KLAMATH FALLS, SATURDAY, AUGUST 14, 1909.

A LIE, SAYS BALLINGER

land Secretary Ballinger has restored. It is a question of whether any power sites have been taken up under Ballinger which could not have been taken up under Secretary Garfield.

"The records show that the land was open longer than for the month of April. The records of the Boman land office also show that scrip selections were made of 153 acres of land on the Missouri river by the Collins Land company for George L. Ramsey. Mr. Ramsey says Collins owns the land. Collins is reported to be the agent for the United Missouri River Power company."

Kept Silent in His Address

Disappointment is expressed at the failure of Secretary Ballinger in his address yesterday to advert to the attitude of the department toward Pinchot and Newell. Ballinger read his address from a printed paper and made no mention of the strained relations.

The attitude of the delegates toward Pinchot was made plain yesterday afternoon when they hissed from the rostrum George Turner, an attorney for a private irrigation company at Tempe, Ariz. Turner, who is a delegate, criticized former Governor Pardee of California for Pardee's attack on Secretary Ballinger. The delegates hissed Turner and he retired in confusion.

The committee on resolutions announced today that it had received scores of resolutions commending Chief Forester Gifford Pinchot and Director F. H. Newell of the United States reclamation service in warmest terms and demanding the retention in office of those officials.

BALLINGER OR PINCHOT WILL HAVE TO RETIRE

Fight Over Water Power Sites Is Getting Acute.

WASHINGTON, August 12.—Interest is acute here in the impending struggle between Secretary Ballinger and Forester Pinchot, and predictions are freely made that one or the other will be obliged to separate himself from the government service. At the forestry bureau today Pinchot adherents expressed the opinion that Mr. Ballinger's dismissal would come as soon as it became generally known that he has, as they believe, played into the hands of the water power trusts. At the geological survey, which has had charge of examining western streams and locating water power sites since the advent of Mr. Ballinger, it was stated that the secretary had carefully safeguarded the rights of the government. For weeks prior to his retirement Secretary Garfield, at the instance of Mr. Pinchot, withdrew from settlement millions of acres of land along western streams for conserving water power. Mr. Ballinger held the law did not authorize such withdrawal, and returned the land to entry. This action was followed by many filings upon water power sites by power companies, but it is stated by the geological survey that in every instance action upon these entries has been suspended by Mr. Ballinger pending legislation by congress which will permit the government to acquire them. In other instances, where power sites have been located by survey they have been withdrawn by Mr. Ballinger from entry and reserved for government use pending legislation for their permanent acquisition. If congress next session will enact legislation which the president at the instance of Mr. Ballinger and the attorney general will recommend, all water power which was not in private hands when President Taft was inaugurated will be retained permanently by the government through legal methods.

Captain J. J. Rahm has just received his new power launch "Margarita" from the Michigan Steel Boat company. The launch is eighteen feet long, four and a half feet beam, with a six horse-power engine, canopy top, and capable of carrying comfortably fourteen passengers. Her speed is twelve miles per hour. Besides the launch, the captain has twelve row-boats of different sizes which can be secured at reasonable rates by applying at his new boathouse on the Upper lake. The Margarita will be used for the passenger business in the Upper lake and can be chartered at reasonable rates upon application to Captain Rahm.

STEVENS WAS NOT WITH HILL

about the canal until I got tired of it. I didn't want to tell any more. But, by the way, people don't seem to be nearly so much interested in the Panama canal as they were, but it's just as important as ever."

This last being one bit of information given on a subject which he had just stated he wanted nothing more to say about, Mr. Stevens added just this much about his life in Portland: "Whether I was here under the name of Sampson, or was not, I have nothing to say."

Went Under an Assumed Name

But this was a subject upon which E. B. Shannon, Mr. Stevens' private secretary at the time of the engineer's former visit to Portland, did have something to say. Mr. Shannon was also found in the lobby of the Portland this morning. His first statement was that he did not know Mr. Stevens was in the city. His next was:

"When he was here before he went under an assumed name, because he knew that if it became common knowledge he was here, that all sorts of constructions would be placed on the visit."

Mr. Shannon added that he did not believe Mr. Stevens was in the employ of Hill or knew anything about the Deschutes railroad.

"I haven't built any railroads or had anything to do with them since I closed my connection with the New Haven road," was Mr. Stevens' parting sentence. Leaving Portland, he may go to San Francisco, or he may take the Alaska trip, he says.

FROM COUNTY EXCHANGES

(From Merrill Record.)

Born, to the wife of E. A. Woolford, a ten-pound daughter. The mother and child are getting along nicely.

The Moore Bros. have constructed a branch line from their main system to connect with the residences of N. S. Merrill and Guy Merrill to furnish "juice" for pumping purposes.

An offer was made this week of $5 per front foot for property facing on Front street, adjoining the Record office, but this was immediately declined by the present owner, who sees the evident possibilities of city property increasing in value to a more material extent.

The construction of the new parsonage of the Presbyterian church has been commenced by the pastor, Rev. L. M. Anderson, and is now well under way. The building, when completed, will cost in the neighborhood of $1,500, and will contain nine rooms, seven on the lower floor and two on the upper. The building will be about sixty feet long, and the rooms large and comfortable. The parsonage is on Garfield street between Second and Third streets.

An unfounded rumor has been circulated extensively that our public schools would not continue the course of instruction in its ninth and tenth grades. This is an idea that is entirely without any foundation or is it capable of verification in any quarter. The teachers have been selected and engaged for the next term, and these two grades will be properly conducted. Whoever was the instigator of this rumor had no possible conception of the trouble it might cause or its deterrent effect on the intending settler with children to educate, or it would not have been disseminated.

Last week our office was visited by J. M. Ezell of Nevada, whom the editor had known in Nevada as the managing editor of the Daily Silver State, but later became interested in the publication of a newspaper in southwestern Nevada. Mr. Ezell has temporarily put aside his newspaper activities, his services having been secured by a number of Nevada capitalists desirous of investigating the Klamath country. This gentleman had visited the Falls and selected a piece of land in that vicinity on which he sent in a most favorable report. In this valley he carefully and systematically searched out all the various avenues for investment. He remarked, just before leaving: "This county has a great future before it; land will increase in value. Your resources are many and varied. When the railroad comes through, the population will increase with surprising rapidity. Under these conditions, it is a safe field for capital." The fact that Merrill has no water system attracted his attention and he made minute inquiries into this important matter, ascertaining the imperative need of the system, the supply and demand and the probable size of the plant necessary to do the work.

Euler's Wonderful Memory.

Leonhard Euler, who was born in 1707 and died in 1783 at St. Petersburg, where he spent his life as a teacher of great power and as a prolific writer, was an instance of the genuine mathematician endowed with almost superhuman powers. He left more than 200 manuscript treatises on his favorite subject, and the bulk of the works published by his academy between 1727 and 1783 were from his pen. In his old age he was totally blind. Then he carried in his memory a table of the first six powers of the "series of natural numbers up to 100."

It is related that on one occasion two of Euler's students attempted to calculate a converging series. As they advanced they found they disagreed in the result by a unit in the fifteenth figure. The question was referred to Euler, who decided to make the calculation. He did this mentally, and his result was found to be correct.—New York Tribune.

The Codmoppe.

Herrings are still eaten as much as in the days when Yarmouth had to send a hundred yearly to the king, baked in four and twenty pasties. But where is the codmoppe gone, and what was it like when kings dined off it in Lent? "Codmoppe sauce Hollandaise" would sound most intriguing on a Savoy menu. More original still would be the "roastid porpess" of a Henry V banquet, which was the "sea swine" of the unrefined Saxon, the "porco marino" of the mediæval ecclesiast. A mulster coke gives an early receipt for "pudding of porpess," another teaches how to "salte porpess and seele," another how to "undertraunche that porpess." From which it may be seen that enterprise extended also to the spelling of the porpess.—London Chronicle.

Candy-makers' Tricks.

An Atchison man went into a candy factory. He was surprised to see one of the candy-makers reach with his bare hand into a pot of boiling candy. He brought out a handful of the boiling fluid. He was testing its consistency. He first put his hand in a pail of water. After he had jerked out his hand he put it back in the water. The Atchison man tried the same thing and did it without getting burned.—Atchison Globe.
