AT SETH'S SERENADE.

Seth got married we had a bee,
I went up to his house for a shivaree.
I took drums, and some took pans,
and some took whistles, and some tin cans with strings in the bottom and room to rub, and they yowled like wildcats at every scrub.
The dearest noise that ever was made was the whoopedaw at Seth's serenade.
We carried something beside the noise that little home, we girls and boys,
after the bang, and fun, and din,
I gave us an invite and we went in,
I handed each arm was a bundle hid—
I handed them down, that's what we did!
And of this and pounds of that—noise were big and bags were fat.
I then the squire a speech he made at the rest of the crowd at Seth's serenade.

"We're here to wish ye long life," said he,
and a way that is smooth and as straight as can be.
I'll smile on your face and a care-free
I'll bring ye to-night—friends Seth and I'll be of the cheer that starts my day,
I'll be crowned the hoop—he's a knowin'
man.
I'll Chase & Sanborn coffee can,
I'll be the best of the treat at Seth's
serenade.

BLACK SPOTS ON PORK.

During the butchering season of the year the Experiment station frequently receives specimens of pork that present an unmarketable appearance. The rind, or skin, taken from the abdominal region and inside of the legs, is found to be dotted with black wart-like growths of various sizes ranging from that of a pin-head to a hazelnut. Many of these spots in the early stages contain a small amount of pus, and by careful examination a small mite will be found buried deeply in the skin.

The mite causing these pustules and subsequent black spots is known as Demodex folliculorum var suis, a very large name for such a small mite that may be seen only by the aid of a magnifying glass.

Just when the mite attacks the hog is not well known, and as it burrows deeply into the skin treatment or the use of insecticides is of little value; besides there is no indication of its presence until the time of butchering, when the damage is already done.

These blackened spots, although unsightly, do not injure the meat for food, and they may be completely removed with the skin.—E. F. Pernot, Oregon Agricultural College.
