STEVENS' OPINION

(Concluded From First Page.)

line, to which will be drawn range stock before final shipment, and many of the farms will continue to put their products into livestock profits.

Dry farming offers the greatest possibilities of all avenues of development. It is this that Mr. Stevens emphasizes. Soil is rich; there is some rainfall, and intelligent application of proven methods will bring forth marvelous cereal crops from Central Oregon lands. There are measureless acres, like those in Wasco and Sherman counties, along the line of the Columbia Southern and Great Southern, where wheat grows without any care and no dry farming applications. These lands will be made to increase from 15 bushels per acre for spring and 20 bushels per acre for fall sown until they reach the high averages of portions of Eastern Washington.

Oregon will be amazed at her own neglected districts. Railways are at last assured, unless the exigencies of the great players force a compromise, so that Oregon may now turn full energy upon development of the country opened, getting the farmer, advertising to the world the new land of agricultural wonders, and giving to the railway builder a profitable loanage for his lines.

MOON WAS UNDER A CLOUD.

An Incident of the Theater in the Earlier Days.

Early in the season of 1856-7, said J. M. Barron, the veteran actor, was in Petersburg, Va., at old Phoenix hall. The business was such that nightly long rows of Nile green seats could be seen from the stage.

In those good old times the utility people did not get more than $200 a week. The leading people received due bills on the next good house. We had in the utility contingent a Ute named Moon, and a bright Moon he was, but he was so lazy his shadow would not follow him. He was often late. The star was Charles Coulcock, and those old timers who can yet sit up on an even keel may remember that C. C. could do cuss poetry in four corners when filed, even if it were not in his contract.

We were rehearsing "The Willow Wisp," and Moon's cue came, but no Moon showed up. The call boy started with a shout, "Mr. Moon!"

The prompter called, "Mr. Moon!" Three Utes away up stage joined in, "Mr. Moon, this is you; stage is waiting."

No Moon.

Coulcock began to pace from tower doors to L 4 E. No Moon.

Finally Coulcock bawled out: "Where is that Moon—that utility idiot? Always late and doesn't know his cues when he hears them."

No Moon yet. It appeared that Mistress Moon had presented the old man with a fine daughter—a new Moon. The father Moon went out to celebrate with the boys and later on was wheelbarrowed home a full Moon.—New York Telegraph.

PLAYING THE PIANO.

Rubinstein's Way as a Teacher With His Pupils.

"Once I played a Liszt rhapsody pretty badly. After a few moments he said, 'The way you played this piece would be all right for a amateur.' Then, rising and coming toward me, he would say, 'Now let us see how we play such things.' Then I would begin all over again, but hard by had I played a few measures when he would interrupt and say: 'Did you start? I thought I hadn't heard right.'"

"Yes, master, I certainly did. I would reply.

"Oh, he would say vaguely, 'I did not notice.'"

"How do you mean? I would ask.

"I mean this," he would answer: 'Before your fingers touch the keys you must begin the piece mentally—that is, you must have settled in your mind the tempo, the manner of touch and, above all, the attack of the first notes before your actual playing begins.'"

"On another occasion I asked him for the fingering of a rather complex passage.

"Play it with your nose," he replied, 'but make it sound well.'"

"Once Rubinstein said:

"Do you know why piano playing is so difficult? Because it is prone to be either infected or else afflicted with mannerisms, and when these two pitfalls are luckily avoided then it is liable to be—dry! The truth lies between those three mischiefs."—Hofmann's "Piano Player."

Sweets Are Great Baby Savers.

The young, unspoiled human animal has a liking for sugar just as it has for sunlight, for fresh air, for play, for paddling in the surf and plunging in the stream or for food when it is hungry and sleep when it is tired and, subject, of course, to reasonable limitations, as wholesome as any of the others. This is precisely what our specialists in children's diseases and broad minded family physicians have been urging for decades past, and it would be safe to say that, next to the banishment of starchy foods, gruels and japs from the nursery and the substitution of pure, sweet milk, few things have done more to increase the vigor and happiness of modern children and to cut down our disgraceful infant mortality than the free and intelligent use in the nursery of sweet fruits, preserves, sugar, taffy and butterscotch.—Woods Hutchinson in Success Magazine.

Date Cake With Coffee Icing.

One-half cup of butter creamed, one and one-third cup of brown sugar added and beat together, two eggs well beaten, one-half teaspoonful cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful nutmeg, one and one-half teaspoonful baking powder, one-half cup sweet milk, one and three-quarter cups sifted flour, three-quarter cup dates, stones removed. Cut up fine and reserve a little of the flour to shake over them.

Icing—Two tablespoonfuls strong, strained coffee and the same quantity of the white of an egg stirred together. Thicken with powdered sugar until stiff enough to spread. Allow the cake to cool before it is iced.—Boston Post.

Origin of the Word Academy.

Academy was a wealthy Greek of Athens who lived several hundred years before the birth of Christ. Among his possessions was a beautiful grove, where young men used to congregate and listen to the teachings of wise men, such as Plato and Socrates. This developed into the school of modern times, and these modern schools take their name "academy" from the old Greek, Academus. The real meaning of the word academy is a school for boys.

The Hot Air Balloon.

It is related that the hot air balloon had its origin in a petticoat. Miss Montgolfier had washed her garment, intending to wear it to a great festival the next day, and hung it over a chafing dish to dry. The hot air swelled out its folds and floated it up into the air. The lady, in astonishment, called her husband to see the sight. He at once grasped the idea and was not long in producing the hot air balloon.

Unrequited Love.

First Office Boy—Mr. boss is awful cranky lately. I wonder what makes him so hard on a fellow. Second Office Boy—That's easy. When a man's hard on a fellow it's a sign he's soft on a girl.—Lippincott's.

Not His Fault.

The Post-Boys are born, not made. The Girl Editor—I wasn't blaming you.—Boston Transcript.

Getting Down to Facts.

"I love you."
"I've heard that before."
"I worship you madly."
"Loose talk."
"I cannot live without your love."
"Get some new stuff."
"Will you marry me?"
"Well, now, there's some class to that."—Indianapolis News.
