Short Bits of News of Interest From Various Points.

Washington, D. C.—Secretary Knox has invited Japan to enter into a compact making practically compulsory the peaceful settlement of all difficulties with the United States, and thus keep the two nations in accord.

Chicago—E. W. Newman, who has recently returned from a hunting trip through British East Africa, says that the members of the Roosevelt hunting party are tired to death. He further stated that the ex-president regrets very much the criticism aroused in America and the claim of wanton slaughter, since he has been killing only one specimen of each species.

Portland—The Pacific Northwest from British Columbia south to the Siikiyon mountains and from the Cascades west to the ocean has been in the grasp of a rain storm for the past five days. The prolonged precipitation has created flood conditions in many of the rivers, but the damage so far has been confined to the logging industry. The Chehalis river and its tributaries are jammed with logs, carrying many of them out to Gray's Harbor and the sea. The Lewis river in Southern Washington is out of its banks, and threatens to cut a new channel through valuable farm lands.

Washington, D. C.—After voting Robert E. Peary a gold medal for his success in reaching the north pole, the board of managers of the National Geographical society declared its intention to push vigorously the question of priority in discovery. The scientists will spare no expense in order that they may be convinced on this point. Dr. Cook will be advised of the society's action immediately.

Birmingham, Ala.—President Taft in an address here again expressed his good will toward the South. While he was doing so, an old gray-bearded man in the audience called out, "God bless you. We all love you." The president smiled and replied, "That reminds me of the old quotation: 'It might be all right to dissemble your love, but why did you kick me down stairs?' But I have no fault to find on that score. The fact that you had so little to do with putting me where I am makes me appreciate all the more the warmth and sincerity of your reception."

Cincinnati, Ohio—A silk American flag, the gift of President Taft and Charles P. Taft, his brother, was presented to Kilminning Lodge of Masons. This is the lodge in which President Taft was made a Mason "at sight."

PIONEER SOCIETY MEETING

At the courthouse Monday evening, November 8th, at 7:30 o'clock, the Pioneer Society of Klamath Basin will have a business meeting and program, followed by a banquet in Red Men's hall. All members of this society and all eligible to become members are invited.

Don't forget the date.

Events of Interest and Opinions Expressed by Our Neighbors

Mr. W. E. Critchlow, secretary of the Oregon Prohibition committee, in a communication to the Oregonian corrects statements made by Meyer "of Milwaukee, and then declares that arrests in Atlanta, Ga., for drunkenness decreased in one year 350 per cent. The Oregonian believes that as a mathematician Mr. Critchlow is entitled to the world's gold medal.

You may depend, if Charles W. Fairbanks should go to China as minister for the United States, he will not set roaring war between two hemispheres by talk, idle and indiscreet. He does make speeches, sometimes, but they are kept in cold storage such a time before delivery, and come forth in such an icy manner, that you may depend they will not disturb the serenity of the world, much less shake the earth, crack the zenith and knock the poles over. Brother Fairbanks is the very man to succeed the warmly loquacious Crane.

Anyhow, the tariff can't be blamed for the kind of hats women insist on wearing—Indianapolis News.

Just before the Taft party started down the Mississippi river Uncle Joe Cannon dictated to a reporter the following answer to a question as to what he thought of the fight the insurgents are making against him: "Old Paul, you will recollect, if you refer to his journey, finally struck an attitude and said: 'I have been imprisoned, punished with stripes, met with robbers on land and have met the beasts of Ephesus, but none of all of these could discourage me.' That is all!" However, as the old saying implies, ability to quote scripture is not certain proof of virtue.—Boston Globe.

The new director of the mint is Prof. A. Platt Andrew, a Princeton and Harvard man. Though he is only 36 years old, he is said to know more about money and finance than most people twice that age.

The new commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic is Samuel R. V. Sant, a native of Illinois. He served in the Ninth Illinois cavalry during the war. His later life was spent in Minnesota, of which state he was governor from 1901 to 1905.

It seems that B. F. Yoakum, head of the Frisco and Rock Island roads, likes to make an occasional speech to the populace.

J. Pierpont Morgan Jr. is a bigger man physically than his father, which means that he is a whale of a young chap.

Judge Robert S. Lovett, the newly elected president of the Southern Pacific railroad, was born in Southern Texas, and taught himself law on his father's ranch. The first railroad job he ever had was grubbing sagebrush on the right of way of the Huntington road through Texas. In less than thirty-five years after that time he was president of the same road.

George Ade, author of the famous fables in slang and the "College Widow," is a convert to the continental breakfast, which is always orange marmalade and toast, though he prefers strawberry preserves to marmalade.

Dry farming is not as new as some of its advocates say it is. The farmers were among the very first to vote for prohibition.

The Portland Telegram observes that Uncle Joe Cannon believes in the majority so long as the majority believes in Uncle Joe.

It is said that 150 people lost their lives in Alpine mountains climbing during the last season, and the Portland Telegram aptly remarks that that particular sort of excess population can be as handily spared as any other.

It is the complaint of some critics that Col. Roosevelt's hunting stories lack color, but what is to be expected from a man so bitterly opposed to yellow journalism?

A PET MONKEY.

Its Pranks With an Author's Manuscripts and Decorations.

A Paris contemporary dealing with the love of great men for animals gives an amusing account of Chateaubriand and his monkey. When he was engaged in preparing Fontanes' works for the press, on returning one day he was met by his monkey.

"Ah, you rogue," said Chateaubriand, "your shamefaced look tells of mischief." The monkey was chained up, but as things did not appear much disturbed Chateaubriand thought no more of the matter until it was time to resume work. Fontanes' manuscripts were not to be found.

At last Chateaubriand looked into the waste paper basket, and there were the manuscripts. The monkey had watched his master, and as he had seen him fold a sheet of paper and tear it into four, so he had dealt with Fontanes' writings. With much labor they were pieced together and afterwards published.

Chateaubriand thought it advisable to see what else the monkey had done. His orders had disappeared from a drawer which was always kept closed. The servants searched every where for them, but they were not to be found. Nearly a week elapsed before they were traced, and then a domestic noticed that the monkey had suspended them to the cornice in a quasi-symmetrical way.

The monkey was given his cong, and Chateaubriand replaced him by a cat, which was allowed a place on his master's writing table, and great was the pleasure which he derived in playing with puss.

DIVING FOR COINS.

The Natives of Madeira Are Experts at the Business.

As we draw in and come to anchor we saw descending upon us a fleet of small, curious boats filled with half naked men. We suspected now that Madeira was a cannibal island and prepared for the worst. It was not quite as bad as that. They merely wanted us to throw coins over into the liquid azure which they call water in this country, whereupon their divers would try to intercept the said coins somewhere between the top and bottom of the sea. We didn't believe they could do it, but we tried and, as usual, found that the other fellow knew his own game better than we did.

If those amphibians did not always get the coins they generally did. They could see them perfectly in that amazing water, and they could dive like seals. Some of the divers were mere children—poor, lean creatures who stood up in their boats and shouted and implored and swung their arms in a wild invitation to us to fling our money overboard. But they did not want small money—at least not very small money. They declined to dive for pennies. Perhaps they could only distinguish the gleam of the white metal. Let a nickel or a dime be tossed over and two or three were after it in a flash, while a vehement outbreak of Portuguese from all the rest outcried still further largess. It was really a good show, and, being the first of its kind, we enjoyed it.—Albert Bigelow Paine in Outing Magazine.

Meaning of the Green Sough.

The custom of placing a green sough on the roof of a newly built house is not confined to Germany, but was adopted by the French Canadians, who brought it with them from Brittany. The custom originated from the superstition prevalent centuries ago that every tree is inhabited by a spirit; consequently it was believed that every time a tree was felled another spirit was dispossessed, and this was supposed to cause some bitterness on his part against society. Rather than risk having these homeless and disgruntled spirits vent their ill feeling upon the houses under construction or upon the builders a branch was planted on the highest part of the house for their occupancy. They were then supposed to be mollified, and if they remained so until the roof was put on any evil design contemplated would prove harmless, for the spell would be broken.—Van Norden's Magazine.

Bavona.

The history of Bavona is that of a long struggle with the Genoeses, ended in the sixteenth century, when they seized the town and rendered its harbor useless by sinking vessels filled with stones at the entrance. In 1740 it was captured by Ferdinand, but was soon lost again under the control of Genoa. The ancient hero where Mago stored his booty in the second Punic war, Bavona was the birthplace of the pope Sixtus IV, and Julius II, and the home of the ancestors of Columbus, who bestowed his name on one of the first islands he discovered in the West Indies.—London Standard.

His Preference.

Five-year-old Bobbie was visiting with his mother and, unexpectedly remaining overnight, was obliged to wear his cousin Kate's nightgown. The next morning he said testily, "Mamma, before I'll wear a girl's nightgown I'll sleep raw."—Harper's Weekly.

Youth and Old Age.

"Before a man is thirty he falls in love with every pretty girl he looks at." "Yes, and after he is thirty he falls in love with every pretty girl who looks at him."—Stray Stories.

Helping the Town . . .

By banking your money in a bank in your own community you increase the community's power to do business. If substantial farmers want to borrow money there is more to loan them. If you bank your money away from home it is loaned to other farmers, merchants and manufacturers. Help your home people. Money hidden at home helps no one. Placed in a bank it is put to work in ways that help all.

A Savings Account . . .

In a rainy day fund, a life insurance policy, a sick benefit, a funeral benefit, and an old age pension. There is no forfeiture clause in the passbook, and it is under the owner's control at all times. It will tide him over sickness; it will care for his family when he must go; it will see him through old age, and bury him when he dies. It is a simple business proposition. Begin early, and keep it up, and, like money in the desert, it will supply him as he journeys.
