WORNOUT MOUNTAINS.

Laurentian Highlands the Oldest Land in the World.

Stretching across Canada north of the St. Lawrence and ending in the regions about the source of the Mississippi is a range of low granite hills called the Laurentian highlands. These hills are really mountains that are almost worn out, for they are the oldest land in America and, according to Agassiz, the oldest in the world.

In the days when there was nothing but water on the face of the globe these mountains came up, a long island of primitive rock, with universal ocean chafing against its shores. None of the other continents had put in an appearance at the time America was thus looking up. The United States began to come to light by the gradual uplifting of this land to the north and the appearance of the tops of the Alleghenies, which were the next in order. Later the Rockies started up. The United States grew southward from Wisconsin and westward from the Blue Ridge.

An early view of the country would have shown a large island which is now northern Wisconsin and a long, thin tongue of this primitive rock stretching down from Canada into Minnesota, and these two growing states looking out over the waters at the mere beginnings of mountain ranges east and west. They were waiting for the rest of the United States to appear.—Charles D. Stewart in Atlantic.

BOILED IT DOWN.

What the Lovers Intended to Say and What They Did Say.

What he intended to say: Lucille, I cannot tell you how I have waited, how I have longed for this moment.
Do you remember, Lucille, the first time we met? Well, I loved you from that moment. Are you surprised? I could not help it—I felt as though fate had drawn us together. Only tell me, darling, that some of my love is returned. There must be hope for me —say there is! (Takes her hand.) I love you—love you more than words can tell. All I ask is that for the remainder of my life I may be your willing slave. All I desire is your happiness. Tell me, sweetheart, that my love is reciprocated. Will you be mine? (Kisses her.) Darling, at last my happiness is complete.

What she intended to say: Why, Jack! I did not dream of this! I have always thought of you merely in a friendly way, and it seems so strange now to have you speak of love. I suppose I could get used to it in time.
Yes, I might learn to love you a little —just a little. But you must really, Jack, give me some time to readjust myself. What! Kiss me! You silly boy! Well, just one.

What they said: Jack—The fact is,
Lucy, I—I—I—I—will you marry me?
Lucy—Oh, Jack!—New York Journal.

Simplified Oratorios.

The new minister was consulting the organist as to the music to be sung on his first Sunday.

"And besides the hymn tunes," said the organist, whose daily occupation was that of plumber and leaman for the village, "we always have two selections from the choir, from real classical music, generally from one of Handel's or Haydn's oratorios."

"Why, that is good news," said the minister, who was no mean musician and had a cultivated taste and ear.
"But don't you find the music rather difficult for untrained singers?"

"Well, they aren't untrained, for I train 'em," said the organist with some restraint. "And, besides that, where the music's difficult I alter it for 'em.
I strike out all the endnotes and trills and things of that kind, and where the tune runs too low or too high I either set it up or down an octave, or if I can't do that I just have 'em quit singing, and I put on the vox humana stop and play the tune till it gets into their range again. It's easy enough when you know how to do it."

Rough.
"I scraped an acquaintance with Jones today."

"Yes. And he says your methods need honing."—Cleveland Leader.
