LOVE FOR TITLES.

The Way the Average German Burger Lengthens His Name.

The average German burger's love of titles is a source of never ending fun to the rest of the German population and of continual ridicule to the rest of the world. Any one caring to see how far some people of the fatherland will go in this direction need only have a look at a hotel register at a summer resort. He will see added to the name of the guest the most curious combinations of appellations drawn together to form a title. He will, for instance, find:

A "Technischen Provinzialfeuerungs- und Wasserbauinspektor" is technical provincial fire insurance inspector.

A "Geheimen Expedierenden Sekretar im Ministerium der Offentlichen Arbeiten" (meaning a special sort of secretary at the ministry of public works).

A—to continue in English as well as possible—"cashier president of the Royal Baxon railway," a "royal railroad subsecretary."

The ladies are not better. "Frau Verwiltweteherrenverwalterin" is quite usual and means "Mrs. Widowed Superintending Collector." Then there are the "Mrs. Secretary and Calculator" and "Mrs. Widowed General Agent." The best of all, however, is a title which a lady entered in the register of a hotel at which I recently stayed. It read, "Mrs. Prison Warden and Children."—Fall Mail Gazette.

TAMING A BIRD.

Teaching a Feathered Pet to Trust You is Not Difficult.

No creature is more jealous or sensitive than a bird. It is easy, however, to win the heart of almost any bird, and that without starving him or making him think he has mastered you. Simply talk to him a good deal.

Place his cage near you on your desk or work table, and retain his choicest dainty to give to him with your own fingers. Let him know that he can never have that particular thing unless he takes it from you, and he will soon learn, if you are patient and do not disconcert him by fixing your eyes upon him.

After this he will more readily take it from your lips, and then when you let him out of his cage, after the first excitement is over, he will come to you, especially if you have a call to which you have accustomed him, and accept the dainty from you while free.

As soon as he becomes really convinced that you will not hurt him or try to catch him or interfere in any way with his liberty he will give way to his boundless curiosity about you. He will pull your hair, pick at your eyes and give you as much of his company as you desire.—New York Press.

A Lost Opportunity.

The father of the late Benoit Constant Coquelin, the great French actor, was a baker, and young Coquelin was brought up to the trade. At thirteen, a writer in Le Figaro says, he manifested an irresistible inclination toward the stage, an inclination which his father steadfastly strove to repress.

"Don't devote so much time to those dramas," his father used to say. "You have learned a good trade, the business is running well, and you shall be my successor."

A number of years after Constant had made his way into general favor his father, who took pride in his boy's success, but could never quite get over the feeling that Constant should have been a baker, was congratulated upon his son's eminence.

"I remember," said the old man, "that Constant was a good baker. He would have gone far in the trade."

Blowing Up the Locks.

Would it be easy to blow up and destroy a lock canal by the malicious use of dynamite or other high explosive? The question has been debated much in connection with the Panama canal. The Engineering News calls attention to the fact that an attempt made in 1900 to wreck the Welland canal in this way produced surprisingly small results. After two weeks' examination the two men concerned selected lock 24, and each lowered a satchel containing dynamite and a fuse to the water behind the gate at each end of the lock. Both charges were exploded, but the dynamite failed to carry away the gates. Although the explosives blew a hole about a foot in diameter through each gate and loosened the hinges, the gates remained in position, holding back the water.

In the Regular Establishment. "Yes," said the fresh young lieutenant, "the army has fallen on evil days."

The sophisticated captain merely gasped. "Why," the F. Y. L. went on, "look at the names on this roll—Private Entrance, Corporal Punishment, Major Domo, General Housework. What kind of a—"

But just then the S. C. shied a—well, a ginger ale bottle at the fleeing offender.—Lippincott's.

Explained.

"You say the defendant pulled the plaintiff's hair. Now, how could the defendant, who is an unusually short man, reach the plaintiff's hair, the plaintiff being fully six feet tall?" "Why, you see, your honor, the plaintiff was butting him at the time."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Evidently a Connoisseur. "Bliggins is a connoisseur in cigars." "He must be. Otherwise he might make an occasional mistake and give away a good one."—Washington Star.

A bold onset is half the battle—Gart-bald.

Made Him Sick. A noted golfer one afternoon played rather badly. He turned to his caddy after he had fiddled a drive and said in his genial way:

"This isn't a pleasant spectacle for you. I'm as bad as a Scotch laird at St. Andrews. The St. Andrews caddies are all old men, and one day when this laird was in especially bad form his caddy, after nine holes of missed shots and putts, shook his gray old head, surrendered the laird's bag of clubs to another caddy and said: "'Ye'll no mind, laird? I made but a poor breakfast this mornin' and I'm no in a condition to stand any mair o't.'"

The Navel Orange.

The first we know of the navel orange, which is very valuable not only on account of its fine quality and taste, but also because of its being seedless, is of a single tree that was found growing on the northern shore of the Mediterranean sea. This was about the year 1555. Grafts of this tree were taken to Spain by the Moors several hundred years ago, and from Spain the trees were carried to South America by the Spaniards.—St. Nicholas.

The Free Piano

HAS ARRIVED

See it at Our Store and Tell Us What You Think of it

Mrs. Anderson

said that "She thought it the sweetest piano she ever saw in this town."

James Harmon

vowed that "His wife would get that piano if he had to spend half his time collecting certificates."

Miss Mary Cannon

thinks the piano is going to be won by her school because she has a force of scholars all ready to go to work collecting certificates.

When Mrs. Jackson

saw the piano she said "That is a fine instrument, and I am going to work hard to get it for my home"

Little Miss Martin

who is just ten years old and taking her first music lesson, said that "Her Papa would have to buy all of his clothes and shoes and hats and everything at Hector's so that he could get the piano for her."

Many Others Expressed Similar Opinions

No wonder they all want the piano. It is an instrument anyone would be proud to own. You can get it if your friends will help—ask them and commence collecting certificates today. Examine the piano at our store and enter your name in the contest.

(Fill out, cut out, and mail or bring to our store.)
