitter fight had been waged against it by the representatives of water power interests in the house.

The main points being considered by Mr. Bryant are that the waters of the state belong to the people of the state and can be used under certain restrictions for beneficial use; that waters appropriated for irrigation purposes become appurtenant to the land; that waterpower permits given by the state to individuals or corporations should be limited to periods of 25 years, and that annual fees to be fixed by the legislature should be charged for the use of power by corporations developing it; that all waterpower corporations should be specially incorporated, and that no corporation shall be allowed to make application for a second power site until it has developed the site already held by it as a grant from the state; that full statements of the construction and labor of all power plants shall be filed with the state engineer upon the completion of any project, and that the state shall reserve the right to buy, lease or condemn any works at the expiration of the term of the franchise or before that time and that the state shall have the right and power to regulate the cost of heat light or power used by the state or by any incorporated city or town.

Representative Bryant expects to have the preliminary draft of his bill ready in a short time. It will then be submitted to the conservation commission, the state engineer and to the state engineer, and the work of putting it into final shape will be undertaken. The final draft will be a clear and comprehensive water code ready for the consideration of the legislature.

The great mass of litigation now pending in the courts of the state over water rights shows clearly that there is urgent need in Oregon for remedial legislation. According to attorneys who have made water contents a specialty, there is no state in the Union in which the water laws are in such chaos as in Oregon. Under the present law about the only way by which the water rights of the people in a district taking their water from the same source could be adjudicated would be for every person holding land in that district to be made a party to a suit of determination, and even then the result would be uncertain.

It is expected that the coming session of the legislature will pass a water code bill, as there has been a steadily growing demand for such legislation. There was such a demand at the last session but it was defeated by the persistent efforts of a few waterpower interests. The men who represented these interests will not be in the present session of the legislature and it is expected that the public demand will be met. Mr. Bryant, as father of the irrigation code bill of the present session, will make its success his principal effort during the session.

BELLEVILLE CITY SHOULD HAVE MILK INSPECTOR.

To the Editor:

Please give me a little space in your paper, if not for my sake for the sake of the mothers and babies of this city who are forced to purchase what is claimed to be milk and cream. With them might be included others who love the lactical fluid unadulterated. For weeks I have contemplated writing this letter, but refrained in the hope that the constant complaints of customers might soften the conscience of someone, but it seems that these complaints only seem to produce hardness and a poorer quality of milk and cream. I therefore turn to the Herald for assistance in placing the matter before the people of this city and the members of the council and the mayor. If any of the members of the city council are so unfortunate as to use this milk and cream, I need make no argument to them, for they know from sad experience what it is, and will readily recognize the necessity for the passing of an ordinance providing for a milk inspector. This inspection can be done by the marshal without additional expense to the city. An ordinance, patterned after similar legislation of the larger cities, ought to be in force here for it is a self-evident fact that until such is the case the people will be obliged to put up with poor cream and adulterated milk. There are many mothers in this city who are forced to furnish this stuff to their infants for food, and I know of one case where the baby nearly starved on the concoction. If this is true in one case it is undoubtedly true in others, and where people are conscienceless enough to furnish milk of this description, then there should be no more mercy shown them than they show the infant that has to depend on it for nourishment.

NARROW GAUGE ROAD NO ADVANTAGE TO LAKEVIEW.

LAKEVIEW, Dec. 2.—The completion of the N. C. O. to Alturas makes Lakeview's nearest railroad point 60 miles away. The extension of the road to this point will, however, not make much difference in freight to Lakeview. The rates on this narrow gauge road are almost as high as those charged by the teamsters. Passenger rates are the same as those charged by the stage lines, and at times the service is very little better. Lakeview business men are planning on having all their freight come via Klamath Falls just as soon as the branch of the Southern Pacific is extended to that city, which will likely be in the early spring. The haul by wagon from Klamath Falls will be approximately 100 miles, but the difference in the rate will more than warrant shipping freight by that route instead of via Alturas.

Lake County taxpayers are very anxious that Klamath County build good roads to the dividing line. Lake County will do its share toward opening up a route between the two towns. Business men of Lakeview have for years been paying heavy freight rates, and they will welcome a new route, even if it is not less expensive than the old.

Indications are that unless the N. C. O. is extended into Goose Lake valley during the early part of next year, most of the freight will come via Klamath Falls, which will give the Portland wholesalers an excellent opportunity to compete with those of San Francisco.

FORT KLAMATH, Dec. 3.—This city was visited yesterday by the famous globe trotter, Mr. Mac McDoner, of Pretoria, South Africa, who is girdling the world on a wager, the terms of which require him to visit all the capitals of the world and interview the rulers and prominent people of each country. He is almost at the finish of his long hike, having complied with the conditions of his contract to this point and completed his tour of Europe, Asia, Africa, South America, Australia and the Philippines and has visited every state in the Union.

Mr. McDoner is a very fluent talker and his stories of the experiences on his long trip were very interesting. His sketch of interviews with the rulers and national characters of the countries through which he has traveled and of the conditions of the countries was most engrossing and the details would fill volumes. The trip up to date covers a period of three years and one month, and he expects to complete his journey within eleven months from now.

The trip to this point involved considerable hardships as he has to hobo it entirely. Mr. McDoner is certainly to be commended for his grit in his undertaking. In the course of an interview he expressed his delight at the open handed hospitality of the people of the United States as compared with that of Europe and Asia, and he further expressed his intention of visiting Crater Lake and Klamath County again before leaving for his home in the Transvaal.

SERVICES BY REV. HALL.

A large and appreciative audience listened to a sermon delivered by Mr. Hall, of Medford, in the First Baptist Church of this city last night. He chose for his text a part of the fifth chapter of Matthew, and took for his theme, the other mile. Those who have heard Mr. Hall make it a point to come back and bring a friend with them. He is a man of pleasing personality, and still better, a man of deep spirituality. He will remain over Sunday. Do not fail to hear him. Come and bring your friends.
