KLAMATH FALLS, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1909.

TELEGRAPH NEWS

The Bama News reports that the Margaret Hies theatrical company has just closed a very successful two weeks' engagement there.

Down in Georgia one editor says that together in a lexicographical charlatan and an intellectual lapidary. Outside of this, we trust, he is feeling moderately well.

They have a new drink over in Albany called Melas, which is said to be intoxicating. As it spells Salem backward it ought to have a queer effect upon its imbiber, for, as the Eugene Register remarks, it is all some fellows can do to take Salem straight and keep sober.

Nashville, Tenn.—Dr. L. C. White, for twenty years supreme keeper of records and seals of the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, died here October 30th, aged 65.

West Point.—Eugene A. Byrne, tackle of the West Point team, was so severely injured in the second half of the Army-Harvard game that he had to be carried from the field. It is believed that his neck is broken.

Vanderbilt Racecourse, L. I.—Harry P. Grant, driving an Alco car, captured the Vanderbilt cup race. He drove the car 278.03 miles in 4:25:40. Parker, in a Fiat car, was second, being only five minutes behind. Fifteen cars started.

New York.—James J. Jeffries and Jack Johnson have signed articles to fight before the club offering the largest inducements, bids for the fight to be submitted to Robert S. Murphy on or before December 1st. The fighters agreed to fight forty-five rounds or more on or before July 5th, 1910, the purse to be divided 75 per cent to the winner and 25 per cent to the loser.

New Orleans.—Amid loud cheers and shrieks of sirens, Taft reached New Orleans after his long trip down the Mississippi from St. Louis.

Portland.—Tag day was a great success.

Portland.—All previous records for building operations in this city were broken during the month of October, in which permits for building construction amounting to $1,701,175 were issued by the city building inspector. The former record month was April of this year, when the valuations totaled $1,651,195.

All you have to know to make a living in Oregon is to know how. Here is one example: A Baker City man has cleared $1,200 this season from a three-acre tract on the Powder river, and all he had was 250 hives of bees!

The Houston Post thinks that Mr. Hearst may beat Bryan's record if he lives the allotted time of three-score and ten years, as he is rapidly accumulating what is probably one of the finest assortments of political defeats in existence.

This talk about wanting to be a soldier and die for the dear old flag is about as sensible as that old song which said we wanted to be angels. Before the creation of man the angels were in existence, and in all probability we shall continue hereafter as we are here. So it is with this soldier business. It isn't necessary to rush off to war and get mutilated in order to show your patriotism. Treat your neighbors white; do your level best in everything; improve your locality; take an interest in the progress of your town—and you will be as true a patriot as ever soldier or sailor was.

Roseburg is to have a new daily newspaper. On November 1st the Umpqua Valley News, a twice-a-week paper, will start publishing a daily, "The Evening News." The new paper will carry the latest telegraphic dispatches, together with all the local news. This will make the second daily newspaper for Roseburg, the other being the "Evening Review."

A Kansas City newspaper, referring to an elephant's recent charge on Mr. Roosevelt, suggests that this charge, unlike many of those made against the Colonel, is true. We're from Missouri!

San Francisco.—William F. Britt, manager of Stanley Ketchel and Battling Nelson and better known to his intimates as "Willus," died October 26th at St. Joseph's hospital of a hemorrhage of the stomach. Britt was a native of San Francisco, one-time reporter on the "Examiner" and "Call."

San Francisco.—The Hill railroads are to enter this city over the tracks of the Western Pacific railway. A truckage arrangement has been made between the Great Northern and other Hill roads and the Gould interests, under which the northern lines are to use the Western Pacific tracks from Keddle, Plumas county, Cal., to the Oakland terminals.

SANDERSON ON EXPANSION

posse to be annexed will receive the same consideration as the present city limits.

In the matter of sewage, which we are all so anxious for, and which seems to be an assured fact, the city engineer, in perfecting plans and specifications for the present limits, has been instructed to develop the same with the object of affording connection with the outfalls by outside territory as it may be added to the city. And whatever arrangement is perfected for the disposal of the sewage within the present limits will be along lines fully adequate to take care of the sewage from such contiguous territory as may be added to the city limits.

New territory added to the city limits should feel assured of an impartial administration of the laws of the city; and I feel safe in saying that the ordinances of the city will be enforced in any new territory that may be added in the same manner as in the present city limits.

The adding of new territory will necessitate the creation of additional wards and an increased number of councilmen, which matters will be provided for in an amendment to the charter as occasion requires.

A charter commission is now in existence and in due time will report such amendments as conditions dictate and warrant.

In conclusion let me say to you as progressive citizens, interested equally with ourselves in the upbuilding of a great city, that the duty we owe to one another is to unite Klamath Falls with all proposed contiguous territory into one city, under one government and for one purpose—that of a "Greater Klamath Falls."

F. T. SANDERSON,
Mayor City Klamath Falls.

A CULINARY MASTERPIECE.

When You Go to Paris Don't Turn Up Your Nose at Mussels.

You will find in Paris a small restaurant just inside the street entrance presided over by a waiter who has apparently been forty years of age for the last twenty years. He has a friendly, alert air, and anything in the world that you want he will promptly provide.

You will naturally order some sort of potage or something that your fancy suggests; but, whatever else you do, be sure to call for mussels. I can see you turning up your nose at this. In America, who eats mussels except at rare times—perhaps some picked snobs? They are with us in the same category as tripe.

But behold the genius of the French! When the waiter brings in an enormous silver bowl with a domelike silver cover and when he removes the cover, then you forget everything in the world except the delicious savory smell of the steam which rises from the myriad shells that open lovingly for you to extract from them the dainty fish flavored mussel that lurks with it.

Mussel, did I say? No; these are not the ordinary mussels that Americans know. French gastronomic genius has transformed them into mussels mariniere. In some deftly magical way the French chef has imparted a delicious suggestion to the mussels, just that indefinable, evanescent memory of garlic-garlic which in the hands of the ordinary cook is an offensive and deadly weapon, but which in the hands of a cook of high degree—an artist in fact—is a means for achieving some of the supreme triumphs of his art.

After the mussels you will have anything you care for—dainty slices of goulash or sliced capon nestling amid watercresses and then perhaps some peaches in a little basket where the fruit is infolded in leaves from its own tree and ripened to precisely the right turn on some ancient wall in the sunshine of an old French garden, then perhaps some pulled bread and a bit of Causembert and a Cafe Mazarin in a long glass. No one remembers now the battle that gave its name to this particular preparation of coffee, which shows that men may come and empires may fall and armies may be dashed into fragments upon the battlefield, but the genius of cookery remains triumphant and its achievements are never lost.—Bookman.

British and German Physique.
Ten millions of our people inhabit dwellings inferior to the kennels provided for the hounds in a well managed hunt. The results of living in dwellings unfit for human habitation and the prevalence of a dietary scale from which English meat, bread and milk are excluded are fatal to successful rivalry with a virile and healthy race where agriculture is fostered for strategic reasons.

Having spent hours to watching the arrival of the early morning trains in Berlin and Hamburg, I am appalled with the contrast between the vigorous and well set up, broad chested and healthy looking clerks, brawny shopmen and stalwart laborers on the other side of the North sea and the champagne shouldered, cow backed, pigeon chested, lack luster trainfuls of men of the same classes landed at Liverpool street, Victoria and Charing Cross.—Arnold White in London World.

No Studied It.
H. Rider Haggard in "A Winter Pilgrimage" tells this anecdote:

"When I was a 'roaring human boy' my father took me up the Rhine by boat with the hope and expectation that my mind would be improved by contemplating its lovely and historic banks. Worrying of this feast very soon, I slipped down to the cabin to enjoy one more congenial, that of 'Robinson Crusoe.' But some family traitor betrayed me, and, protesting even with tears that I hated views, I was dragged to the deck again. 'I have paid 6 thalers,' shouted my justly indignant parent as he hauled me up the steamer stairs, 'for you to study the Rhine scenery, and, whether you like it or not, young man, study it you shall.'"

Much Married.
The following, taken from "Evelyn's Diary," refers to a Dutchwoman who lived in the seventeenth century: "Towards the end of August I returned to Haarlem. They showed us a cottage where, they told us, dwelt a woman who had been married to her twenty-fifth husband, and, being now a widow, was prohibited to marry in the future, yet it could not be proved that she had ever made away with any of her husbands, though the suspicion had brought her divers times into trouble."

The Actor is a terrible bore.—A wfully bad arrangement at Jayville. "Playd Hamlet" there last week. Somebody shouted "Fire!" and it took twenty minutes for the audience to get out. His Victim—I s'pose the poor beggar was lame—what?

Zedion.
A country convert, full of zeal, in his first prayer meeting remarks offered himself for service. "I am ready to do anything the Lord asks of me," said he, "so long as it's honorable."

Mac—When were you married? Dyer—Just about six clock looks ago.—Puck.

Where carrying is there in confusion and every evil work.—James.

Back Numbers.

"William," said Mrs. Van Gelder to the man of all work, "I want you to clean out that large closet in the hall just outside the parlor. Burn all the old newspapers, waste paper and any other rubbish you may find there."

After a short time she met William in the hall carrying in his arms a huge pile of sheet music, the property of her eldest daughter.

"What are you going to do with Ma-bell's music?" she asked.

"Why, burn it, sure, as you told me to. It was in the closet there with the other rubbish."

"But I didn't mean the music. Put it back at once."

Noting his mistress' displeasure, William inquired in surprise:

"Why, hasn't she played it all?"

Wouldn't Hang the Jury.
An old negro named Ephraim, having been sworn on the jury in a murder trial, for some time resisted a verdict of guilty for no other apparent reason than his strong aversion to capital punishment in general. Finally the foreman explained to him that it was a question either of hanging the prisoner or hanging the jury and that it all depended on him. "Fo' gracious, sah," replied Uncle Ephraim, "on dem reasonments de prisoner am sho' guilty."

Register.

Helping the Town . . .

By banking your money in a bank in your own community you increase the community's power to do business. If substantial farmers want to borrow money there is more to loan them. If you bank your money away from home it is loaned to other farmers, merchants and manufacturers. Help your home people. Money hidden at home helps no one. Placed in a bank it is put to work in ways that help all.

A Savings Account . . .

Is a rainy day fund, a life insurance policy, a sick benefit, a funeral benefit, and an old age pension. There is no forfeiture clause in the passbook, and it is under the owner's control at all times. It will tide him over sickness; it will care for his family when he must go; it will see him through old age, and bury him when he dies. It is a simple business proposition. Begin early, and keep it up, and, like money in the desert, it will supply him as he journeys.
