HEAT CONCRETE AT LOST RIVER DAM

FROST IS A DANGER

FIRES HAVE BEEN BURNING NIGHT AND DAY UNDER THE ARCHES TO LET MATERIAL SET PROPERLY

Vapors from fires that are being burned day and night at Lost River dam to facilitate the work on the contract by keeping the concrete warm enough that it may defy frosty nights...

George C. Clark & Co., the contractors for the work, who have until December 31st, are doing everything possible to catch up with the concrete work at the dam...

Under twenty-one arches, the frame work of which is being filled with the concrete, there are fires burning day and night, which have been going for the past three weeks...

All the sand and other material is now on the ground, having been transported lately by barge along the canal from this city to a point two miles north of the dam...

The reclamation service has in operation at the dam a self recording thermometer which takes the temperatures at all hours...

October 23d, 24 degrees; 24th, 27 degrees; 25th, 31 degrees; 26th, 37 degrees; 27th, 26 degrees; 28th, 22 degrees; 29th, 25 degrees.

Last week's record, on inspection, would probably show just as low temperatures on the average, each night. The weather at the Lost River location is slightly colder than that in this city...

This record gives the contractor an idea of how long the newly laid concrete will have to set before the night's frost may be expected...

front, extra heating may be done to the materials as they are put in. All this care is necessary to keep Jack Frost from "butting in" and spoiling the contractor's labor and material.

One of the main features of the Lost River dam construction, and the one about which the most apprehension is felt lest there may be damage from frost before the concrete has an opportunity to set is the top of the main structure, with the bridge, which includes a walk and a tramway.

FOUR MILLION ACRES SURVEYED

During August the topographical engineers of the United States geological survey made field surveys of 6,517 square miles—over 4,000,000 acres—in various parts of the country...

The surveys comprise actual map making on the ground, and the putting on the map of every natural and artificial in its exact relative position as it actually exists in the area surveyed.

Frank White came in from Royston this morning on a hurried business trip. He left this afternoon for his home.

SEEDLESS APPLES LIKELY IF FIND IS DEVELOPED

Almost Dead Tree, Protected, Blossoms Anew, With Fruit That Is Seedless, and Almost Coreless—Is Discovery of Claude Seager

LAKEVIEW, Nov. 6.—A seedless apple is the discovery of Claude R. Seager of the Davis Creek Orchards company, who have large holdings near that point in Goose Lake Valley.

A tree near Pine Creek had for years been neglected, and the cattle, horses and other stock had browsed on its leaves until there was nothing left but the stunted growth.

This year the tree was protected against stock, and at its usual time brought forth blossoms that later developed into the marvelous production that has baffled the horticulturists.

There were something like twenty-five specimens of fruit that matured, and all were seedless and practically coreless. Mr. Seager has taken

KENYON AGROOM, WEDDING QUIET

MISS RUBY RABOURN BECOMES BRIDE AT SIMPLE CEREMONY AT HOME OF HER PARENTS—REV. UPP OFFICIATES

Golden Goose Lake is renowned for its fine fruit, but the production of an entirely new species will open possibilities that the orchard men of this favored section of the country never dreamed of.

It is the intention of the owners to develop the new discovery as far as possible, and it is expected that the apple industry will be revolutionized when the fruit is placed on the market.

Rev. Frank M. Upp performed the nuptial rite, after which a wedding supper was enjoyed by the little family gathering. Following the marriage feast the newly married couple took up housekeeping in the groom's house on East Fourth street.

NEW STALLION LAW IN FORCE

SOME OWNERS OF BREEDING STOCK HAVE NOT YET COMPLIED WITH IT, SAYS STATE REGISTRATION BOARD

Attention of the owners of stallions and jacks is called by the stallion registration board to the new stallion law, which went into effect on May 20, 1911.

It is necessary that all stallions and jacks used for public service must be licensed by the State Stallion Registration Board at Corvallis, and that they must be inspected by an official inspector appointed by this board.

Attention is also called to the fact that, according to this law, stallions which are in the state at the time when the law goes into effect and licensed during the first season, will be licensed, even though unsound, although such unsoundness, if present, will be stated in the license.

All horses, however, which are not used for public service and licensed during the first season, will be refused license and not allowed to stand for public service unless they pass the proper veterinary inspection. It is very important, therefore, that horsemen who are delinquent in this matter get in their application at once.

Horsemen are also urgently requested not to purchase stallions or jacks until after they have been inspected by one of the state inspectors and have received their state license, for otherwise it may prove that such stallions or jacks may prove unsound and hence not eligible to be used for breeding purposes in this state...

WILL FILL HOTEL WHEN IT IS OPEN

PUZZLE, SAYS CHIEF CLERK LOUSER, WILL BE WHERE TO INSTALL LARGE NUMBER OF CANDIDATES FOR SPACE

When the new White Pelican opens its doors on Thanksgiving day, a particular reason why its promoters will give thanks is that the house will be full to the brim.

There are 102 guest rooms in the big hostelry, and Chief Clerk E. H. Louser has already assigned a number of these to people who will be here at the time the modern inn is ready to receive them.

"Yes, sir, I am puzzled to know where to put all of the people that want to get space in the house," said Mr. Louser. "There will be about 100 guests here for the opening, besides various people who are coming to make their stay with us permanent. There are many people who make business trips to Klamath Falls now who do not stay here as long as they would on account of the lack of hotel accommodations of the kind they desire.

"Another point, for instance, is that there are traveling men who have not come here lately because they were not suited in the way they were accustomed in the matter of hotel service. I used to be with the Southern Pacific company as a supervisor of dining car service, and while in that work along the line I had a number of them speak to me of that fact. Those people will begin to 'make' Klamath Falls just as soon as we are able to take care of them. There will surely be plenty of people on hand to take space when we are ready to serve them."

Mr. Louser already has his room board up in the hotel company's office in the Klamath Development building, assigning space as fast as it is demanded. As soon as the exact

PROTECTION DEMANDED BY ENGLISH IN MEXICO

Fear Rebel Looters—Consul Tells Them to Demand Arms From Zapata or Say That John Bull Will Furnish Them

United Press Service MEXICO CITY, Nov. 6.—Alarmed by reports of violence attending the Zapatista revolution, and fearing the rebels might capture and loot Mexico City, the British government, through its consul today, instructed English residents to demand arms from the Madero government for their own protection, with instructions to add that if arms are not forthcoming England will provide them through the consulate.

W. W. Collins of Los Angeles, representing the National Hotel Register company, was in the city today. He is an old friend of J. C. Brockenbrough.

Right Of Way For Irrigation Canal In Poe And Nuss Valleys Advances

Most of the right of way work being done by the government reclamation service to make possible the letting of a contract for construction of the second unit lateral, has been completed, and W. W. Patch, project engineer, stated this morning that he believed another month would see the rights all secured.

He expects to start tomorrow with I. S. Voorhes, acting project engineer, who is his principal assistant, to attend to some matters in connection with this part of the work. After the rights of way are secured it will take several weeks to do the advertising and other work necessarily involved in the letting of bids, and Mr. Patch hopes to see the work speedily accomplished. He says the people who have land which will be furnished with water from the proposed lateral will be able to get water on it year after next.

There will be between 5,000 and 7,000 acres to be reclaimed by this lateral, including territory in Poe Valley, Nuss Valley and the west slope of Stukel mountain down to Lost River. All told there will be between 25 and 40 miles of the canal constructed.

Ellis Raphael, solicitor for the Portland Telegram, who has been working in this territory for the past fortnight, left this morning by automobile for Lakeview, after which he will make the trip to Bend. This is said to be the first time a solicitor for subscriptions to a Portland paper has "made" the inland section of Central Oregon. Mr. Raphael is said to be a descendant of the great Italian painter.

After Ankeny Canal Data To Sue City For Having Closed Up Ditch

That the government seriously contemplates suing the city of Klamath Falls for the closing of the Ankeny canal about two months ago by order of Mayor Fred T. Sanderson, whose object was to abate the alleged nuisance and help aly typhoid fever, is a fact beyond all doubt.

E. G. Hopson, supervising engineer for the Pacific district, who was here from Portland a few weeks ago, intimated as much, and word has been circulated from Washington for some time that the question has been put up to the legal department.

It is now learned that O. P. Morton, legal examiner of the reclamation service, Pacific district, will arrive in this city in a day or two with a view to securing satisfaction from the municipality.

While the canal was closed up nearly two months ago, the loss of its use for irrigation purposes did not last that entire period, for the reason that normally the irrigation season closes early in October, so that the impairment of service was not as serious as it might have been, although the canal has been closed ever since the city took drastic action.

Mr. Morton, when he arrives, will also look into some matters in connection with the rights of way and titles involved in the second unit lateral proposed by the reclamation service. The right of way must be in proper shape before bids for the work may be advertised for. Mr. Morton does the work formerly in the hands of W. S. Wiley, who is now otherwise engaged in this city.
