If He Tells All the Facts in Connection With the Deal to Buy The Herald

There is a well authenticated story to the effect that F. B. Houston, who is held on the charge of enuchering a well known banker by the name of Frederick Melhase out of something over $8,000, is going to get into the class with S. A. D. Puter, and tell the facts connected with the game. If he does, it would be a good seller in this neck of the woods, and would undoubtedly have considerable demand among the bankers of the country. The people of Klamath county would like to know what purpose was back of Melhase's desire to wipe out of existence the only paper in the county that had the courage to go up against the clique that has been running things in this county with a high hand. Houston knows, if he would only tell. He had wormed himself into the good graces of Melhase, and that "astute" gentleman told him everything he knew and a lot more. Every since the news of what Houston did became public, the people of the city and county have been waiting for a certain paper that was started to publish the news to say something about the truth of the case. If the Herald had not been in existence, or if the schemes of the Hog Combine to kill it off had been successful, no one would ever have known for what purpose Melhase gave out the money to Houston. It is the same old story of the Egyptian shepots.

If Houston should now come forth with his promised book and give the names, facts and figures, it would make some people sit up and take notice, and it might tell to the people of the county what was back of the whole Hog Combine fight. The Herald hopes he will carry out his intention and tell the people of the county all of the facts that led up to his securing the money.

Mathews of Pullman, Wash., is being moved from its present location to the adjoining lot on Pine street. The building, which has faced Fourth street heretofore, will be turned so as to face on Pine, and from the corner of Pine to the alley on Fourth street Mr. Mathews intends to erect a substantial business block. BROKE STORE WINDOW

Some time between 2 o'clock last night and early this morning some miscreant threw a stone through the plate glass window in the front of Underwood's pharmacy, shattering the glass and making it necessary to put in an entirely new window. It is not known who committed the act, but if the person is discovered he will pay dearly for his conduct.
