AN EARTHLY INFERNO.

Vulcanizing Factory Where Men Stand 212 Degrees.
The hottest place in New York is in Doehrossen street in a vulcanizing factory, where telephone wires are insulated by being coated with a preparation of rubber. In the room where this process takes place the temperature rises to 212 degrees, 100 degrees hotter than the hottest it may be outside in the sun. Man can endure no more. Actually there are some who can stand this, however—only a few, mind you, but still some. They are only the strongest and hardest of workmen, and they can be in the room but a few brief minutes at a time. Several times daily it is their duty to enter the room to see that all goes well.
To keep from losing their skin and to protect themselves from the terrible heat these men wear heavy woolen shirts buttoned high above their necks and woolen masks and gloves. Four or five minutes at the most in the vulcanizing room is all they can stand without collapsing, and some can't even stay that long. Outside these men nobody is ever allowed to endure such a frightful heat. In fact, it is hard to convey the idea of 212 degrees. You can get the same degree of temperature by thrusting your finger into boiling water. Water boils at 212 degrees F.—New York World.

HE LOVED HER.

The Depth of His Feeling Was Revealed in His Answer.
"Do you love me?" he asked.
In reply the modern young girl looked at the modern young man with eyes perverted with emotion.
"Do I love you?" she repeated. "I do. I love you psychologically, sociologically, economically. From the psychological standpoint I feel that our different organisms are so nicely differentiated as to form a properly articulated area of combined consciousness. Sociologically our individual environment has been enough in contrast to form a proper basis for a right union. Economically I feel sure that when we come to combine we shall be able to introduce into the management of our affairs the right financial balance to produce the scientific result which every well ordered and conducted business produces. And, now, how do you love me?"
The young man reached forward. He clasped her swiftly, but surely, in his arms. He hugged her long and plenty. He kissed her alabaster cheek and her ruby lips.
"How do I love you?" he replied. "My dear girl, I love you just as much as if you really knew what you were talking about."—Life.

Study Under Difficulties.

It was my love for my children that gave me the energy, the will power, to reach great heights in my profession. I practiced, I studied my great roles and aris seated at the piano, the baby at my breast, the others playing around me none too softly. I memorized my parts while standing at the oil stove cooking our simple meal or while busy at the washub, with my little ones always around me. Singing, learning, studying, I was supremely happy because they were with me. I brought up my children, and they were my comfort and my support. They made a brave, courageous "fellow" of me. And it was no difficult task. If I had to hurry to the theater for rehearsals I would give the children their supper at 5 o'clock and put them to bed. When I returned at 10 or 11 o'clock I would be greeted by merry birds' twitter from the different little nests, and I would divide my sandwiches with them. Then we would sleep as only the happy and healthy may.—Mrs. Schumann-Heink in Delinector.

Collier and a Collier.

A single unprinted letter may produce astonishing results, and even the misreading of a capital letter as a small one may be disastrous. When John Payne Collier died the London Press correctly gave a paragraph stating that he had been buried in Bray churchyard, near Maidenhead, a large number of friends being present at the funeral. But a provincial paper which presumably knew nothing of the notorious Shakespearean critic gave the same paragraph concerning "John Payne, a collier," and to complete the thing headed it "The Bray Colliery Disaster."—London Chronicle.

Practical Superstition.

"Are you superstitious?"
"In a practical way."
"How is that?"
"Well, I never walk under a ladder unless I feel sure it won't fall on me, and I always expect bad luck when pursued by a mad bull across a lot in which there are just thirteen acres."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Survival of Fittest.

Miss Helen Mathers thinks that the decline of the novel is due to a large extent to motorcars. There is no doubt that a large class of readers have been almost entirely eliminated by these vehicles. We refer to those persons who used to read as they walked along the roadway.—London Punch.

Envy.

Madge (proudly)—Did you see that handsome man I just danced with? Kate—Yes; he has a jealous wife, who will allow him to dance only with the plainest girl in the room.—Boston Transcript.

Many a young man starts in to work fired with a noble ambition. Then the ambition evaporates, and he gets fired.—Chicago News.

The Free Piano

HAS ARRIVED

See it at Our Store and Tell Us What You Think of it

Mrs. Anderson said that "She thought it the swellest piano she ever saw in this town.

James Harmon vowed that "His wife would get that piano if he had to spend half his time collecting certificates.

Miss Mary Cannon thinks the piano is going to be won by her school because she has a force of scholars all ready to go to work collecting certificates.

When Mrs. Jackson saw the piano she said "That is a fine instrument, and I am going to work hard to get it for my home."

Little Miss Martin who is just ten years old and taking her first music lesson, said that "Her Papa would have to buy all of his clothes and shoes and hats and everything at Hector's so that he could get the piano for her."

Many Others Expressed Similar Opinions

No wonder they all want the piano. It is an instrument anyone would be proud to own. You can get it if your friends will help—ask them and commence collecting certificates today. Examine the piano at our store and enter your name in the contest.
