

TIMBER FIGURES GOING TO STAND

COUNTY BOARD OF EQUALIZATION DECIDES THAT RAISED VALUATION OF STANDING TREES IS NONE TOO GREAT

Protests of the timber men over the raise in the valuation of the timber lands in Klamath county, as made by County Assessor J. P. Lee, as made by the board of equalization, which consists of County Judge Will S. Worden, County Clerk Charles De Lap and Captain Lee, have proved unavailing.

The board today decided that the increased valuation, which will amount to in the neighborhood of an average raise of 25 per cent on all timber land in the county, shall stand as proposed by the county assessor.

The timber men claimed that the increase in all county property, about $1,000,000, was virtually all on their lands, and that as a matter of fact other lands and property in the county had been assessed at a decrease of about $200,000.

In some cases the valuation of timber has been raised 50 per cent.

It is believed that the taxes of the Weyerhaeuser company will have to pay on its 166,500 acres of timber will be about $45,000.

Other heavy owners include the Western Pacific Timber company, 42,000 acres; Shevlin-Carpenter company and F. H. Hixon, 26,000 acres.

The county board of equalization takes the stand that the timber men have been getting off lightly on assessments, and that with the profits they have been getting out of their property in the county they should be called on to pay what is more like a fair share of the expenses of the county administration.

Have you ever noticed in reading the "latest popular" novel how many of the heroines are not supposed to be fish and blood, but the product of sculptors? Don't laugh—it's a fact, you read of the "molded" chin, the "chiseled" features and the "neatly turned" ankle.

There is one man in this city who is willing to tackle the cabbage game as it's put up to him strong enough—not to olfactory, but to his pocket.

He says if he can contract for the product at a cent a pound he will put in forty acres.

Three young ladies seated backward on the rumble extremity of an auto last night were induced to emit a number of shrieks and giggles which enlivened the down town streets. They were timorous lest they be landed wrong side to on the bitulithic. Passerby—hard-hearted creatures they were—rather wished the vehicle would turn a corner sharply.

One of life's little irritations is to have to shave on a cool morning and be unable to get any water of an amicable temperature.

Can't you write to some friend back East and tell him of the opportunities that Klamath territory offers to a settler? There's lots of land hereabouts ready to go to the hands of the first comer at little or nothing.
