TEACHERS GATHER, SEEK NEW METHODS

COUNTY INSTITUTE

STATE SUPERINTENDENT SPEAKS ON NEW SCHOOL LAWS AND MISS HASTINGS ON OPPORTUNITIES—PUBLIC NIGHT MEETS

At the Central school building this morning the teachers' annual institute for Klamath county was opened with a good attendance.

L. R. Alderman, state superintendent of schools, spoke on changes in the school laws and interstate recognition of certificates, which will enable a teacher certified in one state to get a position in another state without being examined in that other state.

Up to this time twenty-six states in the Union, over half, have signified their willingness to accept Oregon certificates. A number of states, mostly included in the twenty-six referred to, have adopted the same stand as Oregon with relations to the interstate certificates, enacting laws which will enable these certificates to get a footing.

New approaches have been opened to a certificate without any examination by giving those who have a four year high school course, including the teachers' training school course, the necessary standing, which will make high schools the same, in effect, as normal schools of the state.

Colleges of the state can grant certificates for high school teachers, but the school must be standardized and the national bureau of education will visit Oregon to effect that standardization.

An interesting address on "Teachers' Opportunity for Improvement" was given by Miss Montana Hastings of the department of education, University of Oregon. Among other things she said: "Teachers want more than devices. There was a time when teachers came to institutes with notebooks to fill up with devices suggested. Anything to keep the children busy. How quickly publishers responded to this demand on the part of the teacher. Books, boxes of material, columns in magazines labeled 'Busy Work' almost insured the sale of the publication. Teachers have kept children stringing beads and counting sticks long after they were to do much more profitable kinds of seat work.

"Then it is not only for devices that we are here today. The great needs of the teacher are right attitudes, large visions, keen insight and skill. Right attitudes toward life, toward his work, toward his own responsibilities and toward the many opportunities about him. If our ideals have large influence in shaping our conduct, then our ideals in the teaching profession must have large influence.

Mrs. Chas. E. Meldrum left this morning for Milwaukee, Ore., where she was called in response to a telegram stating that her sister was very sick with typhoid fever.

The value of the property sold is estimated at approximately $25,000, and through the deal Major Worden secured what is known as the John Pecos ranch at Long Lake, about seven miles from the city, and also a considerable quantity of stock, including mules, horses and cattle. J. V. Houston, manager of the opera house and Temple theater, has returned from an extended trip to San Francisco and other points.

COOKE TOO LATE TO GIVE LECTURE

TRAIN DELAYED, SO DR. SMITH SPEAKS ON GOOD ROADS—THE AGENCY WILL BE ASKED TO GIVE SUBSTITUTE ATTRACTION

Edmund Vance Cooke did not lecture Saturday night at Houston's opera house for the opening entertainment in the Lyceum Bureau course for the reason, as telegraphed by him, that his train was delayed so that he could not arrive until midnight.

The audience which assembled had the pleasure of listening to Dr. Andrew C. Smith, head of the good roads commission of the state. The doctor is a state senator, and goes about boosting highways, so it is said, without expecting any reward save the accomplishment of good, paying his own expenses. He had just been in Lake county.

The speaker told of the proposed $20,000,000 good road bond issue to run thirty years at 5 per cent, and said that under the plan proposed convict labor could be utilized, benefitting the state instead of individuals. He paid Judge George T. Baldwin a compliment for helping to draft bills, which, if passed, he said, would cause to be run through this part of the state highways to be proud of.

B. A. Snelling of Lakeview, another hustler in the interest of good roads, and W. A. Detsell, chairman of the meeting, also spoke.

Before the lecture hour, after the telegram was received from Cooke the Lyceum bureau called a meeting to determine what course to pursue in view of the failure of the first dated entertainment having failed. There were present W. A. Detsell, Prof. Rowell H. Dunbar, principal of the Klamath Falls public schools; Prof. W. E. Fought, principal of the Klamath county high school, Mayor Fred T. Sanderson and W. O. Smith.

It was the sense of the meeting that the agency with which the bureau had contracted for five entertainments should be asked to furnish another in place of the Saturday night engagement, which was not kept, and that if the agency fails to meet this request, the entire list, which includes four more bookings, be canceled and the price of tickets returned to subscribers.

It is the aim of the bureau to give the public all that it contracted to give or refund what has been paid in. The agency in Denver signed contracts to furnish entertainments in Klamath Falls on the five dates agreed upon, and the local enterprise is in no way to blame if the dates fall through owing to non appearance of entertainers, this being up to the agency. In the case of Cooke the chance was taken that he could get here at 8:10 p. m. and lecture at 8:30, and the calculation was missed.

Some of the bureau are inclined to believe that the givers of programs would do better to give themselves more leeway here between arrival and stage appearance.

New Livermore Quarters Soon To Be Adapted To Modern Living Facilities

It is probable that next week will witness the commencement of the remodeling of the Withrow-Melrose building at the southeast corner of Fourth and Main streets, in order to adapt it for hotel purposes for the occupation by the Livermore Hotel company. Some of the tenants have not as yet left the building, but all are expected to give up their quarters there by the first of November.

The Livermore Hotel company expects to have the building adapted to its purpose in about a month from the time alterations begin, so that it can use the place as a hotel about December 1st. It is a coincidence that the new White Pelican hotel is to open at approximately the same time, its projectors hoping to have the latterly begin business about December 4th with a banquet and other desirable features. The Livermore Hotel location has to be expanded in order to equip rooms with running water, baths and steam heat.
