KLAMATH FALLS, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1909.

The Hood Citizen. A small community in New York has just re-elected the village blacksmith mayor. It tried him once and liked the brand well enough to use him again.

Intellect usually towers above the thinking machinery of the village lawyer as much as his arm outstresses the biceps of the legal limb.

Only Too Willing. Budy Party (entering office)—Er, one Mr. Mr. but can you help me out a little this morning?

Why don't you make an automobile tour of Holland? "No, thank you. I can find all the dishes I want on this side of the pond and to spare."

Do you think the study of the dead languages is valuable? "I should say so," answered the apothecary. "The Latin name of a drug sometimes constitutes two-thirds of its cost to the purchaser."

Young Wife—Tom does make such extreme statements. Mother-in-law—In what way, dear? Young Wife—He says if we want to get ahead I must toe the mark if I expect him to foot the bills.

Harry Yacht—I need something to prop up this mast. Eunice (her first trip)—Wh-why don't you use some of the bracing air you talked so much about?

Tell me, said the lovelorn youth, "what's the best way to find out what a woman thinks of you?" "Marry her," replied Puckham promptly.

Rich Aunt—You only visit me when you want money. Speedy—Well, I couldn't come much oftener, could I?—Hesperus Weekly.

How's your latest gold mine panning out? Fake Mine Promoter—Beyond expectations. Why, old man, it's amazing over a thousand sections to the ton of literature.—Puck.

In the Enemy's Country. Stubb—My wife sent me to a remnant sale last week. Funn—Did you see any remnants? Stubb—No, but if I hadn't seen the door pretty soon they would have picked me up in remnants.—Chicago News.

The Good They Do. Arline—Do moth balls really keep the moths away? Yvonne—No, dear, but they keep people too far away to examine one's clothes critically.—Kansas City Times.

RESCUE OF MRS. BROTHERTON AND CHILDREN

Seeing an unusual crowd of horsemen approaching, all the women and children ran out in front of their log cabins to learn what it all meant, and when informed that it was best for them to gather up their effects as speedily as possible and join the other settlers at some common point where they could be safe from attack, they were truly alarmed and at once began preparations to leave.

The next morning we left two of our party to assist Mr. Applegate in constructing this stockade and, accompanied by Henry Applegate and Charles Putnam, Uncle Jesse's grandson, we pursued our way towards Tule lake, following the old emigrant trail most of the way.

According to her story, the Indians did not do their murderous work in that locality until the morning of the day after the killing of the Boddy family. Being, doubtless, afraid of pursuit, they had passed the interim in some secluded place overlooking the valley, when, seeing no attempt was made by the troops to follow them up, and that the settlers were, unaware of any trouble, they came out of their hiding place and fell on the Brothertons and Henry Miller, who lived a few rods away from the Brothertons across the state line.

As we have toothblacks so they've got toothblacks in the Sunda Islands, said a traveling man. "What is a toothblack?" "Don't you know? A toothblack is an old woman with a pot of black paint, a gold leaf book and a set of vegetable brushes. From hut to hut she passes, and for a small fee—a gumb, a bunch of bananas, three coconuts—she paints the Sunda Islander's teeth a glistening black—all but the two front teeth. These she glazes. And the Sunda Islander thereafter goes about with a self-conscious smile revealing a truly knock-me-down dental display, a black and gold symphony. It is a common trick among the semicivilized to color the teeth. In Makassar dark brown is the popular hue, and in Japan among the unenlightened classes the teeth of wives are always painted black. In such countries the toothblack is an institution. She goes from house to house as full of gossip as a barber."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

In the midst of our tea drinking in the little Parisian restaurant, says Miss Betham-Edwards in an account of "Home Life in France," a gentlemanly individual wearing a tall hat and frock coat entered and, after a short colloquy with the young master, seated out. "You would never guess that gentleman's errand," Marcel said, smiling, as he repeated himself at the tea table. "He looked to me like a rather distinguished customer," I replied. "Some government functionary on half pay or an owner of bonds."

LINKVILLE LODGE NO. 110, A. O. U. W.

The regular meeting of this lodge will be held in the A. O. U. W. temple on this Tuesday night, and it is incumbent on every member to be present. The representative to the late session of the grand lodge has returned and will be present at this meeting to make his report to the lodge, in which every member is vitally interested.

We were at a loss to account for there having been no rescue party from the soldier camp ten miles above on the supposition that the Indians were in force somewhere between the two places, but as it was imperatively necessary that the survivors of the massacre be taken to a place of safety, we decided to attempt getting them through to where the soldiers were camped.

When we came over the ridge overlooking Tule lake about three-fourths of a mile from the Brotherton ranch, we saw two women and a boy and girl in front of the house who seemed to be regarding our advance apprehensively, as we could distinguish a gun in the hands of one woman. As we drew nearer the woman handed the gun to one of the children and came towards us, wringing her hands and crying. Between her sobs of sobbing we gleaned the story of the killing of her family as far as she knew it.

Another chapter will give some account of return and description of first battle as given by several participants, with views thereon. O. A. S.

Helping the Town . . .

By banking your money in a bank in your own community you increase the community's power to do business. If substantial farmers want to borrow, money there is more to loan them. If you bank your money away from home it is loaned to other farmers, merchants and manufacturers. Help your home people. Money hidden at home helps no one. Placed in a bank it is put to work in ways that help all.

The First National Bank of Klamath Falls

Is a good bank to put your money in—safe and reliable.

A Savings Account . . .

Is a rainy day fund, a life insurance policy, a sick benefit, a funeral benefit, and an old age pension. There is no forfeiture clause in the passbook, and it is under the owner's control at all times. It will tide him over sickness; it will care for his family when he must go; it will see him through old age, and bury him when he dies. It is a simple business proposition. Begin early, and keep it up, and, like money in the desert, it will multiply him as he journeys.

Now is the time to open an account with the
