

PETITION.

In the County Court of the State of Oregon, for Klamath County.
In the Matter of the Application to Adopt Baby Eaton, a minor child. To the Honorable J. B. Griffith, Judge of said Court.
Your petitioners, W. P. Rhoads and Mattie E. Rhoads, respectfully represent:

1. That your petitioners are husband and wife, reside in the State of Oregon, and reside at Merrill, in said Klamath County.

2. That they have in their possession a female child of the age of eight months, and that said child is the illegitimate offspring of Iva Eaton; that said mother is a non-resident of the State of Oregon, and that said child is wholly without parental care and protection.

3. That your petitioners are competent, able and willing to support, educate, train and properly care for said child.

WHEREFORE your petitioners pray a decree of the Honorable Court:

I. That said child be, to all legal intents and purposes, the child of the petitioners.

II. That the name of said child be changed to Iva Willa Rhoads, and that a certificate of such change be granted.

W. P. RHOADS,
MATTIE E. RHOADS,
Petitioners.
Subscribed and sworn to before me this 1st day of May, 1909.
E. E. FITCH,
Notary Public for Oregon.

HOW AUTHORS WROTE.

Prize Thought Best When in Bed—Vince for Hugo Wrote Standing.
Alexander Pope, who was the literary pontiff of his time, thought best when in bed. Whenever a thought came to him he would let it down on a scrap of paper. His servant often found bedclothes and loor covered with white bits containing aphorisms which have now become hackneyed quotations.
Victor Hugo wrote "Les Miserables" standing up, an attitude which Hawthorne also assumed when he wrote many of his romances.
One lay thrown over the arm of a chair or sitting on the rim of his secretary's chair were Napoleon's favorite positions while dictating to Bourrienne, a position which he varied now and then by putting that which he wrote on the head or pulling his ears.
Sir Walter Scott could write reclining on a lounge dictate to two amanuenses, who frequently had to stop writing, so funny the dictated passages seemed to them.
Bunyan, in a monk's robe, frequently wrote from midnight till noon, taking drafts of strong coffee when drowsiness attacked him and thus shortening his life by many years, not shortening his life by many years, not shortening his life by many years, not shortening his life by many years.
William Morris made one of his famous translations from the Greek while riding on the steam cars. Walt Whitman and Horace Traubel, original in all things, were most original in the position they took while thinking. They were wont, so Mr. Traubel says, to sit upon a pile of lumber and lie down upon their backs. In that way each found out what the other's best thoughts were.—Boston Globe.

WANTED NO LAWYER.

It Was a Simple Matter to Satisfy the Accused.
"Jed Blake to the bar," ordered the judge in a rural Alabama court.
A big bluish negro smiled up to be arraigned for murder.
"Jed," began the judge, "you are charged with the gravest crime known to the law, that of taking the life of a fellow man. One of the forms of punishment for murder is death. Have you made any arrangements for your defense in this case, Jed?"
"No, seh, judge. I ain' done nuthin'."
"Have you a lawyer, Jed?"
"No, seh, judge. I ain' got no lawyer. I ain' got nuthin', judge."
"Well, Jed," said the judge, showing a little impatience, "have you talked to anybody about this case?"
"I talked to de sheriff some dat night when he come after me, judge, but you knows dat didn't do no good."
"For your information, Jed, I will state that it is within the province of this court to appoint counsel to any defendant who has none. I am now ready to appoint you a lawyer. Do you want one?"
"No, judge. I don't want nuthin'!" replied Jed rather dolefully.
"See here," snapped the judge, "I won't have any more of this foolishness. You say you don't want any lawyer. Well, then, what do you intend to do about this case?"
"Well, I tells you, judge, I ain' 'tendin' to do nuthin'." "If it's jes' de same to you, judge, as far as I'm concerned I's willin' to let do whole matter drop right here."—Everybody's.

Woman and the Jewish Talmud.
The Jewish Talmud has these sentences about women: "A good wife is heaven's noblest gift. A housewife never allows herself to be disturbed from her work. Even while conversing she is busily spinning. An old, experienced woman in a household is an ornament to it like a pearl. He who lives in an unmarried state knows no joys, none of the blessings of home, and is without support. The man who stands at the deathbed of his wife feels like those who saw the temple of Jerusalem reduced to ashes, for the wife is the temple in which each man finds repose and quiet, where he rests after the labors of the day and where he can give expression to his feelings, joyful and mournful. God has given to woman more ability of judging correctly than man."

A New Version of It.
Robert, the small son of Mr. Brant, has lately acquired a stepmother. Hoping to win his affection, this new parent has been very lenient with him, while his father, feeling his responsibility, has been unusually strict. The boys of the neighborhood, who had taken pains to warn Robert of the terrible character of stepmothers in general, recently waited on him in a body, and the following conversation was overheard:
"How do you like your stepmother, Bob?"
"Like her? Why, fellows, I just love her. All I wish is I had a stepfather too!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Letting Him Down Easy.
A young man of very limited means after the marriage ceremony presented to the minister 27 cents, all spread out on the palm of his right hand.
"This is all I've got, parson," he said. Seeing a disappointed look in the minister's face, he added, "If we have any children we will send them to your Sunday school."—Success Magazine.

Artificiality Natural.
"Don't you men really know that women are very largely artificial?"
"Why, yes."
"And what do you think of it?"
"That it's natural, of course."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Result of Rashness.
"Out of a job, are you?" asked the first girl. "Boss catch you firing?"
"No, I caught the boss. Say, what sort of a wedding dress do you think is real swell?"—Philadelphia Ledger.
