THE PATERNAL GOVERNMENT

INDIANS who are being protected by the paternal government are showing signs of unrest, and little wonder that it is so. Within the last week a meeting of the advanced Indians, who have been modernized and educated, was held at Columbus, Ohio, to promote a movement to abolish reservations and government paternalism, which, it was charged, "has retarded the advancement of the red man in every direction," to use the exact words of the "official" press report. Under date of October 31 a dispatch from Spokane was to the effect that some tribes of Western Indians in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana have retained Attorney Harve H. Phipps of that city to represent them in the presentation to the next session of congress to obtain moneys belonging to them. The dispatch goes on to say: "Nine tribes of Western Indians in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana have retained Harve H. Phipps of Spokane to represent them in presenting a memorial at the next session of congress to obtain moneys belonging to them. He will start for Washington the latter part of November. The tribes in the past are: Flathead, Cayuse, Pea d'Oreille, Walla Walla, Umatilla, Nez Percé, Colville, Kootenay and Blackfoot. In addition to the awards, some of which date back twenty-five years, efforts will be made to obtain allotments of 80 acres of agricultural land or 160 acres of grazing land for each Indian child born since the adoption of the 1907 treaty. It is proposed to present these tribal claims to the court of claims for adjustment by the government. The Indians are losing the use of the vast sums of money belonging to the tribes, and this action is to secure a settlement. Judge Webster of the district court at Missoula, Mont., has made the formal certification authorizing Mr. Phipps to represent the various tribes." It is but little wonder that the Indians who have become educated and somewhat accustomed to the American ways should see that there are grave faults in the way of their tribesmen of less accomplishments than themselves are handled. Some of the methods in vogue by the federal authorities in handling the red man, which may not be the fault of the authorized parties, by the way, are certainly worthy of contemplation. For instance, the Indian is eternally fostered and protected, and all his earnings under the system taken care of by the government. The earnings are his, yet not his. While they stand credited to him in the public treasury, as it were, he has no power to get the money nor has anyone the power to get or use it for him. The money is of no use to the government, to his copper skinned wards, nor to anyone else, unless it be for some purpose of graft. For instance, the earnings accruing to the Klamath Indians on the reservation from various sources, such as the sale of timber, sale of lands or rentals for pasturage, are taken in charge by the government and sewed up tight. There is now a lot of money in the bank at Roseburg taken from sources which owed it to the Indians, and so far as the congressional delegation of this state appears to be concerned, it might as well stay there until the crack o' doom. In addition to the above announcement has just been made from Portland by a representative of the department of Indian affairs that 200,000,000 feet of timber of the Klamath

THE PATERNAL GOVERNMENT

Indian reservation will be sold next spring, and the minimum price will be $2.55, the lumber to be manufactured on the reservation. The sale, then, which should bring a minimum of $975,000 in money, will bring just this much more cash to go to the credit of the Indians. While it will be a matter of ten years, possibly, in accumulating, as the contractors will have about that much time in which to remove the timber, it will accumulate, nevertheless, and the manufacture of the lumber on the reservation will no doubt result in some other profit to the Indians. Thus it is that there is now in prospect another million dollars. In round numbers, to go to the credit of the Indians, who may never get the benefit of it. Some of them die before division of the money is made, some of them grow so old that they can never have the enjoyment of it, and many are unfitted to properly care for money, and would not have the proper "enjoyment" of it if it were handed over to them. The more intelligent Indian is beginning to see that the system is one that has faults, and that there is "something rotten in Denmark." He cannot understand the unceasing piling up of wealth with no distribution. No other sensible person can. The money should either be divided up or should not belong to the Indians. It should be theirs literally, or not at all. If it is the aim of the government to wait years and years for the purpose of distributing these moneys when the descendants of the present rightful proprietors of it shall have attained a certain mark of perfection in civilization, it is going to be a "terribly" long wait. If that were the sensible thing to do, then there is no sense in selling timber now, for the better proposition would be to hold the timber and sell it when the time approaches for distributing the funds. The timber would be worth more money then, and if the Indians are entitled to the proceeds they are entitled to the largest amount in sale price that can be obtained. The method of selling timber and locking up the money, when there is no need of the money, the failure to distribute the funds to the rightful owners, and the keeping closed on the Klamath reservation of 1,800 square miles of land, which territory would easily take care of approximately a million people, is one of the crowning farces of the present methods of Indian administration. Incidentally, some day the people of the Klamath region will awaken to the advantages that are due them in the direction of getting the reservation opened to settlement, and use their might and main for a change. Why not have the benefit now, instead of waiting for another generation to get it?

SOFT VOICE

If you have the blue devils and want them routed suddenly, kindly step into the lobby of the Baldwin hotel and take a squint at the photograph of E. E. Hall and two others on high bicycles, taken at Greeley, Colo., a number of years ago. If you don't let out a yell of exuberance on seeing it, then you're a hopeless case of the doldrums. The aviators continue to drop almost daily. The continued occurrences in this line lead to the assumption that it is next to impossible for a man to fall a mile or two and land on hard ground without going broke. This simply bears out contentions of time and time again made that natural laws really have something to say in these matters. There may be money in high flying, but the funeral cortege follows too often. Germany and France are so wrapped in another dominion just now that they appear to be bound in Morocco. Winter is coming. Be sure and get ready to repulse the wolf from your portal. If it ever comes down to the crucial test, who'll win, the White Pelican and its bar license, which is unquestionably unlawful under the present city charter, or the poor old charter? There will be some merry doings if the matter ever goes into the courts, for if the W. P. lost its permit to dispense with liquors, spirituous, vinous and malt, it would possibly come back at the city with a damage suit of extensive girth. There is talk that two more courts wish to get license and will apply for them. If they are granted it will automatically lift the population of Klamath Falls to 5,501. Maybe the issuance of liquor licenses above the legal limit is a new method of booming the city. This is surely an altruistic solution of the muddle. Owing to the way Turks and Italians are slugging one another in Tripoli the press reports are sometimes favorable to the white meat

That Chinese war is causing the loss of many a pigtail, even if the eternal quietus has to be put on the owner in order to accomplish it. But it will help to increase the supply of mats, shavings and other hireable wrinkles indulged in by women of America, whose supply of the elements is limited, and who wish to appear to be bulging with natural cranial shelter. If your nature is becoming enloured, try roller skating. If the enjoyment of the sport does not better you up a few good bumps will.

A Little Money Judiciously Spent Will Start a Home

Probably not a pretentious one, but if it is properly planned it can be added to from time to time and the money you save in rent will fast accumulate. In beginning, there are lots of frills that can be dispensed with, and you would be surprised if you knew on how little capital some of your friends started their homes. A little debt to work for will do wonders in setting you and your family on the road to prosperity. Lumber now is as cheap as it is likely ever to be because every year our supply of timber is growing less and the demand is rapidly increasing. In the face of these conditions we say "build now." Come in and let us talk over a plan that will fit you—our lowest grades start at good and go up.

A REST CURE
 Matrimony is described by a prominent writer as being a "rest cure." Be that as it may, if you want to see one of the brightest and most refined comedies of the year, don't fail to witness the production of "The Marriage a la Mode" to be given at Houston's Opera House, October 20 and 21.
 Someone said that people wanted to laugh, even if they didn't know what they were laughing at. This play is said to be one of the best laugh provokers of the present time. As its title indicates, the story is written around this question, and although it greatly amuses the plot is still a readable one. J. G. & Glen Harper, Inc., have organized an unusually good company of artists to present this comedy. The scenery is appropriate and the wardrobe handsome, completing one of the most pleasing productions of the season.
