A SECRET SIGNAL.

The Tailor's Comment While Measuring a Customer.

"Did you ever notice how the tailors while measuring a man for a suit of clothes mix in a few letters occasionally among the numbers?" asked a downtown lawyer recently of a friend. "Whenever I have been measured for a suit of clothes the tailor always said S. H. I. in a subdued voice as he took the measure for the length of my trousers. I often wondered what this secret signal meant and on one occasion made so bold as to ask, but he put aside in some casual way, which plainly showed me that the tailor did not wish me to know the meaning of the mysterious S. H. I."

"Well, I never knew what these letters meant until one day not long ago, when I stumbled across the solution quite by accident. I was waiting for my measure taken while a strapping big fellow was on the rack. As he measured the length of the trousers for the tailor said, '33, S. H. I.' "Yes," came back the reply from the big fellow, "and — how-legged too." "All these years tailors have been accusing me of being 'slightly bow-legged,' and I had never caught on until I was practically told the answer in the accidental way."—Philadelphia Record.

Books.

God be thanked for books! They are the voices of the distant and the dead and make us heirs of the spiritual life of past ages. Books are true levers. They give to all who will faithfully use them the best and greatest of our race. No matter how poor I am, no matter though the prosperous of my own time will not enter my obscure dwelling, if the sacred writers will enter and take up their abode under my roof—if Milton will cross my threshold to sing to me of paradise, and Shakespeare to open to me the world of imagination and the workings of the human heart, and Franklin to enrich me with his practical wisdom—I shall not pine for want of intellectual companionship, and I may become a cultivated man, though excluded from what is called the best society in the place where I live.—William Ellery Channing.

THE NUMBER THIRTEEN.

Time Was When It Used to Be Considered Lucky.

Abstract science has done much in brushing away the cobwebs of popular superstition, and abstract science establishes the fact that thirteen in ancient times had quite a different meaning from the thirteen of today. Oriental people found in thirteen some thing divine and hence something good. Thus it is in the folklore of the Persians the Indians and Hindus. Old Testament Jews were of the same opinion as Biblical students well know. Thirteen cities were especially dedicated to the priestly tribe, thirteen high priests descended from Aaron, thirteen kings sat in the high council of the ancients, on the 13th day of the month Nissan the preparations for Passover began, and the holy incense consisted of thirteen different odors.

It is well known that all the nations of the old world were in more or less intellectual rapport. The ideas of one tribe descended to the other. But it is certainly interesting to learn that the figure 13 had its sacred and divine meaning also in America of yore among the long since extinct tribes of the Incas and the Aztecs. The Incas' tenants of Peru counted seven days without any particular name in the week. Their year had seven times fifty-two days, or four times thirteen weeks. The father was compelled to support his illegitimate child to the thirteenth year. The Aztecs had weeks of thirteen days, each with a special name. Their century had fifty-two years, or four times thirteen. Their public archives were of circular form, with a sun in the center of each of the thirteen parts, and thirteen were their wives.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Charlotte Arushy of Whitinsville, Mass., has not been tardy or absent from school in twelve years.

Miss Elsie Fisher, a fifteen-year-old girl of West Chester, Pa., has bought a seventy-acre farm and will farm on her own account.

Miss Margaret Montgomery, a twenty-three-year-old girl of Stillwater, Okla., is the champion cotton picker in that state, if not in the entire country. She has picked 700 pounds of cotton in one day.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the International Suffrage association, is very fond of housekeeping, and a model kitchen. "The twentieth century kitchen," recently exhibited in New York, is her pet project.

Copenhagen has just celebrated the sixtieth birthday of one of Denmark's most remarkable women, Ida Falbe-Hansen. Her fame as an educator has spread over all the Scandinavian countries, and her influence in educational matters is pronounced. She is considered one of the most brilliant women in Denmark.

Central Illinois possesses the oldest unmarried woman in the United States. She is Miss Carrie Millhouse of Kendall county, who will be 105 years of age May 1 next. She was born in Norway and while in her native land was about to be led to the altar, but changed her mind at the last moment and has remained single since. She was famed as a beauty in Norway, and tradition recounts her attractive features when a young woman.

In Africa.

The sound of the tomtoms grew louder. "What's the meaning of all that din?" inquired the colonel. "Dem's de besters, sah," replied the intelligent headman. "Dey form a ring, sah, and drive de wild beasts to de middle, sah." "All right," said the colonel reflectively. "All right. Ring out the old, ring in the new!" And he chuckled convulsively.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
