RETURNS COMING IN

A lady residing in Alturas is in receipt of a letter from a cousin in Nebraska which gives an insight into the operations of the Oregon Valley Land company, and one not at all to the credit of the company. The letter states that many have been induced to sell their homes back there and invest their all in this scheme. These returning victims, and letters written by others, say was accomplished by the grossest misrepresentation, if not downright lying, and steps will be taken to bring the matter to the attention of the United States authorities, charging fraudulent use of mails. Many, this lady writes, have been ruined and lost their homes. On the other day a man and wife through Alturas on their way Lakeview. They had sold their home and invested their money in a scheme. Returning parties had plained conditions, and the man were almost heartbroken. The man was in tears and the man wretched beyond measure. We not know if these robbed and deceived people can obtain redress the courts, but there should study some means to bring the matter to justice.—Alturas Plaindealer.

Week's Doings AT THE BIG STORE

There was a man came into our store the other day, nicely dressed and real nice looking, but he had no moss on his think-tank and talked through his nose some. He told us he was from the Summer lake country and was looking for Prices and Bargains. We told him everything we could think of, and he said we was the cheapest outfit he had struck for some time. But as I was goin' to say, we had a big dray load of heaters come in, and they are put away for the winter; and we had a lot of Rugs and Carpets and other things come in, too. One man got a tolerable good one for $1 and a buckaw for 50c. A kid got a Nutmeg Grater for 5c and a down seat hooks for 15c. One man wanted three pitchforks, but we told him we only kept a few tools to keep house with. A lady wanted a go-cart, "something cute," she said. We had just what she wanted for $15.50. She went up the street with it, almost tickled to death. Another lady wanted a fine Rocking Chair. When we told her the price was $20 she fell in a dead faint. But when she came to she admitted that it was the best chair in town for the money. One man got a tub and washboard for $1.10. A lady bought a fine pair of goose-hair pillows for $4.50 and a waffle iron for a dollar and two bits. After we paid our bills Saturday we counted up and we was in the hole four cents. But we are going to go ahead just the same. Don't forget the place to buy things.
