SALVATION FREE.

But There Was a Collection and Also a Reason For It. The colored person had just concluded a powerful sermon on "Salvation Am Free" and was announcing that a collection would be taken for the benefit of the person and his family. Up jumped an acutely brunette member in the back of the church. "Look you, pabson," he interrupted, "you ain't no sooner done tellin' us dat salvation am free dan yo go askin' us fo' money. If salvation am free, what's de use in payin' fo' it? Dat's what I want to know. An' I tell yo' p'intedly dat I ain't goin' to gib yo' nothin' until I find out. Now." "Patience, brudder, patience," said the person. "I'll include 'bouse yo' was thirsty an' come to a river. Yo' could kneel right down an' drink yo' fill, couldn't yo'? An' it wouldn't cost yo' nothin', would it?" "Ob course not. Dat's jest what I—" "Dat water would be free," continued the person. "But, 'bouse yo' was to hat dat water piped to yo' house, yo'd have to pay, wouldn't yo'?" "Yes, sah, but—" "Want, brudder, so it is wid salvation. De salvation am free, but it's de havin' it piped to yo' dat yo' got to pay fo'. Pass de hat, denow, pass de hat."—Everybody's Magazine.

DURABLE INK.

The Secret of Its Manufacture Seems to Have Been Lost. The ink manufacturer has made great strides in his field. He has produced many colored fluids that seem well adapted to ordinary use. But how long will this ink last without fading? Did you ever pick up a letter written ten or fifteen years ago and note how much of it is illegible because the ink has faded? Some precious documents not a century old are preserved today in six tight cases, so that the ink will not fade any more. Others have been copied in order to retain the exact autography of the original authors. Fading ink is one of the things in which the ancients did not believe. Many of the medieval manuscripts six and seven hundred years old have their letters formed of ink that is as black and bright as on the day when first written. Who has the secret of this lost art of making durable ink? It is another one of the lost arts that is worthy of investigation. The ancients had fewer materials to work with and less facilities for laboratory tests, but we must acknowledge that there are some things in which they excelled us—World Today.

Joy of a Yawn.

When life seems more than usually lispid—and such moments do come to even the most hopeful of us—there is a sudden pleasant sympathy in the yawn of the terrier on the rug before the fire. "Ah, you, too, find things a little boring, old fellow?" we say to ourselves. A dog yawns nobly, making no attempt at disguising it with politely uplifted paw. All animals seem to enjoy a yawn except man. We once saw the late lamented hippopotamus at the zoo lift himself slowly from his murky pond and yawn. It was a great spectacle, tremendous. He yawned. The concentrated boredom of the whole creation seemed expressed in that gigantic yawn. For a few fascinated moments pond, shed, railings, people, all seemed merged in one colossal mouth. It was wonderful. Oh, we thought as we came away, to be able to yawn like that when life becomes too slippy.—Fall Mail Gazette.

Get Out of Doors.

Trodeau's classic experiment points us in the right direction. After inoculating a number of rabbits with tuberculosis he confined a number of them indoors and turned the others outdoors. The latter all recovered, while the former all died. This experiment shows that a rabbit living upon its natural food and under a natural environment is proof against tuberculosis. There is abundant reason to believe this equally true of man. In other words, tuberculosis is not a necessary evil of human life, but is a natural consequence of erroneous habits and departure from natural conditions. Man is naturally an outdoor animal. A mole lives a healthy life in a burrow. A man must live in the fresh air and the sunshine.—Medical Record.

The Brigands.

The word "brigand" is derived from a portion of the armor worn by archers. English and foreign, anciently called the "brigandine." This consisted of an apron of leather plated over, some fashion, with thin pieces of steel. From the irregularities of the light armed men who wore these defenses the name of brigand became in course of time infamous.
