KLAMATH FALLS, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1909.

TAFT WILL BE THERE, TOO

land last week. He was alone in a skiff and got a big stingray on the hook. The fish was four feet broad and as soon as he took the bait, began to tow the boat. Pinchot got his finger caught between the line and the boat and the bruise took off the nail of the index finger.

On arriving here from his island outing, Mr. Pinchot made an indirect reference to President Taft's recent decision in the Pinchot-Ballinger controversy, declaring the Roosevelt conservation policies were the policies of the people, who would demand of the present executive that they be carried out. He said:

"As a nation, we are coming to a realization that the Roosevelt policies are the real policies. I feel so, and the people feel so. And further, the people of the country feel that President Taft is pledged to support these policies, and that his administration is called upon to see that they are carried out."

Secretary of the Interior Ballinger joined the presidential party at Denver and will go through to Seattle with the president. He assisted Taft in the formal opening of the Gunnison tunnel at Montrose, Col., the greatest irrigation project the government has ever undertaken.

Taft announced that he would not make his speech on the conservation of natural resources—the topic of supreme interest in the country through which he will pass during the next two weeks—until he reached Spokane, on September 25th. It was at Spokane that the controversy between Secretary Ballinger and Chief Forester Pinchot became an issue. In the brief references he has made in his speeches so far, Taft has declared the reclamation work must go on, but that it must be done in conformity with the law and that no project will be undertaken until the money for the work is in hand.

It is learned that when President Taft wrote his letter to Secretary Ballinger, sustaining him in all that he has done as head of the interior department, he also wrote a letter to Pinchot. Further than to say he had frequent correspondence with Pinchot and that they always had been the warmest friends, Taft has made no comment on the matter.

In his speech of Colorado Springs the president said:

"We are entering upon an era of prosperity that I hope will be exceptional even in the history of our prosperity, but in doing so we must be careful not to forget the obligation there is upon us to adopt such legislative matters in state and nation as shall prevent a recurrence of abuses which were brought about so plainly to the mind of the people by my predecessor, Theodore Roosevelt."

"It is easy when you are comfortable and when the income is coming in to think everything is all right, but it is just about that time when the sappers and miners begin their work upon the foundations of society with reference to the abuses to which I have referred."

"And this administration is pledged with the aid of the people to put upon the statute books such additional legislation as shall clinch the advance in the standards of business and in the management of railroads and industrial corporations which were set up by my predecessor in his talks to the people and in his messages to congress.

"Now, I think we have made great advances under this influence, but we must not stop."

Taft took up the question of conservation of resources, including the reclamation of arid land, the preservation of forests and the deepening of waterways and pledged all his efforts in the direction of a scientific solution of these questions.

"Such a policy," he said, "cannot be brought to a culmination in one administration, or two, or three. All that each one can say while he is responsible, is that his best efforts will be devoted to carrying out these policies, not only to devoting the government's attention, but also in encouraging the use of private capital and private effort in the same direction."

Helping the Town ...

By banking your money in a bank in your own community you increase the community's power to do business. If substantial farmers want to borrow money there is more to loan them. If you bank your money away from home it is loaned to other farmers, merchants and manufacturers. Help your home people. Money hidden at home helps no one. Placed in a bank it is put to work in ways that help all.

A Savings Account ...

Is a rainy day fund, a life insurance policy, a sick benefit, a funeral benefit, and an old age pension. There is no furniture drawn to the graveyard, and it is under the owner's control at all times. It will tide him over sickness; it will care for his family when he must go; it will see him through old age, and bury him when he dies. It is a simple business proposition. Invest early, and keep it up, and, like money in the desert, it will multiply him as he journeys.
