DAIRY DEVELOPMENTS

Claude Clopton is one of the helpers on the Dave Shook ranch.

Emil Flackus has lately gone back to live on the Four-Mile Springs place.

Jerry Pearson, young though he is, is making rapid advancement as a violinist.

By all appearances the dancing party at Smyth's on Christmas Eve will be largely attended.

Sundry members of the Bohemian settlement near Merrill have recently been in Yonah Valley buying horses and cows.

Dave Shook is getting in his winter's wood. With a big four-horse team he has in about a whole big tree at a load.

Everybody who has stock is feeding them during this cool weather and the cattle especially have ravenous appetites.

Mr. and Mrs. Teddy Hammerley and Mrs. Colman from North Yonah were doing Christmas shopping in Dairy last Tuesday.

It hopes Lanford Anderson "humping" himself to prepare the fuel for the numerous stoves he has to keep going at his canvassary these cool days.

W. F. Sedge, the Dairy merchant, has been doing a rushing business during the past week. His large and well-stocked stock of goods is winning appreciation and trade.

Riley Woods has bought the Ward place in Prairie Flat and is preparing to farm it the coming season. Riley has saved his youthful wild oats and is getting down to business.

Tuesday morning last, December 21, was the coldest of the winter thus far. The mercury stood at 2 degrees above at 6 o'clock at Dairy, and 5 degrees above at the Shook ranch. It soon got warmer, however.

STRAYED—From my stable in Klamath Falls, one bay driving mare branded E; weight about 1100 pounds; had on a blanket and head-stall of a halter. Information leading to the recovery of same will be suitably rewarded. J. R. Mason.

STENOGRAPHERS' NOTES.

Perfectly Intelligible Only to the One Who Wrote Them.

"My stenographer was taken ill suddenly," said a well known business man the other day, "and as I had dictated some important letters to him which I wanted written at once I took his notebook to a stenographic institution and asked for a man to translate the notes. Judge of my surprise when I was informed that no matter how good an expert a stenographer may be he cannot read the notes of a colleague."

"This is a common complaint of men who know nothing of stenography and have never studied it," said a shorthand reporter recently. "It is true, however, that no stenographer can accurately translate another's notes. This does appear strange, but it must be remembered that stenography is by no means a perfect science. In fact, it is most imperfect, and there is great room for improvement. Therefore every intelligent person who studies stenography after he gets through the rudiments of it begins to improve it in his own way, invents word signs and characters and changes or alters those he has learned. As a result every stenographer's notes are stamped by his own individuality, a mystery to another, and therefore, with the exception of words most commonly used, it would be impossible to read another's notes accurately.—New York Sun and Ad."

Arnold Daly is to close his season in Chicago.

A new play of political corruption in New York is called "The Governor and the Don."

Blanche Bates has gone to Europe for the summer and has not announced her plans for next season.

R. F. Keith has secured the Orpheum theater, Boston, and in the fall will use it for moving pictures.

Francis Wilson has been so successful in "When Knights Were Bold" that he will continue in the play until season.

"Do you think the study of the dead languages is valuable?"

"I should say so," answered the apothecary. "The Latin name of a drug sometimes constitutes two-thirds of its cost to the purchaser."—Washington Star.

WORNOUT MOUNTAINS.

Laurentian Highlands the Oldest Land in the World.

Stretching across Canada north of the St. Lawrence and ending in the regions about the source of the Mississippi is a range of low granite hills called the Laurentian highlands. These hills are really mountains that are almost worn out, for they are the oldest land in America and, according to Agassiz, the oldest in the world.

In the days when there was nothing but water on the face of the globe these mountains came up, a long island of primitive rock, with universal ocean chafing against its shores. None of the other continents had put in an appearance at the time America was thus looking up. The United States began to come to light by the gradual uplifting of this land to the north and the appearance of the tops of the Alleghenies, which were the first started up. The United States grew southward from Wisconsin and westward from the Blue Ridge.

An early view of the country would have shown a large island which is now northern Wisconsin and a long, thin tongue of this primitive rock sticking down from Canada into Minnesota, and these two growing states looking out over the waters at the mere beginnings of mountain ranges east and west. They were waiting for the rest of the United States to appear.—Charles D. Stewart in Atlantic.

BOILED IT DOWN.

What the Lovers Intended to Say and What They Did Say.

What he intended to say: Lucille, I cannot tell you how I have waited, how I have longed for this moment. Do you remember, Lucille, the first time we met? Well, I loved you from that moment. Are you surprised? I could not help it—I felt as though fate had drawn us together. Only tell me, darling, that some of my love is returned. There must be hope for me—say there is! (Takes her hand.) I love you—love you more than words can tell. All I ask is that for the remainder of my life I may be your willing slave. All I desire is your happiness. Tell me, sweetheart, that my love is reciprocated. Will you be mine? (Kisses her.) Darling, at last my happiness is complete.

What she intended to say: Why, Jack! I did not dream of this! I have always thought of you merely in a friendly way, and it seems so strange now to have you speak of love. I suppose I could get used to it in time. Yes, I might learn to love you a little—just a little. But you must really, Jack, give me some time to readjust myself. What! Kiss me! You silly boy! Well, just one.

What they said: Jack—The fact is, Lucy, I—I—I—I—will you marry me? Lucy—Oh, Jack!—New York Journal.

Simplified Oratorios.

The new minister was consulting the organist as to the music to be sung on his first Sunday.

"And besides the hymn tunes," said the organist, whose daily occupation was that of plumber and leaman for the village, "we always have two selections from the choir, from real classical music, generally from one of Handel's or Haydn's oratorios."

"Why, that is good news," said the minister, who was no mean musician and had a cultivated taste and ear. "But don't you find the music rather difficult for untrained singers?"

"Well, they aren't untrained, for I train 'em," said the organist with some resentment. "And, besides that, where the music's difficult I alter it for 'em. I strike out all the cadences and trills and things of that kind, and where the tune runs too low or too high I either cut it up or down an octave, or if I can't do that I just have 'em quit singing, and I put on the vox humana stop and play the tune till it gets into their range again. It's easy enough when you know how to do it."

Home! How deep a spell that little word contains! It is the circle in which our parent, best affections move and concentrate themselves, the hive in which, like the industrious bee, youth gathers the sweets and memories of life for age to meditate and feed upon! It is childhood's temple and manhood's shrine—the ark of the past and the future.—Uland.

WINTERS, The Big Store

NOW A WISER MAN

The other day there was a little stout, fat man dropped into the BIG STORE. He sauntered round awhile and finally laid his stomach upon our best dining table and proceeded to tell us how he used to make tables out of pine and basswood that were a whole lot better than oak. We put up a well planned, common sense argument and finally an idea oozed through his cranium that a good, solid table, such as you can buy at the Big Store for $12, would outlast any four pine or basswood tables ever made. He strolled out a wiser man and said he would come back some day when he had time to talk some more.

Helping the Town . . .

By banking your money in a bank in your own community you increase the community's power to do business. If substantial farmers want to borrow money there is more to loan them. If you bank your money away from home it is loaned to other farmers, merchants and manufacturers. Help your home people. Money hidden at home helps no one. Placed in a bank it is put to work in ways that help all.
