TO SETTLE LOST RIVER TROUBLES

SURVEY SOON TO BE MADE FOR THE PURPOSE OF COLLECTING NECESSARY WATER RIGHTS INFORMATION

SALEM, May 22.—Squaw Creek and Tumalo Creek water rights in Crook county have been adjudicated. The decision of the board has been upheld by Judge Bradshaw of The Dalles.

A total of 238 rights to water were involved in the Squaw Creek determination, and the decree to be entered will confirm rights to irrigate 16,018.85 acres of land, 6,651.35 acres of which are at present under irrigation.

In the Tumalo decree 150 rights to water were involved, affecting about 30,000 acres of land, only 3,058 acres of which are under irrigation.

Eight determinations have now been confirmed by the courts, involving in all 660 rights to water. These rights have been thus defined at an average cost to the claimants on the different streams ranging from $4 to $10 each, and at no expense to the state, as the fees paid to the state more than equaled the appropriations made for such purposes.

At the present time surveys are in progress on Powder River in Baker county to collect the fundamental information as a basis for adjudication of the water rights on this stream and all of its tributaries. Similar surveys will be commenced in the near future by the state engineer on Silver River in Harney county and Lost River in Klamath county, and the maps of the Rogue River heretofore made will be carefully checked over to bring them up to date.

WHAT 'FRISCO SAYS

In response to a telegram relative to the reception tendered the San Francisco men here, Chairman W. N. Moore received the following:

"A welcome such as our party has received at the hands of Klamath Falls warms our hearts and is not only appreciated by those who accompany you, but by those at home. Tell the good people there that we rejoice in their progress and prosperity, and wish them full measure for the future. Their advancement is ours, and here's to still closer relations."

others than by ourselves. It is not I, but the Mexican nation, which can best answer the question whether, having gained power I am likely to convert myself into such a tyrant as Diaz.

You ask: "Will the Mexican people be able to conduct their government similar to the government of the American people?"

The constitution of Mexico is very similar to the American constitution, but Mexicans are not so accustomed to democratic practices.

The leaders of the new government, being true representatives of the people, and having the welfare of the people at heart, have no doubt that we will soon be able to solve the difficulties, and the people be able to conduct our own government. I do not expect any difficulty in dealing with any party arising from the church. When I formed the political platform, I took great care not to touch on any point connected with religious questions. I have thought that the necessities of this crisis were to regain liberty, the rights of citizens and to establish a democratic practice. After these are settled, representatives of the people will reach all necessary conclusions regarding religious and other questions. In all questions we will limit ourselves only to carrying out the will of the people. The sympathy which America has manifested has demonstrated that the revolution aided us greatly, and will create in Mexico a sentimentality which will bring us closer together as a people, and will also bring the governments of Mexico and the United States closer.

ATTORNEY GENERAL GIVES HIS OPINION IN REPLY TO AN INQUIRY CONCERNING THE OPERATIONS OF DREDGES

SALEM, May 22.—In replying to an inquiry made by R. E. Clanton, master fish warden, Attorney General Crawford holds that the beds of all navigable waters within the state are the property of the state, and not of the United States.

"In reply to your inquiry relative to whether your department has any authority under the law to prevent the dredging of the bed of the Columbia River where it is used for drift net fishing," says the attorney general, "I beg to say that the beds of all navigable waters within the state of Oregon belong to the state, and while the United States government has supervision over the navigation under the constitution of the United States, the right to the bed of the stream rests with the state in its sovereign capacity as representative of all the people of the state, and in my opinion the state can regulate the use of the bed of such waters in any way deemed most beneficial to the people of the state."

"The question is who has the right to exercise this authority, whether the state land board as agency of the state to which is entrusted the control of all state lands, or whether the legislature must act in this matter."

In giving his opinion on this point the attorney general holds that the state land board has this power, and suggests that the master fish warden take the question up with that board.

"A private owner," he says, "is not compelled to allow another to commit waste upon his lands, and I do not see that the fact that the ownership is in all of the people materially changes the principle involved."

Pretty Wash Dresses for Girls

Among the recent New York purchases made by us came a generous shipment of pretty little everyday dresses for girls of 6 to 14 years; and busy mothers with little or no time to make up such good dresses at home should make it a point to see these and learn the very small prices we ask. These are dresses of sturdy ginghams in cute little checks and plaids; galateas, too, and pretty percales in plain colors with colored piping in pretty contrast. Low necks or high necks; skirts in dainty girlish plaits; especially fine values.
