AT SETH'S SERENADE.

When Seth got married we had a bee, and went up to his house for a shivaree. Some took drums, and some took pans, and some took whistles, and some tin cans with strings in the bottom and rum to rub, and they yowled like wildcats at every scrub, and the dullest noise that ever was made was the whoopedew at Seth's serenade.

When we carried something beside the noise that little home, we girls and boys, and after the bang, and fun, and din, and gave us an invite and we went in, and under each arm was a bundle hid—loaded them down, that's what we did—loads of them and pounds of that—loads were big and bags were fat—when the squires a speech he made for the rest of the crowd at Seth's serenade.

"We're here to wish ye long life," said he, "and a way that is smooth and as straight as can be. And every day as ye're startin' now with a smile on your face and a care-free brow— I bring ye to-night— friends Seth and me— can of the cheer that starts my day." "When he crowned the heap—he's a knowin' man."

With a Chase & Sanborn coffee can. And before we left we had coffee made— 'twas the best of the treat at Seth's serenade.

John Faulkner butchered Monday.

Arthur Sevits hauled a load of alfalfa hay to Mr. Stearns Monday.

The farmers are plowing every spare moment. If there is a good season next year, there will be large crops.

Chas. Snowgoose, of Keno, was taking orders in this vicinity last week.

Mr. Ager butchered hogs Wednesday.

Frank Dowling passed through Keno Tuesday, going to the Falls from his ranch near Dorris.

A special school meeting was held Thursday, December 10, to elect a director to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. A. Bingham. Those present were: G. F. Sevits and Geo. Ager, directors; C. B. Faulkner, clerk, and Mr. Alford.

A number of scrapers belonging to the railroad contractors, went through Keno Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Kerns, of Keno, were in Klamath Falls Thursday.

Some idea of the way in which Uncle Sam looks out for his jolly jack-tars in the way of providing creature comforts for them may be obtained by glancing over the requisitions which are just at hand. They call, for instance, for immense quantities of food supplies of the class of canned fruit and vegetables, canned fish, sirup, coffee, tea and the like. Contracts will soon be placed for 92,000 pounds of evaporated apples, 100,000 gallons of California white beans, 61,000 pounds of evaporated peaches, 250,000 pounds of Bartlett pears, 30,000 pounds of French prunes, 41,000 pounds of muscatel raisins, 220,000 pounds of tinned salmon, 22,000 pounds of pure sugar sirup, 1,800,000 pounds of granulated sugar, 1,750,000 pounds of green coffee and 50,000 pounds of tea. The subsistence officers of the United States army have practically decided not to adopt a wheel-mounted bread baking oven for our army of the type represented by the so-called rolling oven purchased in England some time ago for test by our officers.

The Texas pastor who has refused to accept reappointment because he is unable to support his family on the salary offered has set an example worthy of emulation. The minister sees just as much to his wife and children as does any other man and one of the most effective means of impressing this fact upon those who have charge of the church affairs is by the refusal of married preachers to accept pastorates that pay so little as to make mere existence a struggle.

—THE— KLAMATH IRRIGATION PROJECT.

By W. H. Helleman, U. S. Reclamation Service.

The Klamath Project has sufficiently progressed in the building of its irrigation system to invite settlement in a large way. The lands of this project were largely in private ownership before the time the Reclamation Service began its comprehensive scheme of irrigation development. Previous to the entrance of the government into this field, two small private irrigation districts existed on the project and the nucleus for farm settlement and town building was already established. Upon the advent of the Reclamation Service, adjustment was made of existing water rights in the district, and land in private ownership was subscribed to the project, in accordance with the terms of the Reclamation Act. At the present time there is but little land in the project open to homestead entry, and establishing a home generally entails the purchase of land from the present owner. The purchase of land in private ownership under a government project may be considered by many settlers as having material advantage over homestead entries on public land, as, for instance, the more rapid acquisition of title, though the water right obligations are the same in both cases. A person purchasing land from a private owner at once establishes sufficient title to obtain some credit at the local stores. Such a condition is not possible in homesteading.

Klamath Falls is at present the principal town in the basin, and is the county seat of Klamath County. It is a town of 2500 inhabitants, has a number of substantial homes, and is well located, having on one side the Link River with its water-power possibilities, and a lake frontage on both Ewauna and Upper Klamath lakes. Numerous additions have been platted to the older portion of the town. Several hot springs issue in or near the town limits, and an adequate water supply for municipal and domestic use is derived from pure cold springs located within the city limits.

Several churches are represented, among them being the Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Catholic and Christian Science. All of these except the Christian Science own buildings.

The town is supplied with electric lights, a fire protection department, and telephone systems. For irrigation uses a government canal occupies one of the higher terraces of the town and furnishes adequate water supply for lawns and gardens. The town is in greater part naturally drained, being built in fact, on a series of slopes which reach down to its lake and river frontages.

Klamath Falls has excellent common schools and churches. The primary school of the town is a new native sand-stone building, completed in 1906 at a cost of over $25,000. The County High School building is built of brick and native stone. It was completed in 1905 at a cost of about $40,000, and is large enough for a number of years in the future.

It is generally understood that this new branch will be extended north from Klamath Falls and become ultimately the main line between San Francisco and Portland. Klamath Falls will be about midway between San Francisco and Portland, the distance to each port being about 350 miles from the Klamath Basin.

The Monarch Mercantile Co. will carry a complete line of vegetables from the California markets. Fresh shipments daily. 30
