A CLEVER NEWSPAPER STORY

FROM PORTLAND TELEGRAM

Margaret Illington-Frohman-Bowes has probably gone into seclusion to "darn socks." At any rate she has disappeared from sight, and the best bet seems to be that she and her new "hubby," E. J. Bowes, the Tacoma millionaire, are enjoying a brief honeymoon in California.

They have not arrived in Portland, and so far as is known, the report that they left San Francisco on the Shasta Limited Sunday night is without foundation. They have not reached Tacoma, where Bowes has prepared a gilded cage for his lovely actress, divorcee bride.

It is now thought probable that when Margaret was brought face to face with the question whether she should leave her $1,000 imported thoroughbred mare behind in California and come on north with her brand-new spouse, she decided in favor of remaining behind with her smart little steed. When the bridal pair left Reno the other day the horse and turnout accompanied them, occupying a special express car attached to the regular passenger train. The Bowes had planned to take the Shasta Limited, but when it was discovered that no extra or special equipment would be hauled on that aristocratic flyer, the whole Bowes entourage, husband, wife, maids and horse, remained behind to take some later train which would accommodate horses as well as humans.

At the local depot no such party as would answer the description of the sock-darning Margaret and the real estate millionaire has passed through in the past twenty-four hours. So the question is:

Where is Margaret?
Is she already darning socks for her millionaire catch, or where is she?

ABOARD A SUBMARINE.

The Crew, the Work and the Kind of Life the Men Lead.

Life aboard a submarine is not so unpleasant or dangerous as one might imagine, but it is entirely different from that led on other types of ships.

The crew, usually consisting of two officers and fourteen men, is selected from volunteers after a most rigid medical examination. Service rarely extends beyond a period of two years, and real work on a submarine is limited to about three weeks in the summer and one in the winter. During the remainder of the time the men live on a "parent" ship or on shore. The boat is, however, put through the various evolutions once every week.

The first impression on entering a submarine is one of heat, the air being rather close and heavy, but the men soon become accustomed to it. Standing room space is about six and one-half feet, and toward both ends the boat tapers away almost to a point. There are no portholes. The hatchway in the conning tower is the only aperture. Under water electric light is used. There are ventilators, but when the boat dives they are shut off with a cap.

Life on board a submarine is essentially "in common." The way men and many objects are crammed together in a narrow space is almost miraculous.

Cooking is done in an electric oven, and no foods which have a strong or disagreeable smell are used. Of course smoking is allowed only when on the surface and then on the bridge. Owing to the character of the men selected discipline is perfect.

There is scarcely any noise in a submarine when submerged. The greatest depth the boat descends does not exceed thirty feet. At that depth her speed is about 8 knots. The air is quite "breathable" for four hours, but in case of emergency the crew can remain closed in for seventy hours without danger.

The men love the life. With the officers they are as one family, sharing everything equally, including the dangers, which are not much to speak of, provided every one does his duty. When the weather is fair there is very little rolling. In rough weather the men escape knocking about by holding on to "steadying lines."—New York Press.

JURIES IN ENGLAND.

They Get Through Their Work Quickly and With Little Fuss.

The working of the British jury system exhibits a marked contrast with that of our own. It is possible that my experience in British courts was exceptional, but in not a single instance did I see a juror challenged or rejected. In all of the courts requiring juries the necessary number of men were present, and they were sworn in without question. In the sheriff's deputy court in Scotland the presiding judge gave notice to the jury that he expected to adjourn the court at 2 o'clock and stated that if they could all remain until that hour he would at once dismiss the men who had been called for a second panel. The jurors conferred together and decided to remain till 1 o'clock, whereupon the judge notified the other men to appear at 12:30. The one jury impeached for the morning session rendered six verdicts in cases involving prosecutions for theft, fraud and burglary.

In the court of quarter sessions at Taunton, England, I saw a single jury in one day render eleven verdicts. I found that it was customary in the several sorts of court that I attended for the same jury to act in successive cases. In no instance did I see a jury leave their seats to make up their verdict. Usually the issue before them was made so plain that all who gave attention knew in advance what the decision would be. I made note of an exceptional instance of delay when the court was forced to wait nine minutes for the report of the jury. In this case the judge who gave the instructions was himself in doubt as to what the verdict ought to be.

A Scottish jury consists of fifteen persons, and a majority may render a verdict. In England the number is twelve, and unanimity is required. But I noted no difference as to practical results in the two countries. The twelve men in the English jury were as prompt and certain in their action as were the eight out of fifteen in the Scottish jury.—McClure's Magazine.

A Hot Spot.

"I believe that Monterey, Mexico, is the hottest spot in the world in the daytime," said an Arizona man. "I have seen the thermometer register as high as 120 degrees in the late afternoon. It was so hot that the natives who ventured on the streets would hug the foot wide shade of the low buildings like lichen clings to tree bark. But here's the funny part of it: When the sun sets it begins to cool off, and at night it is positively necessary to sleep under blankets. The nights are delightfully cool, and I presume it is because one is able to get a good sleep that it is possible to live in that climate."—Washington Post.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Our Representation in the University of Oregon—Considering the number of graduates who are attending the University of Oregon the Klamath County High School is exceptionally well represented this winter. Three of the class of '09 are freshmen in the University of Oregon and one in the University of California. Of those at Eugene Irwin varsity glee club; Will Hurn has been Rolfe has made a place on the University band and Carlisle Yaden has been selected as a member of the university debating team. Jerry Martin of the '08 class also has been selected as a member of the glee club. These are no small honors, especially to be awarded to freshmen. It is only another evidence of the efficiency of the administration and instruction in our High School.
