

LETTER FROM CHAMBERLAIN

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF COMMITTEE'S COMING

WILL BE HERE NOVEMBER 9

Steps Should Be Taken to Provide Suitable Entertainment for the Visitors

The following letter has been received from Senator Chamberlain by the Chamber of Commerce:

Portland, Ore., Oct. 9.
Chamber of Commerce, Klamath Falls, Ore.:

Gentlemen—The senate committee on irrigation, of which Senator Thomas H. Carter of Montana is chairman, and of which I am a member, is scheduled to reach Klamath Falls at 7 o'clock a. m., Thursday, November 9th, spending the day in your city. We are examining the various reclamation projects throughout the states and territories which have been completed or in course of building. The committee is not taking note of proposed projects or projects petitioned for by any community as those necessarily must first be acted upon by the reclamation bureau of the interior department.

It would please me personally and the committee if a meeting can be arranged for where we can hear the statements of the settlers or farmers living or owning property under the Klamath project. I have the honor to remain, yours very sincerely,

W. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

This brings up the question of what form of entertainment shall be provided for the committee. Doubtless most of the time will be occupied in hearing any statements that may be presented for the consideration of the committee by the directors of the Water Users' association and the land owners, but when this is concluded something should be done to show the visitors that the Klamath project can be a good host.

At the meeting of the stockholders, to be held in this city one week from today, ample funds should be appro-riated to defray the expense connected with the proper entertainment of the visitors. The Klamath project is looking for many favors from the government, and no matter how much the land owners believe they are entitled to, the easiest way to secure attention is to show the committee on irrigation that the people here are glad they came.

NEW SUITS FILED

E. G. Wilson vs. A. Kinney and Ada Kinney, suit for recovery of money. H. W. Keese, attorney for plaintiff.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Applegate and their daughter, Evelyn, drove in from the ranch at Swan Lake this morning. Miss Evelyn will start for San Diego in the morning where she will visit friends. Later she will return to Los Angeles, where she will become one of the instructors in the Filmore school of music. This institution is one of the leaders on the coast, and the selection of Miss Applegate as one of its teachers is a high tribute to her ability as a musician. The Conservatory of Music which Miss Applegate conducted in this city last year with such remarkable success, will not be reopened this season.

H. W. Keese is in receipt of a notice from the registrar of the Lakeview land office, advising him that the contest inaugurated by H. E. Wilson against the entry of H. J. Winters for the homestead in the SW 1/4 of section 32, township 40 south, range 12 east, has been decided in favor of Mr. Wilson, final decision in the matter having been rendered by the secretary of the interior.

W. H. Weeden of the Klamath states returned this morning from Ashland, where he has been visiting his parents for the past week. Mrs. Weeden, whose parents also reside in Ashland, where she has been for a month past, returned with her husband. While away they visited Medford and other parts of the Rogue river country.

BUSINESS MEN AND SENATORS

PORTLAND MAKES DEMANDS ON OREGON'S SENATORS

WANT DEEP CHANNEL TO SEA

Important Conference at Which Plans Are Laid for a Harmonious Working Basis.

The most important conference ever held between the congressional delegation of this state and the commercial interests of Portland discussed the needs of Oregon for two hours today in the assembly room of the Chamber of Commerce. Senators Bourne and Chamberlain were present as were about fifteen of the biggest business men of Portland, and when the session was over the Congressional delegation had pledged itself to strain every effort to secure more and bigger appropriations for Oregon than have ever been granted by congress heretofore.

Among the big projects that were taken up and intrusted to the vigilance of the two senators were the improvement of the mouth of the Columbia and the channel from Portland to the sea; the free canal and locks at Oregon City; the Cello canal and the improvement of Coos bay.

While Senators Bourne and Chamberlain felt that it would be more difficult than ever to get big slices of "pork out of the barrel" in the future because of the inevitable "economic era" which was dawning in congress, they both openly and emphatically pledged their unwavering support to these projects to the following extent, which meet the needs of the state as the Chamber of Commerce members see them: $15,000,000 for forty feet of water at the mouth of the river and a thirty-foot channel from Portland to the sea; $3,700,000 for the completion of the Cello canal; $2,700,500 for the improvement of Coos bay and $455,000 for the latter project the state of Oregon has already authorized an appropriation of $300,000, leaving only $150,000 to be furnished by the government. No freer or franker expression of opinion, often to the point of personalities, has ever been exchanged by Portland business men and their servants in congress than took place at this conference.

The business men asked the senators what they were doing for Oregon in Washington, and what stand they would take in the future on definite projects in which the interests of the entire state were involved. The senators, with equal unrestraint, informed the Chamber of Commerce trustees that the latter have not supplied the congressional delegation with the specific data required in a great many instances, and that the delegation was continuously hampered because of this neglect on the part of the local commercial interests. The senators insisted that in the future all communications from official sources be forwarded to Washington in quadruplicate—a copy to each of the senators and to each of the representatives so that the delegation could act on all these propositions as a unit.

Incidents were repeatedly noted where the congressmen were at the mercy of committees because they lacked detailed, accurate, complete and official data of subjects involving appropriations for local projects. The senators were informed that in the future they would be bountifully supplied with all the data needed.

ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY

SENATOR BOURNE WILL SEEK RE-ELECTION TO SENATE

PROUD TO REPRESENT STATE

Feels That His Absence From State Best Serves the Interests of His Constituents

Senator Bourne formally announced his candidacy for re-election to the United States senate Wednesday. It happened at the meeting between the two Oregon senators and the representatives of the business interests of Portland. It was in the course of some remarks that the senator said:

"There is a constantly growing sentiment in favor of Oregon in the East. One of the greatest financiers in the United States, among others, informed me that capital is looking this way more than ever. The prevailing opinion is that Oregon presents more undeveloped natural resources than any other state or territory in the Union. I am proud to be the servant of such a state, and I find that my acquaintance in Washington is of more benefit to Oregon than anything I can do right here on the scene. I have been harshly criticized in many quarters for this, for not spending more time here. I may be eliminated for pursuing such a course, but I shall be a candidate for the United States senatorship again, if I live."

AT THE OPERA HOUSE

A thrilling romance of the Civil War, "A Wartime Sweetheart," tells of the sacrifices made by a girl for the sake of a young Union officer to whom she is betrothed. He had been falsely accused of treachery.

A delightful colored-film drama tells of the "Tragic Ending of Shrove Tuesday."

Tunisian customs are interestingly shown in a pictorial series, where the native potters and basket weavers are seen at work.

A very amusing and delightful comedy, "Borrowed Clothes," tells of a young artist who takes the clothes of his sister and attends a dinner. You may imagine what occurs when he returns a little hilarious and the owner of the suit he is wearing pounces upon him.

"The Truer Love" is a drama which ranks among the best of the motion pictures. It tells the story of puppy love and the ruer love which follows. Orchestral music tonight and after the performance the regular Friday night dance.

Tickets will be on sale at the California Northeastern depot October 15, 16 and 17 from this city to San Francisco and return for $18.80, on account of the Portola Festival. The return portion will be good until October 31.

"Winter Sports in Canada" is another beautiful and interesting scenic picture, showing the pleasures and pastimes of those who live in the far North.

"Charity Begins at Home" and "A Mother's Sorrow" are two more pleasing films.

Two illustrated songs will finish this especially attractive program at the Iris tonight. The same program will be rendered tomorrow night.

MUCH LAND INVOLVED

CHEWAUCAN BASIN BECOMES A COVETED PRIZE

RAILROAD ADVENT IS CAUSE

The Fight Will Be Four-Cornered, and the Oregon State Land Board Is Involved

Charles M. Sain, staff correspondent of the Portland Journal, writes the following interesting letter from Paisley:

With the seeming certainty that Jim Hill intends to build a railroad into Central Oregon, there has been precipitated a contest for the possession of 12,000 acres of land in the Chewaucan basin that may rival the famous case in Warner valley between the settlers and the swamp company.

It is a four-cornered fight, and the parties involved are the Portland Irrigation company, the Oregon state land board, certain residents of Lake county and J. B. Haggin's Chewaucan Land and Cattle company. And if the matter goes into the courts, which seems inevitable, it may reflect upon the administrations of Governor Chamberlain and President Roosevelt.

The immediate incentive for writing this account is the report in the Salem papers that the Portland Irrigation company through its president, C. K. Ball, and Attorney Sawyer had made application to the land for a certain portion of time within which to begin the construction of irrigation works for the Chewaucan Carey act project.

The reasons given in the report by the Portland Irrigation company for asking the extension of time were "to settle the rights of that company and the Chewaucan Land and Cattle company of California. The California company has purchased several thousand acres of land in this district, and now claims the right for the whole flow of the Chewaucan river to water its stock and irrigate its lands."

This information is indefinite and unsatisfactory. Haggin has owned the 2,000 acres of the Chewaucan marsh for many years. It was purchased in the early days under the swamp act for $1 an acre, and along with the Hyran and Silver lake marshes is a part of the range. Instead of claiming all the flow of the Chewaucan river, Haggin has for years been
