

NOW FOR A GOOD ROAD TO LAKEVIEW

Lake County Will Build Its Road and Ship Freight This Way If Klamath County Will Build to County Line

The movement has been started for the improvement of the Klamath Falls-Lakeview road. A meeting was held last evening by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of discussing good roads with C. H. Willison, of Wadhams & Kerr, a big Portland grocery firm. Mr. Willison just arrived from Lakeview and was the bearer of a message from the Chamber of Commerce and citizens of that county to the people of Klamath.

Lake County merchants are dissatisfied with their present transportation facilities from Alturas and are anxious to ship their goods by way of Klamath Falls. The only difficulty in the way is the condition of the roads between Klamath Falls and Lakeview. Lake County is ready to build good roads from the county seat to the county line, if Klamath County will do the same with the roads from the county line to the railroad at Klamath Falls.

Portland is anxious for the trade of this part of the state, and Mr. Willison, as representative of the Portland business houses, is making an effort to get the two counties to build good roads to connect with the railroad. If the counties start the movement, Mr. Willison agreed to take the matter up with the Portland firms and try to secure assistance from them.

A good road between here and Lakeview would mean a great benefit to this county as well as a convenience to the people of Lake County. Besides the immense amount of merchandise that would be shipped through here, there would be close to half a million pounds of wool hauled out of Lake County the next few years and they should be brought by way of Klamath. More important than anything, a good road would give a market for the products of Klamath County, and would be a great benefit and convenience to the farmers of this county in hauling their produce and supplies. With the big territory that it would open up, it would be the means of inducing manufacturing industries to locate here.

The Commissioners have made a very liberal levy for the building of roads this year and it is very probable that a good share of the money will be used on the improvement of this road, but the importance of a modern road across the county, east and west will be strongly urged by the Chamber of Commerce. It is also considered as vital that this work should be undertaken as soon as the weather will permit this year.

The postoffice receipts yesterday passed the mark necessary to place the Klamath Falls office in the second class. By the first of the month the office will have a nice surplus over the amount necessary for the year. The change in the office, however, will not be made until the beginning of the fiscal year on July 1.

Sam C. Trayner, one of the pioneer residents of Klamath County, who has been living in California for a number of years, arrived from San Jose last night on a short visit. It has been seven years since Mr. Trayner was last in Klamath Falls and he misses many of his old time friends. He sees many changes in the city in the way of improvements. Mr. Trayner owns a valuable ranch near Merrill which is now worth considerable more money than it was when he left here.

Col. M. L. Allison has received from the Pioneer Assaying & Refining Co., of San Francisco, the assay on six samples of rock taken from near the mining tunnel which has recently been opened up near Merrill. All of the samples were surface matter, and two were taken one mile north of the tunnel; two one and one-half miles northeast and on the west side of the mountain, and one about a 1000 feet east of the tunnel. They assayed from 2 to 35 ounces of gold per ton, with a valuation from $1.03 to $4.12. One sample was disintegrated matter and taken from the face of the tunnel, and assayed 15 ounces to the ton with a valuation of $3.09.

The Klamath County Bank will have much more commodious quarters in the new building, which has been fitted up with handsome new furniture. All of the fittings, railings, office doors, etc., are of metal, and the entire building is as near fire proof as it is possible to make it.

GET READY FOR THE RAILROAD

Completion of the Road to Klamath Falls Should Be Fittingly Observed--Should Begin to Get Ready

The time has arrived at last when it is possible to come within a reasonable distance of guessing the day when the first train will reach Klamath Falls, and with the approach of this much-to-be and long-awaited event comes the question, "What are the people of this city and county going to do about it?" Custom has established the rule that whenever a railroad has been completed, the final act, that of driving the golden spike, is attended with appropriate ceremonies, and that the same custom should be followed in this city will be admitted by everyone. "Those who have lived here for nearly two score years, everyone of which carried with it the rumor that "a railroad is coming," need no longer look forward to the opportune time, but may realize at last his long wished for desire. The railroad will be here and with its coming should be one of the greatest celebrations that this city or county ever dreamed of.

Many celebrations have been attempted in the past, attended with more or less success, but the one in honor of the completion of the railroad should be of more than the ordinary type. It should be dignified in character and yet filled with the genuine enthusiasm natural on such occasions. This is a work that properly belongs to the Chamber of Commerce. The directors of that organization are men of ability and integrity and such a celebration may properly be delegated to them without the fear that it will either be neglected or the commission abused.

One suggestion that might be offered at this time is the advisability of inviting, and endeavoring to secure the presence of the Governors of California and Oregon; likewise the two United States Senators and Congressman Hawley from Oregon and such other persons of prominence in public and business life as will make the event a noteworthy one.

Connected with the event might be a week's celebration in the nature of a carnival or a street fair, if the directors deemed such a thing advisable. What was left over from the last carnival might be utilized on this occasion. Then, also, might be held a public rally, to which Tom Richardson, of Portland, might be induced to come and a permanent fund for the advertising of this county started. Throughout Oregon these rallies are being held and Klamath Falls is now among the few towns remaining off the list. The time for the preparation of this celebration is extremely short and it behooves all of us to get out and hustle, so as to make it an event that will attract the attention of the entire Pacific Coast.

SORE THROAT AND VOICE TROUBLES.

Sore throat is inflammation; inflammation is too much blood locally; and too much blood spells disturbance to vasomotor nerves of pharynx and larynx for the trained osteopathic diagnostician. This view-point of throat disease, peculiar to osteopathic diagnosis, is the same as regards all primary inflammatory conditions, whether involving the throat, stomach, lungs, liver, kidneys, uterus or any other organ.

The osteopathic way of curing inflammation is correcting the blood supply. To do this it goes at the very cause of trouble and adjusts the vasomotor apparatus. As a usual thing there is found to be pressures of contracted ligament and muscle at fault and behind that fact, still further back in order of causal factors, there is often found a "bony lesion," so called, which is merely a slip of a vertebra or other bone from its normal alignment with its related bones. Any mechanical structure built up of many small parts is liable to get jolted and drawn out of correct position sometimes—and the body is no exception.

Now to comprehend osteopathic diagnosis you should start with a consideration of the bones, the framework of the body, and proceed step by step to examine the ligaments which bind the bones together, and the muscles overlying both which round out the body and as pulleys act upon the bones to make levers of them and render motion possible;

thus bones, ligaments and muscles complete the form of the human machine. But all through and between these structures of bone, ligament and muscle, there pass intricate networks of arteries, veins and capillaries, which carry on circulation, and nerves which perform the manifold tasks of the nervous system. One of these duties of nerves is to regulate the size of these blood-vessels. A special set of nerves are specialized to do this. They are called vasomotors. Hence nerves determine blood supply.

So the osteopathic diagnostician in such a simple thing as a sore throat would begin his investigation—not by examining the mucous membrane of the throat merely, as is the usual way with physicians, but with an examination of the vertebrae of the neck. He would first look to the very foundations of the machine in the part disturbed to determine if it were in good form and functioning. Are Your Spinal Foundations Plumb?

Experience as well as reason has taught him that many ills of life—even such things as sore throat—begin back at the bony adjustment. When that is true no amount of treatment directed to palliate symptoms will cure the case. To cure, the physician must get back to basic causes and adjust vertebrae to their natural positions. If a slight slip of one from its movable anchorage has occurred, it must be replaced. If ligaments have been put on undue tension and are contracted they must be relaxed. If muscles—either surface or deep-lying—have become knotty, contracted and congested, they must be restored to normal relaxation and tonicity. Otherwise nerves throughout will be subject to abnormal pressures and disturbed functioning, tiny blood vessels will be blocked. This must result in nutritional disorder which promptly asserts itself as a disease.—Osteopathic Health.

An informal meeting was held last evening between the members of the Council, H. V. and O. B. Gates and the City Attorney. The meeting was held for the purpose of getting together on certain provisions to be inserted in the new franchise to be granted to the Light & Water Company.

The city asked for certain concessions from Mr. Gates in regard to a new lighting system and other improvements. These were agreed to by Mr. Gates and will be embodied in the ordinance to be introduced at the meeting of the Council either tonight or tomorrow night. There are no indications that there will be any hitch in the passage of the ordinance, as the city was given what it asked for and Mr. Gates concurred in the concessions. Mr. Gates will remain until Thursday before leaving for home.

BALLINGER RIDES ROOSEVELT'S NAG.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Richard A. Ballinger, the new Secretary of the Interior, has purchased for his own use "Roswell," the saddle horse used until recently by President Roosevelt. "Roswell" is a strong bay saddle horse and knows every highway and byway in Washington and its environs. Judge Ballinger rode him for the first time yesterday.

When Roosevelt took his departure from Washington he left Roswell, his favorite mount and spirited jumper, in the care of a horseman; here with the stipulation that he be sold into private ownership only, and for the use of a man appreciating a good horse and who would use him well.
