o the Public:

As an introduction to the trade of Klamath Falls and Klamath County I have inaugurated a Great Sacrifice Sale. It will continue until further notice.

The Boston Store

O. M. HECTOR, Proprietor

OLD TIME HANGING.

PHON

ASY D

RS

8

KS

n

TI

Day When "Old Jennie" Was ocuted in Maryland.

rk as the day when old Jenbung" is one of the many yings that for generations has on the lower eastern shore nd, but from the accounts thre been given by those who n day since that time as dark I lar day on which she was executed de murder in the neighborin which she lived.

murderess was publicly in 1815 to the old jall yard at Anne, and all those who rethat particular day have leress was a white woman, angular, and it was said that abled what was popularly to be a witch far more than up to date woman of fact, local bistory records that There she came from she havneighborhood, where she killed of four. In those days murderers were with as little trouble and ex possible. The wizen faced of all Sometset was placed in drawn by two oxen and placed under a stout limb of an old se was fixed in rude fashion her neck, amid the burrats of growd and the curses of the woman, and when all was in bey were given the oxen's heads, ling the command, they the command, they made a for the fodder and left old dangling at the end of the rope day, it has been told thousands section. Chickens remained on candles by the score burned in to their work. The local scientists and which were recorded years make interesting reading. darkles and suferstitions whites se days naturally thought that end of time had come. A great by negrees declare today that the around on the cage of the woods any time on a dark, gloudy night, and they are very careful not to encounter her.-Oriole (Md.) Cor. Chicago Inter

WINGS THAT WERE FINS.

Evidence That Penguin's Pinions Were

Ornithological puzzles are the penguins, with their curiously shaped wings and odd, unbirdlike, upright carriage. The pocutarities of their wings suggest that the penguins are descendants of birds which used their wings rather than legs in the pursuit of prey under water, and as the struggle intendfied between the competing individuals the most expert at this sort of swimming would get the most food and oust less successful rivals. The winners gained advantage over their neighbors in proportion as their wings improved as swimming organs and in-versely and of necessity became less suited to perform the work of flight.

In all other birds the feathers, though shed annually, are more or less gradunity displaced. But in the penguins the new feathers all start into being at the same time and thrust out the old come away in great flakes. Whereas in all birds save penguins the new feathers as they thrust their way brough the skin end in pencil-like in the penguins these sheaths are open at the tips and attached by their rims to the roots of the old feathers, and hence these are held to their succes sors until they have attained a sufficient length to insure protection against varneth afforded by the old feathers until the new generation can fill their dates is apparently due to the fact but pengulus are patives of the auttrette regions, although some now inhabit tropical seas. Chicago Tribune.

A coal merchant who was a man of words once wrote to an agent the following brief letter: ic descriptions which they gave

In due time the agent's reply came

Dear Mr. Sinclair-";" The coal dealer's letter, translated, said, "See my coal on," which is the semicolon expressed vertally

The agent informed the dealer that the coal was shipped by saying simply "Colon." Scrap Book.

The Youngster Hushed. When the great French chemist Chevreul attained his hundredth birthday he was entertained at a public dinn at which his son, a high official in the epartment of justice, sixty seven years old, was also present. The old man made a speech and in telling an anecslight slip, which his son corrected. Old Chevreul turned around quickly and said in a sharp tone, "Hush, youngster, when I am talking." And the "youngster" held his tongue.

An Odd Perquisite.

One of the most curious perquisites n connection with English coronato claim the bed and bedding used by the heir apparent on the night preceding the coronation. In olden times this was a perquisite of considerable value, as the "bedding" usually consisted of richly embroidered coveriids of velvet or slik, with priceless hangags of cloth of sliver and gold.

She-I can't bind myself until I'm sure. Give me time to decide, and if six months hence I feel as I do now I will be yours. Ardent Adorer-I could never wait that long, darling. dealing in futures without the actual delivery of the goods is gambling pure and simple.-Puck.

The One to Blame.

"It is the duty of every man and woman to be married at the age of twenty-two," said the lecturer. "Well," said a woman of thirty, with rome asperity, "you needn't tell me that. Talk to the man."—Philadelphia

"Are you popular with the Kash

"Dashed !f I know. Each one always introduces me as a friend of her sister."-Cleveland Leader.

and in ten years you will be learned -

Not Consistent.

"What was I saying when I dedged that automobile?"

"You were saying that life is not worth living. But if you think so why did you dedge?" - Louisville

Man is made of dust, but he is usually out for more.-Exchange,

STEALING IN STORES,

The Ingenuity That Is Shown by the Woman Thief.

TRICKS OF THE SHOPLIFTER.

The Satchel With a False Bottom and the Slit In the Dress Near the Bolt. Same Schemes Successful Because of Their Very Simplicity.

As numerous as they are ingenious are the tricks of the modern shoplifters, declare store detectives. It keeps the detectives busy to "get on" to the devices of the men and women who stores. For tricks that are canny few classes of criminals, it is said, ap-

The method of stealing by using the satchel with a false bottom is one of the cleverest of the tricks.

Well disguised, the shoplifter enters a store. Her eyes run over the counters. She perceives the object she wants—usually something small and valuable, sometimes a purse a custom-

Over the object the shoplifter places her satchel. Pretending to deive into the satchel to extract a purse or handkerchief, the thief lifts a false bottom in the bag, reaches under it, draws inside the desired article, adjusts the walks away.

"But this is only one of many clever ruses employed," declared a detective the other day. "The women especially are ingenious. Their dress, of course, helps them.

"One of the methods of stealing is for the shoplifter to have a slit in her dress near the belt. As she stands near the counter she can deftly seize the article desired, be it a piece of lace or costly fabric or a bit of jewelry, and slip it into the skirt. The folds of the skirt are voluminous and conceal the thing stolen.

"Some tricks are successful because of their simplicity. A fashionably dressed woman may walk into the clothing department, look over coat sults, pick up one, fold it neatly up, place it under her coat and walk

"If she is detected she will indignantly declare that she bought the suit some time before and that she has brought it back to be altered. 'Or a woman, her hands glittering with rings and dressell in the latest style, may walk into the store some winter day. She wears only a rich at of dark fabric. 'In the cont department she will ask to see some fur lined coats. Oh, she is very particular and tries on one after another. Other customers come up, and while madam is trying to suit herself.

"While the saleshady is turned she puts on one of the richest sable trimmed coats, turns on her heel and walks away. Perhaps the salesgirl may not notice the loss until there is "Each month from fifty to sixty arrests are made in the average large department store. The detectives must be extremely careful, for a false charge would precipitate a suit for damages, which would mean many thousands.

Certain departments hold especial lures for shoplifters. The jewelry department is invariably guarded. When the furs come in we have sieuths who keep their eyes open for the woman who likes to take a fur to the window to examine it, then running for the door; the woman with the false skirt and the woman who puts a fur on and andaciously walks away."

Aithough the sales departments and the detective departments work together, there exists between them a spirit of justifiable rivairy. If a detective perceives some one getting the person behind the counter from which the goods were stolen. There-fore the sales folk keep an alert watch

One might imagine that goods are dumped pelimelt on the counters of efficient saleslady will have everything o arranged that she will notice the disappearance of an article almost im-she immediately notifies the head de detective is usually put on the job. It is said store managers usually find women more efficient than men. Few arrests are ever made in the stores, as an arrest gives only undesirable publicity. The detective usual-iy follows suspected persons from the store and arrests him or her outside. It is said that arrests for shoplifting in New York exceed 3,000 a year, that city a full description of all shop-lifters caught are sent to the Retail Dry Goods association, which in turn distributes the information to the various members.

Only by concerted action and with can the stores cope with the ingenious

The detective system of the big stores, however, is now so perfect that it is dangerous to attempt shoplifting. Even the eleverest shoplifter faces a long Jail term in the pursuit of her nefarious work.

More than that, if a shoplifter for any reason should escape paying the penalty of crime in one city she may not be so fortunate in another. scriptions of all suspected persons are sent out breadcast, and arrest in an-other city may mean a jail term, even though the thief may have escaped punishment previously.—Philadelphia

Good Red $2.00 Per Cedar Shingles $2.00 Thousand

Building Materials of all Kinds and Prices

Our Prices are the Lowest, Quality Considered

We can Furnish Everything You Need in a Building and the Best to Be Found in the Market

The Big Basin Lumber Co.
C. E. Evans, Manager, Weed, Cal. S. P. White, Gen'l Agent

THE CRUSH OF WORLDS.

What Would Happen if a Dead Sur Invaded Our Solar System

is possible, though it is not prov ed, that stars may sometimes proach one another and even madly from their spheres." "What would happen were an unknown star or a dead sun to invade our solar system?" asks a writer in the London Illustrated News, who answers his query in two ways. In the first place, the star might rush straight into the sun and by the heat of the collision renebulous mass without form or structure. But it is more mathematically probable that just as comets approach, circle and recede from the sun, so the starry invader of our system would approach our system and recede from it, having altered it beyond recogni-

But what would be its effect upon our sun? The sun as we know it today is explosively elastic. Great tongues of flame which would contongues of flame which would con-sume a little planet like ours at a mouthful continually leap from it with speeds of several hundred miles nd. This enormous explosive force of the sun's gravity. But if an came . within striking distance of it then along the line joining the two other, as today the moon pulls up the

The mighty pull of the invading star would neutralize the sun's gravity in one direction, and the sun would, in a sense, explode. Out from our ances tral sun and from opposite sides of it would fly two great lengthening the farthest planet. As the star passed, its moving mass would give a further twist to the sun and would pull the arms of matter into the shape motion would thus be imparted to the nebula thus created, and from the solar system thus extinguished in catastrophe a new sun, with planets condensing from the lumps and inequali ties in the projecting arms, would

CAPE HATTERAS.

The Shifting Sands and Point of This Isolated Place.

There are few names more widely known in the United States or localiprevails than Cape Hatteras. Situated the big stores. As a matter of fact, the strip of sand beach from Cape Henry south turns at a right angle to the westward, with the widest part of Pamilico sound between it and the nainland and with the beach west and north cut into several islands by inlets from sound to ocean, its po-sition is isolated. No means of trans portation exist along the beach, and with the nearest railway station from which a regular transportation route is operated nearly a hundred miles away it is an easier place to talk about than to visit.

Like all sand promontories, the point of the cape is always moving. An old wreck imbedded deep in the sand and showing only the stumps of her masts and lowspit and the rusty skeletons of what were once her chain plates and dead eyes is now a quarter of a mile or more inland. Twenty years ago she is said to have lain in the water, where she struck or drifted ashere, the land now outside of her having been built up since by the ac-tion of the wind and the waves. Two features connected with the sailing of the fishing skiffs used here abouts are new to me. One is that of using a member of the crew as shift-ing ballast. A plank is run out over the side, the inner end caught under the lee washboards, while on the outer end, with legs dangling over the water. sits the man acting as ballast, and this not in racing, mind you, but in every day sailing. The other is the practice of "nodding," as I heard it called. In moderate weather, when the skiff is only lightly gliding along, one man will stand up alongside the centerboard on the weather side and, facing outward, will steadily rock side wise from one foot to the other with faster. And perhaps it does.—Char-

The Red Sea. In the Red sea reefs of bright pink coral are clearly to be seen. Much of the rocky bed of this sea is the work sea is because along its eastern shore lies ancient Edom. This word signifies "red." It was given to the region not from the color of its sandsto but from its people. These are the descendants of him who came in faint weary from hunting and said to his brother. "Feed me, I pray thee faint;" therefore was his name called Little Muriel flew into the house flushed and breathless.

"Oh, mother," she cried, "don't so me for being late to tea, for I've had such a disappointment! A horse fell going to send for a horse doctor, so of course I had to stay. And after I'd waited and waited he came, and, oh, mother, what do you think? It wasn't man"-Everybody's Magazine.

DR. C. P. MASON

American Bank & Trust Co 's puildin

BICYCLES

For an up-to-date wheel et a Rambler, on sale at The Gun Store. Tents and Guns for sale or for rent We carry a full line of Sporting Goods

THE GUN STORE Phone 593 Opposite Am. Hotel

16-INCH WOOD

a cord, delivered to any part of ci y ACKLE BOS. Phone 451

Wood

Four Fo t Dry Sla Wood

$3.50 a Cord

HUTCHINS & FAUGHT

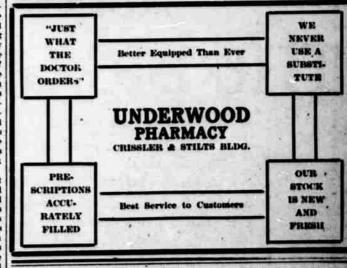

CENTRAL CAFE

Private Dining Parlors Oysters Served in Any Style J. V. HOUSTON, Prop.

FOR SALE

of Klamath Falls. Will sell as a whole or in part. art down, the balance in de Apply to

R. A. EMMITT at the Post Mer-

DON J. ZUMWALT,

Abstracting

Mape, Plans, Blue Prints, Bic.

Klamath County Abstract Co. Surveyors and Irrigation Engineers

BEAT E WITHHOW, Secretary

Klamath Falls, Oregon

A Hold-Up?

Well, I Guess Not!

Of course, we make a profit on our goods---We are in business for that purpose---but the steady stream of customers coming to our new store in the Mang Block, Sixth St, enables us to turn our money so fast that a very reasonable profit is all we want. Furniture can be sold on close margin, as well as other goods, and that's the way we sell it. When you want anything in the Furniture line come to us, and see what fair treatment we give you.

Good Furniture at Fair Prices E. W. GILLETTE & CO., FURNITURE