COME

(Please memorize.)

Preparations now are about complete for the turkey dinner—an epicure's treat.
At the public library Thanksgiving day.
And fifty cents is the price to pay.
There'll be cranberry sauce with turkey meat;
Brown gravy on your potatoes to eat
Bread that is white and bread that is brown,
And beans baked like those in Boston town;
Much salad fine, and celery, too;
Klamath apples of gorgeous hue;
Tea and coffee, with real, rich cream;
Fine, light doughnuts, fit for a queen,
And last, but surely not the least,
Squash and mince pie to end this feast.

Pendleton.—Mayor Murphy has inaugurated a moral crusade, and shortly after 3 o'clock the other morning seven rooming houses and one of the leading hotels were raided. All guests were roused from their slumbers and where rooms were occupied jointly by men and women not known to the police the occupants were forced to produce marriage certificates. Few arrests were made, but a veritable hornet's nest was stirred up, and it is declared that damage suits will be instituted against the officers and mayor.

A LOAFERS' PARADISE

Life of the Happy-go-lucky West Indian Negroes.

LAZY JOY FOR LITTLE WORK.

Six Months' Labor Enables Them to Live in Indolence For a Year and a Half—Combining the Islands For Men For the Sugar Plantations.

A happy-go-lucky, stand up and fall down, genial, inconsequential spirit animates the West Indian negroes in their labor and in their begging. From the sweating toilers on the dock at Macoris loading sugar into the steamers, with their warning cry, "See-low!" to the men in the field, to the grinning boys hauling their fishing boats up on the beach at Dominica, they live from day to day and take no thought of the morrow. A West Indian negro with $50 will live for a year and never do a stroke of work.

And why not? His living costs him only 9 cents a day. He has his little cabin for the occupancy. A mango tree grows in his yard, and he can pick plantains by the road at will. If he is too lazy to take 5 cents will buy bread for the family for the day, and a few cents more will buy a dozen small fish and one large one. A single garment does for the women, and $5 will clothe the man for a year, while the plantations run as God made them.

The West Indians are the paradise of the happy loafer. Every year the islands are combed for the men to send for hands to work the great sugar plantations in Santo Domingo, and at that the negroes must often be practically kidnapped to get them on the boats.

In November of each year the sugar boats, little sloops and schooners that spend the remainder of the year trading among the islands get into the Santo Domingo negro trade. Their captains and supercargoes, when they have them, and the owners go up and down the islands telling the negroes that on a certain day the vessel will sail for Santo Domingo and take all who want to go to work on the sugar plantations.

Take the little island of St. Martin's for illustration. For a week the island is combed, and on the appointed day a dozen sloops and schooners are crowded into the harbor bay. The night before the negroes have begun to stream into the little towns that slope through the year, waiting for this one day to bring it to life. Boards are laid across houses, and rum and whiskey are set out to arouse the negroes to the pitch that will carry them out to the vessels bound for the plantations.

All day the men stream into the town, traveling barefooted along the sandy roads, swept in by the sailors, singing their song of riches to be had for the asking. Ahead of the men walk their women, totting heavy boxes on their heads, while the men are dressed in their best, with a cocky straw hat perched on one ear, swinging a dandy cane and carrying their shoes in their hands. At the outskirts of the town they put on their shoes and swing gaily up to the open air here on the beach.

The women lug the big boxes down to the beach and wait at being left alone until they, too, become filled with the excitement of the scene and urge their men folk on. The men hang back and laugh and drink and deny that they are going.

"In you go, Big Town!"

"Hav, Ah ah' goin'. Ah jus' come tuh see."

"Tah, yo' is goin'. Big Town. Oh is dat best."

"Come on back, boy. Ya, ha!" And all the time the rowboats, loaded to the gunwales, are plying back and forth between the shore and the sloops. By sundown the beach is swept clean and six little sloops and a schooner make sail and drift out of the harbor on a dying breeze, loaded down with a thousand black men and women, who will wake in the morning with a raging thirst. Then was he to the captain who has not filled his water casks, for there is sure to be at least one body to be given to the sharks after the fight around the butts!

When the vessels drop anchor off Macoris the plantation foreman comes off and look over the cargo and pay the shipmasters $2.50 each for passage money for the negroes. Then the blacks are herded ashore and are crated with 30 cents a day for a month for working from sunrise to sunset in the cane fields. By that time the $2.50 passage money is paid back. Then they receive their 30 cents a day in cash for the next six months until the cutting and grinding season is over, when the sloops show up again and take them to their homes for $2.50 each, paid in advance.

The foreman collect from the plantation owners 25 cents a day each for pay for the black hands, but with their share of the money the negroes can live for a year and a half before they have to think of doing another day's work. And they do it. Year after year the trade is piled, and the islands are combed for men for the plantations, and year after year the negroes return home to eighteen months of May lay.—New York Tribune.

Groundhog.
Teacher was telling her class little stories in natural history, and she asked if any one could tell her what a groundhog was. Up went a little hand, waving frantically.
"Well, Carl, you may tell us what a groundhog is."
"Flem, me'm, he's a snake."—New York Tribune.

"Nisi Price."

People often ask the meaning of the legal expression "nisi price." Literally interpreted, it means "unless before." A name given to the sittings of a court for the trial of civil causes. Judges on circuit, besides trying prisoners, have the power to give decisions in cases of complaints between private parties and when so acting are called judges of "nisi price." Formerly, when the circuits were less frequent, the sheriff was commanded "by writ" to bring the jury and witnesses from the county where the action arose to Westminster, Gloucester or Winchester on a certain day, but when the action became frequent a "nisi price" clause was inserted in the writ containing these words: "Unless before that day our justices shall come to your county and take the action there." As it happened that the justices always did take place before the date named in the writ, the clause was practically useless and now remains only as a name for those civil causes to which until recently it referred.—Dundee Advertiser.

The Foot's Woe.

"I have always been a reader of your poetry," began Mrs. Quake.
"I am glad," replied Algernon Charles Myotic, "that some one understands me."
"Oh, but that is what I have been hoping to meet you for. I wanted you to explain."—Philadelphia North American.

The Day of Rest.

"And now," said Mr. Flinchback of Billville, "let us be thankful for one day of rest and get ready for church."

"Yes," said his wife, "run out and chop some wood and milk the cows and light the fire and make the coffee and wash the children while I bang my hair!"—Atlanta Constitution.

A Reproof.

Parent—Willie, my father used to whip me when I behaved as badly as you are doing. Willie—Well, I hope I'll never have to tell my little boy that.—Exchange.

The habit of looking at the best side of any event is worth far more than a thousand pounds a year.—Johnson.

Lost—Gold watch, open face, 900 gold chain attached. Liberal reward paid if returned to this office. —Gt
