WALKING ACROSS GEYSER BASIN AT HORTICULTURAL HALL.

No fairer scene can be offered any place than the outlook from the foot of the Alaska Monument on the grounds of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. Standing directly in front of the great building of the United States Government, the enormous golden eagle on his towering perch with his wings spread wide and guard over the most perfect exposition that has ever been reared. Under his eye are gathered the rarest collection of man's examples of skill and art ever assembled, and these sheltered in a magnificent group of permanent and temporary buildings, the architectural design and clever construction exemplify the very best of man's inventive ability.
 At night when the long twilight of the northern latitudes close down, manifold beauties of the spot show their greatest charm. With the light of day comes the romance of evening and the millions of lamps, a brilliant by electricity, flash their rainbow tints over a land such as no might have builded. The rushing, tumbling torrents of the Cascade pour their enormous volume over a bed covered by electric bulbs, from the quiet pool of Geyser Basin are reflected as in a mirror. The rollers of French design are lavishly scattered beneath the trees, and their clear rays the fields of flowers are seen in added hues.

Kiss Microbes.
 Kiss microbes in a kiss, sweetheart, what the scientist say, despite these microbes, do you think you'd say the nay kiss would crave of you with microbes or without?
 Kiss you would deny me in the shining of love's hour?
 Kiss that we should know or care? Kisses lingered there, angry, hungry microbes? Don't you think that we would dare the microbes one and all and kiss the same old way?
 Kiss kissed sweet Mother Eve in paradise that day?
 Microbes of a kiss, sweetheart, pray that, pray, what are they? Science and sweetest love and hope that day by day?
 Kisses all will stronger grow and flourish as they may?
 I kiss you and you kiss me the sweet old fashioned way.
 —Pittsburg Post.

A Comparison.
 Angulus makes a great fuss over "I" said the critical person.
 "I" answered the nervous man; "can't ask him the time of day but his getting as excited as a clock."—Washington Star.

He Was It.
 He—Tell me, did you ever win a lottery?
 She—No; I never did, but my wife—Yonkers Statesman.

The Champion Absent-minded Man.
 A very absent-minded professional man, with offices in a Chestnut street building, came downtown the other day and discovered that he had left his keys at home. The superintendent of the building let the absent-minded man into his office, but he was still as bad off as ever. He could not get into his desk or at his safe. He pondered a little while over his dilemma; then he decided to return home for the keys. "Why not send a messenger boy after the keys?" he thought that struck him, but that was immediately put out of the question by another thought to the effect that the boy would not be able to get in the house in case the absent-minded man's wife had left home. "That's right; I must go myself," decided the troubled man, and home he went, arriving at the very door of his house before it dawned upon him that he without his keys was as bad off as a messenger boy, and the poor man's wife had gone out all right. "Oh, hang it anyway," said the absent-minded man, "I ought to have telephoned her to wait for me! Why didn't I do that? Well, I will go right back to the office and phone." And he did. He phoned and phoned for some time before he could understand why his wife did not answer; then he gave up work for the day.—Philadelphia Record.

Different Salt.
 They fished together, he and she. Drabble the babbling mountain brook. He used minnow bait for bait. She used a sweet but salty look.
 When they quit the noisy stream The maiden's home they sought. He hadn't hooked a single thing. But a "sucker" she had caught.
 —Detroit Tribune.

Experience Contribution.
 Poetic Friend—Some one says a baby in the house is a wellspring of joy.
 Exasperated Young Parent—Well, don't you believe it. As an element of enjoyment a baby in the house is a screaming farce.—Baltimore American.

The Same Thing.
 She—I'm told you believe in nothing.
 He—I never said so. I said I believed only in what I understood.—Punch.

Fly Time.
 Of all slow tortures ever Satan fed. To all that is on human life a blight. The worst is when one wakeful lies in bed And hears a fly approaching in the night.
 —Judge.

One of Many.
 Mrs. Mifflins—Your husband told my husband that his word was law at home.
 Mrs. Elkins—Yes; it's one of those laws that are never enforced.—Chicago News.

How He Made It.
 "They say he made money speculating."
 "No. The other fellows were speculating."—San Francisco Examiner.

Depends on Your Mood.
 Here's the difference 'twixt humor in books And that which we hear after meals: The former's as old as it looks; The latter's as young as it feels.
 —Punch.

An Alibi.
 Pat—Say, Monk, pfwat's an alibi, Oi dunno?
 Mike—Faith, an alibi is whin a man is after bein' where he ain't.—Chicago News.

All on One Side.
 "He seems very proud of his family."
 "Yes, and that's just where his family can't reciprocate."—Pick-Me-Up.

Not the Same.
 "The sun shines not on all alibis," said the maid unto the man.
 "For some girls it merely freshies. While others it does tan."
 —Minneapolis Journal.

Not to Be Told.
 "I see you've got a new fountain pen. What do you think of it?"
 "Hush! The minister is sitting over there, and he'll hear us."—Cleveland Leader.

A Big Difference.
 She—What's the difference between a simple and a wrinkle?
 He—Oh, about thirty or forty years.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

An Unwieldy Wish.
 If what we're wishing could be done And each held autocratic sway, We should be bosses, every one, With no one willing to obey.
 —St. Louis Republic.

Hard Work.
 Bacon—Trouble always reminds me of a wet bathing suit.
 Egbert—How so?
 "It's always so hard to get out of it."—Yonkers Statesman.

Getting Nearer.
 Westward the star of politics Soon takes its hurried way, And Denver and Chicago get Much nearer every day.
 —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Has That in Plenty.
 "A prophet is without honor in his own country," remarked the moralizer.
 "True," rejoined the demoralizer, "but he is never without competition."—Detroit Tribune.

We could make clothes expressly for you here at home, but a local tailor shop today is impractical and unprofitable.

 It has no labor market from which to secure desirable cutters and tailors—
 It cannot afford to install a modern plant designed to reduce cost of production—
 It doesn't do sufficient business to enable it to buy wools direct from the mills—
 It cannot keep abreast of metropolitan styles and workmanship.
 Therefore, we send our orders for fine made-to-measure clothes to Ed. V. Price & Co., of Chicago.
 We can take your measure the same way we would if running shops here, and furnish you your clothes, made as you want them, at 50% less than we could make them locally. Won't you call today?
