A BASHFUL LOVER.

The Professor Was a Shy Wooer, but Finally Got the Lady.
Dr. Haldane, at one time a professor of St. Andrews university, was a very shy man. This latter failing prevented him from asking any lady to become his wife until he was well advanced in life.
However, he plucked up courage one day, redecorated his house and went to call on the object of his affections.
The lady, seeing the doctor's embarrassment, opened fire. "Well, doctor, has ye got through a' your papering and painting yet? I'm told your new carpets are just beautifu'. They say the pattern o' the dining room chairs is just quite out o' the way. In short, that everything about the house is just perfect."
Here was a providential opening he was not such a goose as to overlook. He advanced his chair, sidled toward her, stamping the while, raised his eyes furtively to her face and said, with a gentle inflection of his voice which no ear but a willfully deaf one could have misinterpreted: "Na, na, Miss Jane, it's no quite perfect. It canna' be quite that so long as there's one thing wanting."
"And what can that be?" asked the imperturbable spinster.
Utterly thrown on his beam ends by her willful blindness to his meaning the poor doctor beat a hasty retreat, drew back his chair from its dangerous proximity, caught up his hat and in tones of blighted hope gasped forth his declaration in these words: "Eh, dear, eh! Well I'm sure! The thing wanting is a—a—a—sideboard."
However, she married him after all.—London Answers.

THE WORD "FELLOW."

Its Course From the Universities into Everyday Life.
The word bachelor means originally "cowboy," a youth who looked after the cow, from the low Latin bacca and through the classical Latin vacca. In course of time the term was given in scorn to voluntarily unwedded men by ladies who had sharp tongues. The word was taken over by the universities in the middle ages, and the degree of bachelor was not supposed to be given to any man who had entered into the state of matrimony.
The word "fellow" has had a somewhat similar fate as far as the ladies and the universities were concerned. The universities of Oxford and Cambridge, to name but two, grant fellowships worth from $1,500 to $2,000 per annum at the various colleges to unmarried honor graduates of high distinction. If a fellow should enter into matrimony he still loses or forfeits his fellowship. As the "fellows" were generally men of apparent opulence or at least comfort in regard to living and dress, they readily attracted the attention of ladies who were thinking of settling down in life. When an acquaintance was formed between a "fellow" and a marriageable lady things usually went very delightfully until the fair schemer discovered the academic status of the man. Then the expression "fellow" which he is a fellow" came very naturally to her lips. And so it crept into secular or lay life and begat its unkind meaning. But, of course, if the graduate was willing to sacrifice his fellowship and its emoluments for the sake of the fair lady's lovely eyes and favors—why, he became a "good fellow," which is a horse of a totally different color.—New York World.

What He Said.
A gentleman and his son were walking down a street the other day. As they passed by the eye hospital the son said:
"What is that place, dad?"
"That, my son," he replied, "is the ophthalmic hospital."
"What's that for?" the little fellow inquired.
"Why," the father said, "that is for people who suffer with their eyes."
"Why don't you go there?" he asked his dad.
"I don't have any trouble with my eyes. Why should I go there?"
The son then answered:
"I heard me tell the next door neighbor that you were nearly blind last night."
Now his ma won't let him go out with his father any more.—London Tit-Bits.

Now She Troveled.
"How did the queen of Sheba travel when she went to see Solomon?" asked a Sunday school teacher.
No one ventured to answer.
"Could she have gone by the railway?"
"Yes'm," said a little girl.
"Indeed! Well, we would like to know how you found this out."
"In the second verse," responded the child, "it says she came with a great train."

Habit.
"That was an awful break you made at Mrs. Gotro's little buffet luncheon yesterday," said his wife.
"What break?"
"After you had received your plate of mince and finger roll from the maid you started to walk about the room looking for the cashier."—Detroit Free Press.

Satanic.
"Satan is represented as running after folks with a pitchfork," said Uncle Eben, "when de truth is dat so many folks is pullin' at his coat tails dat he ain't got time to chase nobody."—Washington Star.

THE HARDY CODFISH.

It Will Live For Hours Out of Its Native Element.
A man who had stopped at a stand in Fulton market to buy a fresh fish pointed his finger at a fish that pleased his fancy, being about two feet long and weighing about five pounds.
"That looks like a nice fish to me," he said, whereupon the dealer picked the fish up to put it on the scale.
The moment he picked it up the fish began to wriggle, and the next moment it had slipped out of the dealer's grasp and fallen on the sidewalk.
As the fish went down the customer turned to the stand and picked out another, which the dealer picked up and this fish stayed quiet until it had been put on the scale, but the instant it touched it began to hop vigorously and finally hopped itself out of the scale pan, to fall on the stand below.
Codfish these two lively and vigorous fish were, the cod being a fish that will live out of the water three or four hours, a good deal longer than most fish. At Fulton market live cod can almost always be found. The dealers keep their stock in fish cars in the East river, just across South street, and for retail trade bring over maybe fifty or a hundred pounds at a clip, enough to last half an hour or an hour, and when the stock runs low they bring over another lot, fresh out of the fish car.
The cod, though a salt water fish, will live for hours in fresh water. An angler who goes occasionally to the fishing banks tells of carrying home a codfish caught in the afternoon and placing it in a bathtub, to find it alive the next morning.—New York Sun.

TOOK NO CHANCES.

Young Bessemer Was Cautious as Well as Inventive.
The most trivial incidents have often originated the fortunes of our richest men. Take, for example, the fortunes made out of Bessemer steel. This genius, young Bessemer, had some idea of making steel out of iron, but a poor, newly married young man has no means of experimenting on a large scale. The story I must tell as I have heard it from an intimate friend of Bessemer and is a true tale. After Bessemer had in his small laboratory experimented with the metals and at last obtained the desired result by blowing air through melted iron he found in the bottom of the crucible a little lump of the famous steel. Now the question was how to make the discovery public. He put the lump of steel into his pocket and made his way to Nasmyth of steam hammer fame. Placing the metal on Nasmyth's desk, he told him that he had made this extraordinary discovery, which would revolutionize the whole metal world. Then came a little incident which shows what wonderful heads these Scotch financiers possess. What do you think Nasmyth said to his excited inventor?
"Eh, mon, it's very risky to show your wonderful invention. The world is very dishonest."
To which the aspiring inventor replied:
"Right, Mr. Nasmyth. I just calculated whom I was coming to see, so with my last half crown I registered the invention on my way."—London Strand Magazine.
