TAPA CLOTH.

Attire of the Native Hawaiians Before Civilization Arrived.

The "paper mulberry" tree (Broussonetia papyrifera) is the source of the famous "tapa cloth" of the Polynesian islands. This is a natural tissue and is derived from the inner bark and after being torn off in strips is scraped with shells and beaten with a mallet until it resembles a soft, flexible paper. The individual strips are united by overlapping the edges and beating the strips together until large pieces of the tissue are formed.

It is said that before Hawaii was swept with the wave of civilization men and women were dressed in this natural bark cloth "tapa" or "kapa." The dress of the women consists of the "pa-u," or wrapper, composed of five thicknesses of tapa, about four yards in length by three in width, passed several times around the waist and extending below the knee. The dress of the men was the "malio," or shirt, about a foot in width and several yards long. A "kikiel," or mantle, six feet square, was sometimes worn by both sexes. In former years these natural cloths were sometimes bleached to snowy whiteness or were dyed in colors and even printed or ornamented usually in checks or squares.—Exchange.

A Practical Demonstration.
"The best way to study nature is to go right to it."
"I suppose so."
"Oh, I know it. I was once disposed to doubt the industry of the ant, of which so much is said."
"And you learned better?"
"I did. I had a controversy with a naturalist over the question, and I thought I had him beaten until he gave me a demonstration."
"Took you out and showed you the ants at work, did he?"
"Well, not exactly that, but he took me along on one of his scientific expeditions and they maliciously pitched my tent over an ant hill. By the time I discovered what was happening the conviction was forced upon me that ants are really and truly industrious. They are small, but they made me move, and some of them went right along with us to the next camping place."—New York Times.

The Kettledrum in Music.

In a lecture delivered at the Royal Society of Arts by Gabriel Clother on the "Musical Aspect of Drums" it was contended that the kettledrum was one of the few perfect instruments in the orchestra, owing to the exactness of its scale. The kettledrum, he contended, was perfectly competent to produce atmosphere as well as rhythm. Even to tune the instrument three things were required—a perfect musical ear, a fine sense of touch and five years' experience. After playing over a kettledrum melody, written eighty years ago, from Meyerbeer's "Robert le Diable," Mr. Clother continued, "I venture to say that, outside the musical profession, not one person in a hundred of those who listen to an orchestra in England today knows that tympani have notes and can give out a melody." No instrument, he added, had a greater range of power than the kettledrum, for none could be played more softly, and none had greater penetrating power.—Dundee Advertiser.

Story or Sermon?
"I was telling Baby Hilda a fairy story one night," said the sky pilot. "Baby Hilda is my little girl. The story was all about another little girl who was chased by bears and who ran to the edge of a steep mountain and jumped off. No, she didn't die. The minute she jumped off she turned into a bird with wings and flew. That was the story."
"Baby Hilda thought awhile about it, then she looked up and said, 'Papa, is that story true or was it just preaching?'"—New York Press.

Our Shaping.
"Chance shapes our destinies," quoted the wise guy.
"Well, all I have to say is that some of us have mighty poor shapes," added the simple mug.—Philadelphia Record.

Like a Mental Moving Picture.
Baker—People who have been near drowning say that in an instant all the events of their past lives are presented to their mental vision. Baker—I don't believe it. Baker—Why not? Baker—If it were true they wouldn't allow themselves to be rescued.—Life.

He Dodged Cold Mutton.

Green, the English historian, one day asked a friend which of all the inventions of their day had done the most for the people as a whole. His friend guessed this and that, but the answer was:
"Beyond doubt, sixpenny photographs."

A reply involving quite as great an absurdity as that was made by Cecil Rhodes in answer to a lady who, seeking to draw him out, suggested that he owed his phenomenal rise to the impetus of noble sentiments.
"Madam," returned Mr. Rhodes, "I owe my fortune simply and solely to cold mutton."
"Cold mutton?" gasped the lady.
"Oh, Mr. Rhodes, what do you mean?"
"When I was young," continued the South African millionaire, "I was so dosed with cold mutton and I hated it so cordially that I resolved to grow rich in order to put it on one side for the rest of my life. Yes, madam, cold mutton was at the root of my success. Noble sentiments had nothing to do with it."

Preparing For a "Dewel."
One of the most remarkable documents that have ever come under our observation, says a law journal, is to be found in the case of ex parte Scoggin, 6 Tex. App. 546. Mr. Scoggin was under indictment for the murder of one William Gerrard, and an extract from a memorandum book in defendant's handwriting and found near the body ran as follows:
Johnson Co., Tex., Jan. 21, 1875.
As it may be the last penning that I may ever do on earth May heaven bless me and the man that I am going to do, for we have been traveling to greater and greater times and have sold out a bought the sum of $5 and have agreed to fight a dewel this Butiful night of our lord, and as one of us has to die May heaven bless us, as this is the last half hour on earth with one of us, hereon I promise me now and forever. Written by Jesse Scoggin, born and raised in Tex. Slain by William Jirod, born in Illinois.

Mr. Scoggin's piety apparently brought victory to him in the "dewel" for his adversary when found appeared to have been struck behind the ear by a thirteen inch shell.

A Substitute.
The young lawyer, having been nominated for the office of county attorney, thought to surprise an eccentric genius of the name of St who was working as a hired man on the young lawyer's father's farm.
"Well, St, what do you think?" the young man began.
"Sometimes one thing, Lony, an' sometimes 'nother."
"But, St, they have nominated me for county attorney."
"They might 'a' done worse, Lony. Howsomever, don't bother till you're out of the woods."
The young attorney was duly elected and on his next visit to the farm announced the fact unctuously to St, who was at the wood pile, saw in hand.
"Well, St, I am elected by a large majority. What do you think of that?"
"Well, Lony, down in our parts, where I was raised, when we wanted a stopper an' hadn't any cork we generally took a corn-cob."—Exchange.

Practicing on Wooden Legs.
Of the five cases in the accident ward that were pronounced cured at the same time three remained in the hospital more than a week after the other two had gone home.
"They had to stay," said an interne, "to get used to their wooden legs. It takes some time to learn to manage them, and most men who will have to peg along with them for the rest of their natural lives stay in the hospital several days after they get well to practice stumping around on their new legs. Of course they can learn outside, but the man who has just acquired a wooden leg feels so awkward and is so likely to fall down and break the other leg or an arm or maybe his neck that we prefer to keep him here so he can take his first lessons under our supervision."—New York Press.

Thousand Islands.
The Lake of the Thousand Islands is forty miles long and varies from four to seven miles in width. It is both a continuation of Lake Ontario and the beginning of the St. Lawrence river. The Thousand Islands are really about 1,700 in number, big and little. Many of them are favorite summer resorts, with hotels and boarding houses of rich Americans and Canadians. The voyage through them is picturesque, and many of the islands are illuminated at night.

Who Voted?
Benjamin Franklin once discussed the proper qualification for voting in Pennsylvania. A man owned a donkey of sufficient value to enable him to vote, but before the next election the donkey died, and the man's vote was refused. "Now," asked Franklin, "who voted at the previous election, the man or the donkey?"

A Trisomy.
Walter—They do say you're a great hand at a Welsh rabbit, sir. The Clubman—They do, eh? The Walter—Yes, sir. O' heerd was man say ye made was that was worth all the trouble it gey him after he ate it.

More in His Line.
"Do you think I will make a player?" asked a sluggish applicant for football.
"You may make a chess player," said the coach. "You are slow enough in moving."

MINUTE WHALES.

A Million and a Half Could Rest on the Head of a Pin.

The completest and most perfect of whales is a whale so small that 1,500,000 such whales could find room in a space not larger than an ordinary pin's head. But in that vanishing speck of matter there is already determined just how all the innumerable cells of the future whale's body are to grow, how many of them are to be and where the bone cells, the muscle cells, the nerve cells and all its other bodily cells are to find their proper places in his body to the end of that whale's life.

But much more than that. In that one primordial cell, scarcely imaginable for its minuteness, are stored the physical memories, so to speak, of that whale's ancestors back to the first whale. Therefore as he grows he will show that whales used to walk, for legs complete to the last leg bone will be found in the adult whale in the proper place for legs, but now tucked under his skin because they are no longer usable, much as an English nobleman hangs in his hall his ancestors' coats of mail as mementos of days now gone by since the coming of rifle bullets.

Moreover, such a minute whale is nothing but a whale, because he cannot possibly grow into a fish any more than he can grow into a bird, for whales are mammals and therefore separated by an impassable biological gulf from all fishes. Lastly, in that primal cell not only does there reside the whole ancestral heritage of former whales, but there is ample provision for an indefinite number of future whales.—Dr. William Hanna Thomson in Everybody's.

A POWERFUL PRAYER.
It Brought the Judge's Kind of Light to the Farmer.
"The late Judge Underhill," said F. D. Browne of the engineering department of the Southern Pacific, "was perhaps one of the greatest characters that ever entered the service of a railroad. It was his facile disposition that led to his being appointed right of way agent by the Southern Pacific."
"Underhill was all things to all men. The rival called him a reckless blade, the learned called him one of the elect, and the good character declared that the pulp would have had one of its brightest ornaments if he had only heard the call."
"He was the most successful right of way getter that the company ever had."
"Underhill was sent up against a tough proposition. There was a farmer whose land lay right in the path of the road, and he was coy about selling. Underhill was sent to see him. They were out driving when the farmer turned to Underhill and said:
"I want to do the right thing, Judge. I have prayed all night for guidance in this matter, and I have not been given light."
"We will pray for light right now," said Underhill, and, getting on his knees, he made a fervent prayer for the farmer to sell his land to the Southern Pacific.
"Awestruck, the farmer listened on his knees to the powerful invocation of the judge, and when Underhill resumed his seat in the buggy he said:
"I have been given light, Judge. I'll sell the land at the figure you name."
—San Francisco Call.

The Chestnut Horse.
There is an ancient tale of a band of Arabs being pursued by their enemies which sums up their theory about a horse's color. Among the fleeing band was a man with unusually keen eyesight, and from time to time he would describe to his leader the horses ridden by the enemy.
"What manner of horses do they ride?"
"Black horses."
"Then there is no need of haste."
At the noon halt the leader again asked, "What manner of horses do they ride now?"
"Bay horses."
"Then we must ride harder."
A few hours later the leader asked, "Are they horse again?"
"They ride chestnuts."
"Then we ride for our lives."

Italy's Rest Days.
Under a law which went into effect Feb. 8, 1906, all industrial and commercial concerns throughout Italy must grant their employees a weekly rest of not less than twenty-four consecutive hours. It does not apply to public utilities, transportation lines or places of amusement. The general sense of the law is that Sunday shall be the rest day, but it is provided that freedom from work may be given on a day other than Sunday in the case of restaurants, photograph galleries, pharmacists, etc.

Let the Doctor Beware.

If you bank your money away from home it is loaned to other farmers, merchants and manufacturers. Help your home people. Money hidden at home helps no one. Placed in a bank it is put to work in ways that help all.

A Savings Account . . .

Is a rainy day fund, a life insurance policy, a stock bond, a funeral benefit, and an old age pension. There is no fortuitous chance in the postoffice, and it is under the owner's control at all times. It will tide him over sickness; it will care for his family when he must go; it will see him through old age, and bury him when he dies. It is a simple business proposition. Begin early, and keep it up, and, like money in the desert, it will supply him as he journeys.
